

West Berlin Sniper Fire Mows Down Red Soldier

BERLIN (AP) — Red army soldiers at the Soviet war memorial in West Berlin came under sniper fire Saturday, the 53rd anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution that brought communism to Russia.

One of the soldiers, Iwan Iwanowitch Sischerbak, was wounded.

The attack was unprecedented in this city surrounded by East Germany.

The memorial is in the British sector of Berlin, and a British spokesman confirmed the shooting, adding the Russian soldier was hit in the arm and left side. He was taken by British military ambulance to the East Berlin. He was reported recovering.

Identity of the person or persons who fired twice or three times at the pair of guards about 1:10 a.m. was not known.

A painted sign found in a park alcove near the memorial said in red letters: "prelude against Bolshevism." In white was written: "Destroy the Red corruption."

Police said leaflets were found calling for resistance against "selling out Germany," signed by an organization calling itself

"European Liberation Front."

Police were under orders from the British not to speak to newsmen about the incident but an investigator at the scene said: "Whoever they were, they left few clues."

A British spokesman declared: "We have no evidence that there is a connection between the shooting incident and the signs that were found."

He also disclosed that the British had responded to a protest from the Soviet Embassy in East Berlin over the incident.

"A member of British military government," the spokesman said, "called on a member of the Soviet Embassy to express to the Russians the deep regret

5 Acquitted of Isla Vista Blaze; Hung Jury for 6

SANTA BARBARA (UPI) — Five of 11 young persons charged with firebombing the Isla Vista branch of the Bank of America last Feb. 25 were found innocent of felony arson charges Saturday.

There were hung juries in the cases of the other six defendants. Five were charged with arson and the other attempted arson.

A crowd of 150 persons, most of them students at University of California at Santa Barbara, cheered the Superior Court verdict as a victory.

The district attorney's office indicated it would seek retrials in the other six felony cases.

Acquitted of the arson charges were Robert Jorgenson, 20; Walter Chesnavich, 24; Robert Langfelder, 26; Norman Roberts, 22, and Emily Defalla, 19.

There were no verdicts in the arson cases of Chris Sherman, 19; Marc Rubald, 21; Robert Jorgenson, 21; Richard Edward Fisk, 20,

To get action, write ACTION LINE, Box 230, Long Beach, Calif. 90801, or dial 432-3451 between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m. Monday through Friday. Questions to be answered are selected for their general interest and helpfulness.

Jamaica Farewell?

Q. Can you please help me? I was in the West Indies and on Aug. 22, I ordered a dress from Jolie Madame Fashions, Upstairs City Centre 134, Montego Bay, Jamaica, P.O. Box 260. I paid them $50 for the dress and $3.50 for postage. They said I would get it in two to three weeks. Could you help me get the dress or a refund? M. C., Long Beach.

A. ACTION LINE contacted the Jamaican Consulate in Torrance and gave them the information you gave us. A spokesman there said they would write to the dress shop and if they didn't get a satisfactory answer from them, they would then write to one of the ministries in Kingston, Jamaica, and ask them to investigate the matter.

Medicare Supplement

Q. I received an advertising flyer describing a mail-order medicare supplement insurance policy. I've received so many of these offers, all promising the moon for such a small price. On my limited income, I'd like to be sure that what this company offers is actually worth the premium, in this case $3 per month. Can ACTION LINE advise? Mrs. E. S., Long Beach.

A. "Despite their claims to pay everything not covered by Medicare, this particular policy as well as many others of this type, in my opinion, is just not worth the price of the premium, small though it may be," according to Jack Hanstein, local insurance agent. Hanstein studied a copy of the actual policy offered by this company and said, "They don't cover the Medicare $52 deductible, nor do they pay any doctors' fees. The policy would only pay $13 per day for the 61st through the 90th days of hospitalization (a fraction of the cost) and $26 per day for any hospitalization past 90 days. Medicare pays all hospital expenses for the first 60 days and can pick up the tab for another 60 days, under its lifetime reserve plan." Hanstein also said the medicare supplement policy will not cover any extended care facilities after the patient leaves the hospital, nor will it pay convalescent hospital bills nor rehabilitation center costs.

More Hospitalization?

Q. I'm retired and recently have been swamped with ads for insurance to supplement Medicare. How can I pick a good one? M. R., Long Beach.

A. Generally, you get what you pay for in insurance. There are no bargains and you are not going to get much coverage for a couple of dollars a month. Insurance companies are profit-making businesses — they are not philanthropic organizations. They must take in so much money to be prepared to pay out expected claims determined by actuarial tables they all operate by. There may be variations in premiums for similar coverage by different companies but they will be small. Mail order insurance might be slightly cheaper than others by cutting down on such expenses as local agents' commissions. But this can be more than offset by the difficulty of having to press claims by mail — a problem ACTION LINE has learned often can not be resolved. Paul

Nixon in Strategy Session

Domestic Problems Cited as Central Issue in Meeting

KEY BISCAVNE, Fla. (UPI) — President Nixon huddled for more than five hours Saturday with seven of his most trusted political advisers for a detailed post-election strategy session.

The White House declined to reveal specifics of the private meeting except to announce its duration.

Following the session, Nixon flew by helicopter to Grand Cay, a private island in the Bahamas owned by his New York industrial friend, H. Robert Abplanalp.

The President, accompanied by F.B.I. is investigating whether shots were fired during San Jose demonstration involving President Nixon's limousine. See Page A-4.

nied by C.G. "Bebe" Rebozo was expected to spend the rest of the weekend on Grand Cay, probably returning to Florida on Monday.

The White House said Nixon's meeting with political aides, including his own two presidential election campaign managers, was a discussion of long-range plans for administration domestic programs.

There seemed little doubt, however, that the results of Tuesday's elections were high on the agenda.

Nixon proclaimed the election a victory but he was known to have been disappointed by Republican losses of several key governorships.

The President met privately in his office at the winter White House compound with Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, manager of his 1968 presidential

CANADIANS HUNT OTHERS

Student Admits Laporte Kidnap, Denies Murder

MONTREAL (UPI) — A 19-year-old student, looking shaken and teary-eyed, told a surprised coroner's inquest Saturday that he helped kidnap Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte, but did not help kill him.

Bernard Lortie, one of five prime suspects, told the inquest into the death of Laporte that he kidnaped the labor minister, together with brothers Paul and Jacques Rose, still being hunted across North America.

Lortie indicated the group decided on the kidnaping only on the day it was carried out.

The mother of the Rose brothers, testifying through tears, called her sons "good - for - nothing bums." She identified clothing found in the house where Laporte was held as belonging to her sons. But said they were with her in Texas when British diplomat James R. Cross was kidnaped Oct. 5.

Cross, whose kidnaping began the chain of events in the Canadian crisis, was still believed Saturday to be a hostage of the Quebec Liberation Front (FLQ), the French Canadian separatist terrorists who claimed credit for the kidnapings and murder.

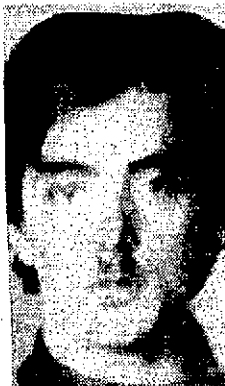

Mrs. Barbara Cross, the diplomat's wife, left Montreal Friday "to make a short visit to close friends in Europe," but is "keeping in closest touch with developments," the British Trade Commission office said.

Meanwhile, a new photo showing a man believed to be Cross — the second forwarded by his kidnapers this week — was found by a reporter for the French language newspaper Journal de Montreal Saturday, accompanied by a communique from the outlawed group.

Lortie testified that it was decided to kidnap Laporte because of the government's refusal to give in to the ransom demands set by the FLQ for the life of Cross. A turnaround of the demands was broadcast only 15 minutes before Laporte was kidnaped.

Instead of complying with demands, including release of "political prisoners," in return for the freeing of Cross, the federal government had invoked the stringent War Measures Act and begun a roundup of suspected members of French-Canadian separatist groups.

The witness said the Rose brothers obtained machine guns from a Notre Dame Street pawnshop Oct. 10. The group phoned the Laporte

First Family Will Spend Holidays in White House

KEY BISCAVNE, Fla. (UPI) — The first family plans to celebrate Thanksgiving and Christmas in the White House this year. But Mrs. Nixon's staff director, Connie Stuart, says the first lady likes to "do things differently" each year and wants to have a "new look" in the executive mansion at Christmastime.

This year the towering White House Christmas tree will be put up in the Blue Room instead of the entrance hall.

The First Lady also has decided to have a different motif in tinsel and decorations. Last year the Nixon tree featured colorful satin bulbs representing the 50 states with wide swatches of gold and greenery.

Rapist Suspect Disabled

Man Hunted as 'Phantom' Paralyzed for Life by Gunshot

By NOEL SWANN
Staff Writer

Long Beach's "phantom rapist" suspect may never walk again.

Albert Raymond Savage, 23, sought by police as the elusive burglar-rape who terrorized a number of Long Beach and Lakewood women, is paralyzed from the waist down after being shot in the spine by a Hammond, Ind., detective.

"And the chances are good he'll be paralyzed for life," said Dr. Alan Kaufman, Illinois neurosurgeon treating Savage in the intensive care unit of St. Margaret's Hospital, Hammond, where the suspect was under a heavy 24-hour guard Saturday.

Dr. Kaufman said a .38-caliber bullet fired by the detective after Savage tried to elude capture Thursday, severed the suspect's spinal cord in the lower region of the back. His condition Saturday night was described as "serious," but Dr. Kaufman said he does not believe Savage is in danger of dying.

SAVAGE'S capture in Hammond followed his escape from that city's jail Wednesday after he'd been picked up the day before and booked on suspicion of burglary.

But while Hammond police have first call on Savage, Long Beach police and Los Angeles Sheriff's detectives have more than a passing interest in the man.

Orange County teen-agers are not only apparently sexually active, but the girls are, in increasing numbers, planning to circumvent the consequences of their activity.

Some of the statistics: — One of every four births to women under 20 is illegitimate.

— Fifty-seven percent of all foetal deaths in this age group occur in illegitimate pregnancies.

— Applicants at nine county family planning clinics have doubled in one year.

— Abortion counseling caseload at a privately-supported Planned Parenthood Assn. Clinic has risen 15 per cent per month, each month since the beginning of this year.

— Seventy per cent of those seen are under 21, and 80 per cent of these are single.

— A newly opened Problem Pregnancy counseling Service has had a little more than 500 applicants in three months, half of them under 21. They are now seeing an average of 35 a week, and are counseling almost that many on the phone.

During the first three months of this year, in a survey of 660 abortions performed at hospitals in the county, 18.6 per cent of the patients were under 20, and 60 per cent were 20-29. The facts disturb many parents.

They also disturb those who work with the subjects of the statistics.

Says Dr. Emma Wharton, medical director of the county's Maternal and Child Health Division: "The incredible thing is the blind refusal of most parents to face the fact that their youngsters are sexually active."

Counselors at both family planning and abortion counseling offices are also concerned at the communication gap between most of the clients and their parents, but none of them act as intermediaries.

Why the increases, and are they peculiar to Orange County?

Again, Dr. Wharton: "The therapeutic abortion law has been in effect since November, 1967, but many doctors have been reluctant to perform the operations. Gradually, with dissemination of information and increasing requests, that reluctance is decreasing.

"Also, youngsters today are much more open about sex. They don't feel it's wrong, and they're less reluctant to seek birth control information or abortions."

Statewide, abortions have jumped from 5,000 in 1968 to 15,000 last year. Public Health Department estimates for this year are 60,000. The Los Angeles-based Clergy Counseling Service for Problem Pregnancies reports 3,000 applicants in the past five months and the director observed "the average age is lower than it was a year ago, and the minors are coming in much sooner."

Los Angeles County family planning clinics and youth clinics report marked increases since the first of this year.

NEW RULING

Until last month advice obtainable at any of the Orange County clinics or counseling services included the fact that pregnant minors were entitled to abortion without parental consent (if other requirements of the law were met.)

On October 21, the state appeals court ruled that unmarried pregnant girls under 21 and still under parents' control must have parental consent for an abortion.

The effect of the ruling, say medical men and counselors, is that emancipation (when a minor lives apart from her parents and manages her own finances) or parental consent must now be affirmed at the hospital.

In fact, says Myron Weeks, executive director of Planned Parenthood Association, Orange County hospitals are now turning pregnant girls away unless their parents are along. Written consent isn't enough.

Thus, the ruling may mean that girls still living at home and afraid to tell their parents, or those whose parents refuse consent, may turn to self-induced or illegal abortions.

'ARCHAIC'

Wayne Lamont, a director at the newly opened Problem Pregnancy Counseling Service in Orange, declares:

"The ruling is archaic and antihuman. For the youngster who cannot communicate with her parents, this decision means she'll have to go back to the underground abortion."

Says Dr. Wharton: "A pregnant female comes to her majority because she is pregnant. She becomes a minor again after she delivers. Thus, it would seem the court ruling is contrary to a 1953 law that has been on the books and in common usage which says she doesn't need parental consent for any hospital, medical or surgical care related to pregnancy."

However, the 2-1 court ruling, in effect, says that abortion — ending a life — is not included in "care related to pregnancy." The ruling will probably be appealed, say legal counsels of the California Hospital Association.

Weeks says, "The ruling will throw a scare into the girls and send them back to the underground... I think it will surely be appealed..."

The ruling is not expected to affect counseling or caseloads at the nine county clinics nor at the Planned Parenthood Association office in Orange where potential patients have always been told they might have to have consent forms signed, according to Weeks.

Counselor Nikki Weingart at the Problem Pregnancy Counseling service said the new ruling will mean telling girls that "when you go to the hospital, you'll be asked to sign a statement saying you're an emancipated minor — or you'll be asked for written consent of a parent." Neither Mrs. Weingart nor Lamont feel the ruling will affect their caseload. "It won't affect the number of pregnancies," they agree.

PLANNING IS NEW

The heart of the problem — unwanted pregnancies — has existed since boys and girls.

But family planning counseling, on anything but a partial basis, is relatively new to the county. It was available, starting in the mid-30's, as part of the total county health department program, but on a limited scale.

In 1965, at the prodding of Planned Parenthood Association, a weekly clinic opened at the county medical center. Demand soon brought two other county facilities, and by 1969, there were such long waiting lists that the county applied for federal grants to finance six other clinics. Three of these are weekly; three are open twice a month. They are accessible to "central area" residents with minimum incomes in eight cities, all are free, and all but one operate at night by appointment.

In five years, in addition to counseling 8,200 young women, (Pap tests, serology tests, examinations, and contraceptives are part of the service) the clinics have discovered 34 cancer cases, three diabetes, and an average of one case of venereal disease per week.

The privately financed Planned Parenthood Association clinic, in operation three years, is open five days and three nights a week, and is counseling about 120 pregnant minors each month. About four of every five of these want abortions and are referred to doctors; those who don't want to abort are referred to agencies or homes. Complete medical facilities and personnel are at the clinic: pregnancy, Pap, and serology tests, contraceptives or pills. Fees average $15 for a visit which includes examinations and contraceptives.

The director of the clinic says about 40 per cent of those seeking abortions become Medi-Cal patients and about half of them go to Los Angeles county hospitals.

county except Santa Ana Community Hospital require a psychiatric evaluation (which adds $25-$50 to the total bill, and which many Los Angeles County hospitals waive).

What kind of girl is swelling the birth control and abortion counseling caseload?

"The girl next door," counselors agree.

As a composite, she's white, middle class, Protestant and from a home where both parents live together. There's about one chance in three that she has had some experience with drugs.

PREGNANT AT 13

Youngest abortion candidate seen at the Problem Pregnancy Counseling office was 13. She decided she wanted the baby even though she didn't know who the father was. Later, however, she changed her mind about bringing a child into the world, and returned to the office, scheduled a second appointment and had an abortion.

Typical of the girls seen is 18-year-old Karen, one of four sisters, two of whom had to get married because they were pregnant.

"I talked it over with all my sisters and decided I couldn't tell Mom — it would kill her. I didn't know where to turn, but this man on the phone was so great (Director Larry Boyd, Problem Pregnancy Counseling) — I stopped being terrified... I was a little scared about the operation but I went in at 6 a.m. and left at 1 p.m. and had no problems... I'm going to school to be a vocational nurse now. This experience will help me be a better, kinder nurse, and you can believe I won't let this happen again — to me or to my little sister."

Counselor Weingart, 34, registered nurse, wife, mother of three, sums up the outlook at PPCS:

"Our ultimate goal is to put ourselves out of business. Meanwhile, we're an immediate resource for an immediate problem, which we handle on a very human basis. The time for moralizing is long past when girls get here. They need facts and calm, compassionate help. Then, afterwards, we go heavy on birth control — practically order them to a clinic or Planned Parenthood office."

DOUBLE DEATH

To Mrs. Weingart, who quit nursing for the lesser paying job as counselor, the rationale is clear for her decision.

"I remember a woman who had perforated her uterus with a crochet hook trying to abort. She died there in the hospital... Her husband just mumbled, 'We never wanted that one.' Will abortion counseling and birth control clinics continue to reflect the same under-21 influx?"

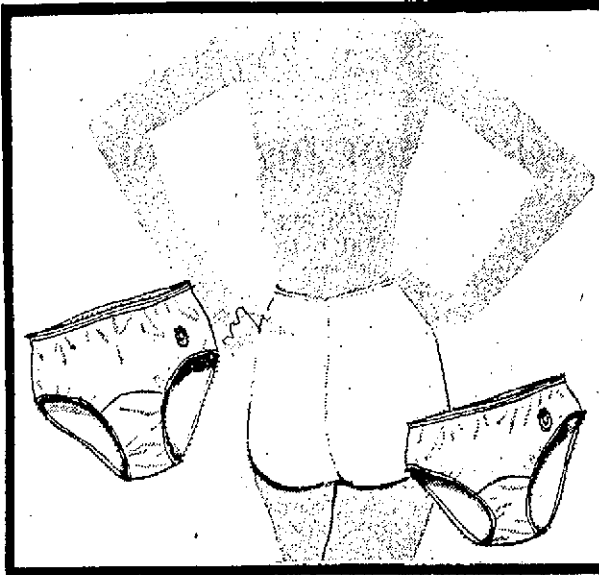

"Probably," says Dr. Wharton.

"Definitely," say Weeks and Lamont.

Dr. Wharton adds: "Applicants at all county facilities since we began five years ago total 8,200 today, and we estimate we will have seen more than 7,000 this year alone. Our counselors report more minors in recent months compared to, say, a year ago."

The real problem as far as abortions are concerned, physicians and counselors agree, is that the court ruling on parental consent for minors won't solve the problem it tried to solve — preservation of the health of both mother and unborn child.

The unemancipated pregnant minor who's afraid to tell her parents, or whose parents refuse consent, is much more apt to decide on abortion — self induced or illegal — than on giving birth. Under the ruling, she's ineligible for legal abortion in a licensed hospital.

At the Problem Pregnancy Counseling Service, all but about 5 per cent of the clients want abortions. All are asked to donate $10. as a counseling fee. Half of them become Medi-Cal patients, and the majority go to Los Angeles County hospitals for reasons explained by Mrs. Weingart:

— Most Orange County hospitals won't take Medi-Cal abortion patients.

"Very Much Happy," Said Near-Deportee

RENO, Nev. (AP) — "It might be a whirlwind courtship, but I feel like I've known him for a long time," said a 21-year-old bride whose Saturday marriage kept her new husband from being deported.

Contractor John Patania of San Jose, Calif., had heard the plight of his cement finishing employee, John Kovacevich, 22, and vowed to help.

He released the information Thursday to the press: Kovacevich had to get married by Sunday to avoid deportation to his native Yugoslavia because his visa would expire Tuesday.

Christine Green, a 5-foot-2 sandy blonde from Cupertino, Calif., was one of 150 girls who responded — and was chosen.

"They just looked at each other and it happened," said Patania.

Christine, standing next to her husband in the lobby of Harrahs hotel, said, "It's nice." The hotel provided the couple with a free weekend bash.

"I don't know what to say," said Kovacevich, who appeared to be in a slight state of shock, but leaned over and kissed his new wife — twice. "I am very much happy," he said in his halting English. "I like her."

HARRAHS provided the couple with a bridal suite and escorted them in a chauffeur-driven Rolls Royce to the Washoe County Courthouse where they were married.

campaign; counselor Robert H. Finch, manager of his 1960 race for the presidency; counselor Bryce N. and H. R. Haldeman, assistants to the President; Donald Rumsfeld, director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, and Charles Colson, special counsel to the President.

White House spokesmen minimized the political overtones of the meeting. Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the session was intended to plan domestic programs for the next two years.

But the session coincided with publication in Knight newspapers, including the Miami Herald, of an interview with Herbert L. Klein, Nixon's communications director, which said the President plans to redo his "image" before his expected race for re-election.

Klein was quoted as saying the administration will attempt to build public confidence in Nixon's handling of domestic affairs to match his already high public standing as a manager of the nation's foreign policy.

Klein also was quoted as saying that the President plans to soft-pedal the law-and-order theme which he stressed during his 15,000-mile campaign swing through 22 states on behalf of Republican candidates in Tuesday's congressional elections.

Bruce Wheelihan, an assistant press secretary, said Klein was "expressing his own views." Wheelihan said the White House would have no official comment on the story.

Reported Gunfire Near President at San Jose Probed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI is investigating whether shots were fired during demonstrations against President Nixon's pre-election visit in San Jose, Calif., it was learned Saturday.

Agents questioned newsmen who were traveling with Nixon to determine whether they heard anything that sounded like the discharge of a rifle or a gun.

ONE AGENT indicated there had been a report of gunfire during the Oct. 29 incident. Several eggs, rocks and bottles thrown from among a crowd of about 1,000 demonstrators hit the presidential limousine carrying Nixon, Gov. Ronald Reagan and Sen. George Murphy of California.

The questioning of newsmen was the first indication authorities suspected anything other than eggs, rocks and bottles were used during the incident.

The incident occurred when Nixon emerged from the San Jose civic auditorium where he spoke in behalf of Reagan and Murphy, both seeking re-election.

Nixon climbed onto the hood of his limousine, faced the demonstrators and flashed his familiar double "V" for victory signal.

WHEN ASKED why the President did that to an obviously hostile crowd, White House aides said there were supporters in the crowd and he was greeting them as he normally does. Other aides said, however, they thought there was an element of defiance in the President's gesture.

Newsmen who talked with White House aides and Secret Service agents shortly after the incident received no indication gunfire was suspected. A spokesman for the San Jose Police Department said the department had not heard of a shot being fired.

MORTON SAYS HE WON'T QUIT

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republican National Chairman Rogers C. B. Morton said Saturday he has no intention of resigning his GOP post despite growing rumors he is unhappy over his lack of influence at the White House.

"I have no intention of resigning," Morton said when contacted at his farm on Maryland's Eastern Shore Peninsula.

His denial was echoed by his No. 1 associate, Deputy GOP National Chairman James Allison, who said he spoke to Morton Friday about the speculation. Allison said Morton told him he "has no plans at this time to resign."

The Miami Herald said Saturday in a story from Washington by Lyle Miller Jr. that Morton would resign probably by the end of the year because of his dissatisfaction.

3 COMMUNIST LEADERS REVIEW PARADE ON 53RD ANNIVERSARY OF REVOLUTION

Muscovites Red Soldier Shot in West Berlin Celebrate Revolution

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet leaders and thousands of Muscovites came to Red Square in a snowstorm Saturday to celebrate the 53rd anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution and saw a massive display of rocketry paraded. Top U.S. diplomats boycotted the festivities.

Defense Minister Andrei A. Grechko denounced U.S. "intervention" in Vietnam but refrained from the rocket rattling that once was a standard part of the annual Red Square parades.

The top-ranking U.S. diplomats in Moscow snubbed the parade and a later Kremlin reception as part of a worldwide boycott ordered by Washington.

AN EMBASSY spokesman said the boycott was staged because two U.S. generals have been in Soviet hands for 17 days. The generals are being held for investigation of violation of Soviet airspace.

But lesser American attaches watched the parade to get a close look at the rockets, tanks and artillery. The attaches reported that the weaponry was the same "down to the last nut and bolt" as that displayed last year.

Grechko opened the day's festivities by blaming unnamed "imperialists" for starting "acute international conflicts in various regions of the world."

Communist party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev, Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and President Nikolai V. Podgorny flanked Grechko and were accompanied by several other Kremlin leaders on the traditional reviewing platform atop the marble Lenin mausoleum.

of the British commandant at the incident which occurred at the war memorial and to assure him that full investigation was immediately put in hand to trace the person responsible for this disgraceful attack."

A few hours after the shooting, a Red army honor guard and band paraded by the memorial just inside West Berlin near the Brandenburg Gate. Also on hand to lay wreaths were a number of Russian generals and the Soviet ambassador to East Germany, Pyotr Abrassimov. This is done annually on revolution day.

Abrassimov arrived at the scene by passing through the Communist wall dividing Berlin, with an armed guard of Russian soldiers with fixed bayonets in jeeps in front of and behind his limousine.

soldiers at the scene indicated they believed whoever did the shooting fired from across the street fronting the memorial, a street more than 100 yards wide. One sergeant called it a "pretty far shot."

400,000 U.S. Children in Danger of Poisoning

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Surgeon General Jesse U. Steinfeld announced guidelines Saturday for a nationwide campaign against lead poisoning, which he said may affect as many as 400,000 children and cause mental retardation or death.

Lead poisoning occurs mainly in city slums where dwellings are old and children eat the paint peeling from walls, doors and window frames.

Lead-based paints were commonly used for house interiors until the 1940s but have largely been replaced by less-hazardous paints. However, they are still used for exteriors of dwellings.

In a statement, Steinfeld said it was urgent that more cities establish programs to locate and treat children suffering from lead poisoning and to remove lead-based paint.

Mother Learns She Hit, Killed Own Son

KENNEWICH, Wash. (UPI) — Betty Lou Hodson, 46, had not known that the car she was driving Friday evening had struck an unlighted bicycle, killing the rider, on a limited access road half a mile from her home. But eventually state troopers caught up with her and told her what had happened.

Even so, the state patrol said today, it was "some time" before Mrs. Hodson was notified of the identity of the victim. It was her 11-year-old son, Brian.

'Phantom Rapist' Suspect Paralyzed by Shot in Back

Detectives traveled to Hammond Saturday to question Savage about a number of burglary-rape activities in Lakewood and "also about a number of unsolved murders in Los Angeles County," according to Lt. Richard Griffin.

He stressed however that the questioning on the unsolved murders was of a "general, routine" nature and that detectives had no specific cause to link Savage with the slayings.

SHERIFF'S deputies in any event hold a no-bail warrant against Savage relating to his escape from Los Angeles County jail while awaiting trial on charges of carrying a concealed weapon stemming from an arrest in Lakewood last March.

(Savage and two other inmates escaped by sawing through the bars in their cell on the second floor of the jail. The two others were captured soon afterwards, but Savage was not heard of again until his capture in Hammond last week.)

Meanwhile, Long Beach police have asked Hammond officers to put a hold on Savage against a $125,000-bail warrant signed May 29 charging 10 counts of burglary during which nine of the victims were raped.

The warrant also sought Savage for unlawful flight. Hammond police said Savage was one of two men trapped in a house by patrolmen answering a burglary call there Tuesday night.

THEY SAID he gave the name of Albert Johnson with an address in Illinois. The pair was booked and jailed, but Savage escaped mysteriously the following day.

ALBERT R. SAVAGE

Acting on a tip Thursday, a detective went to a Hammond location and confronted Savage. But Savage tried to flee after preliminary questioning, police said, and the detective felled him after firing three warning shots in the air.

A check with FBI records during the time he was being held in jail revealed that the man using the alias of Johnson was in fact Savage, Hammond police said.

The "phantom rapist's" reign of terror in the Long Beach-Lakewood area began early in 1969.

LONG BEACH police believe at least 29 burglaries most of which included the rape and often a physical attack on the victims, were committed by a man using a method of operation that led to his nickname, "The Phantom Rapist."

In one of the cases attributed to the phantom, his victim died after the sexual attack.

In most cases the phantom would enter a home between the hours of midnight and 6 a.m. then wake his victim by pressing a pillow over her face and warning her not to scream.

He'd then order her on to her stomach and bind her hands behind her back with rope or cord brought with him. After rolling the victim over, he'd stuff a cloth gag into her mouth and cover her head with a pillow case before the attack.

In at least two of the attacks, the phantom became violent, stabbing the father of one of his victims and beating another victim with his fists. The woman who died had been choked by the phantom.

ONE OF HIS victim's was the 56-year-old wife of a Long Beach business executive. The man was bound to the bed at his wife's side while the phantom, brandishing a gun, assaulted the woman and beat her.

In spite of the sporadic bursts of violence, many of his victims described him as soft-spoken and gentle, in some instances saying he apologized for the attack. The ages of his victims ranged from 15 to 75.

The nature of the phantom's crimes and his apparent elusiveness spurred police to undertake one of the most intensive investigations possible.

A team of Long Beach police and the major-crimes unit of the sheriff's office worked together for more than a year in an attempt to capture the man. In fact such a bounty was placed on his capture that Long Beach's Sgt. K. G. Schack was pulled off all other duty for five months this year and given the 24-hour-a-day job of ending the phantom's reign.

Pollution Chief Feared Official 'Pork Barreling'

By GILBERT BAILEY
Contributing Editor

SAN FRANCISCO — Fear of "pork barreling and back scratching" by the State Legislature led to defeat of Proposition 18, the clean air amendment to the state Constitution, a top official of the Los Angeles Air Pollution Control Board said at a three-day national conference ending here today.

Robert M. Barsky, deputy air pollution control officer for PACD, rising to meet criticism at the National Conference on Environmental Law here, strongly defended his district and then added:

"Knowing the Legislature as I do, I did not want to see an orgy of pork barreling and back scratching."

Barsky was defending his and Robert Chass, air pollution control officer for Los Angeles County's opposition to Proposition 18, which was defeated at the polls Tuesday.

"I question putting such a juicy tidbit before the Legislature," he added under questioning.

The amendment would have allowed the Legislature to allocate gas tax monies from highways to research on air pollution.

When questioned about possible air pollution violations in Los Angeles County, Barsky said "there are few if any violations; no major violations."

He contended that smog will be eliminated in the Los Angeles Basin between 1975 and 1980.

When asked about a report from the technical advisory committee to the State Air Resources Board which says smog cannot be eliminated by present technology and pollution control methods, he replied:

"I don't really care. That's my opinion and I believe I have as good credentials as anybody in the state of California."

Barsky also attacked but not by name, a member of the Los Angeles Environmental Quality Control Committee, a committee set up to advise the Board of Supervisors on environmental matters. He said one member of the committee violated a secrecy pledge to reveal his opposition to Proposition 18.

The chairman of the subcommittee, which met on Proposition 18, was the county engineer. He had decided on the secrecy rule for the public committee.

The person which first made Barsky's opinion known was Mrs. Ellen Stern Harris who had suggested the county committee advise the board on its feelings on Proposition 18. Barsky was critical of Mrs. Harris for raising the issue.

Barsky's remarks came during a panel on air pollution during the National Conference on Environmental Law, which has drawn 600 lawyers from throughout the United States.

Some of the audience was critical of Barsky and when he was citing the Los Angeles district's record on prosecuting violators, a clamor arose from a portion of the audience.

"Don't ho ho," said Barsky.

Sen. Jackson Expects 'a Belligerent Soviet'

THE HAGUE (UPI) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said Saturday the western world can expect greater belligerency from the Soviet Union, which, stronger than ever, will never again accept a diplomatic defeat like the Cuban missile crisis of 1962.

Jackson said the Russians have achieved nuclear equality with the U.S. and their goal apparently is to keep moving toward nuclear superiority.

home in suburban St. Lambert and when told the minister was outside, then they went to the house and abducted him.

But Lortie said he did not witness the murder because he had left the house near St. Hubert Airport, where Laporte was held hostage, early the morning of Oct. 17. Paul Rose had left Oct. 14, afraid that he might be recognized and picked up by police, Lortie said.

The witness said he believed only Jacques Rose and another suspect, Francis Simard, remained at the house Oct. 17 when Pierre Laporte was strangled, apparently with the chain of a religious medal he wore about his neck.

At one point during his confinement at the house, Laporte attempted to escape by a bedroom window but was pulled back into the house by Jacques Rose, Lortie said.

Lortie said the five superficial wounds noted by Dr. Jean Paul Valcour, who performed the autopsy on Laporte's body Oct. 18, were a result of the episode and that it was he who bandaged the cuts.

Boy 'Erred' in Loading Gun, Dies

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The coroner's report on the death of James Vickers Jr., 17, Rio Linda, simply said: "Victim miscalculated the way the chamber of the gun was filled."

The high school student was visiting at the home of his girlfriend Friday. He had a .38-caliber pistol with some bullets.

VICKERS placed three bullets in the five-shot chamber, pointed it at his chest and told her, "Watch this."

He squeezed the trigger and the gun went off.

Coroner's deputies said death was instantaneous.

Provincial police said Lortie was arrested Friday in Montreal. There were unconfirmed reports two young women were arrested with him.

The first witness was lawyer Pierre Lapoint, a close friend of the Laporte family who identified the late cabinet minister body at the provincial morgue Oct. 18, just hours after it was found stuffed into the trunk of a car abandoned near the St. Hubert Airport Oct. 17.

The second witness was Dr. Jean Paul Valcour who performed the autopsy Oct. 18. He offered no information regarding Laporte's murder not contained in the autopsy report.

Security precautions were heavy at the provincial police headquarters building where the coroner's courtroom being used for the inquest is located. The building itself was heavily guarded and newsmen covering the hearing were searched by police before entering the courtroom.

GM, Union Agreement Seen Near Weekend Session Expected to Halt 2-Month Strike

DETROIT (AP) — Signs grew by bits and pieces Saturday that General Motors and the United Auto Workers were in make-or-break negotiations to halt a strike now nearing the end of its eighth week.

Whether a stepped up bargaining will bring settlement or result in continued stalemate is expected to be known Wednesday.

A special subcommittee of negotiators has been operating for the past nine days under a news blackout, and top-level sources have indicated in the past three days there has been progress toward possible settlement.

Negotiators called a recess Saturday night, until today. It had appeared for a time Saturday they might be entering a marathon session.

The Saturday session lasted 8½ hours, and a few hours before it broke up GM Chairman James M. Roche expressed hope of settlement and said both sides were working hard.

The UAW has summoned its General Motors Council, usually called in the wake of settlement, to meet in Detroit Wednesday. But it insists the call is necessary to plan for continuance of the strike if, in its words, "GM decides to force continuance."

The union also advised 350 GM Council members to "come prepared to stay should that be necessary."

The International Union of Electrical Workers, IUE, which represents 32,000 nonstriking workers in six GM plants, also has summoned its bargaining team to meet here Wednesday. There are currently more than 14,000 IUE members laid off because of the UAW's strike.

Negotiations first began July 15 — more than 3½ months ago, and the UAW called the strike Sept. 15, 55 days ago, to support its wide-ranging demands for increases in wages and fringe benefits.

The strike has idled more than 400,000 in GM plants in the U.S. and Canada and has caused the layoff of thousands more in auto-related industries.

SPECIAL PUDDLE FOR HIM

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A plane is due to arrive here Monday from the University of Miami at Ohio. It will carry one VIF passenger — a Very Important Frog.

"Just any old frog does not rate a special flight but this one is a sort of one in a billion — first he is an albino and secondly there is a saddle on his back," said a spokesman at the University of Michigan here.

Michigan zoologists were busy this weekend preparing for the arrival of the animal, named the Guttman saddle frog after the University of Miami biologist Sheldon Guttman who found it in a pond.

The Michigan scientists hope to breed the frog and study its offspring for clues to human birth defects.

George W. Nace, a Michigan zoologist, said albino frogs occur about one in every 1.5 million frogs while the Guttman is a one in a billion rarity. He said the saddle frog's genes apparently "got scrambled and made the skin come out wrong."

5 Prisoners Killed MANILA (UPI) — Five inmates at the national penitentiary in Muntinlupa, 20 miles east of Manila, were killed and 11 others were injured in two outbreaks of fighting Saturday, the Philippine News Service said.

Yanks Rush to Beat Mexican Divorce Deadline

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (UPI) — Americans seeking speedy court dissolution of their marriages streamed into this Mexican border city in heavy numbers Saturday to beat a change in the law at midnight abolishing quickie divorces.

The local bar association, however, scoffed at the rush to the courts, described by one veteran clerk as a "panic," and insisted little would change with the new law.

But the divorce seekers were not convinced. During the last 72 hours, 720 applications for a divorce decree were filed in Ciudad Juarez' three civil courts, about three times the usual number.

"It's like panic here," said a longtime clerk. "Everybody's shoving and pushing at the court offices."

The new state of Chihuahua law establishes stringent residence requirements for divorces. The state government passed the measure under strong pressure from the federal government in Mexico City to "dignify the image of Mexico where the family is held in high esteem."

Under the old law, only 24 hours was required for legal residence to qualify for a divorce and only one spouse had to be present in court. Publication in a local daily newspaper in Ciudad Juarez, even if the other partner lived in New York City or Milan, Italy, was sufficient notification.

The new law requires three months residence instead of one day and both spouses must be present for a decree to be granted. If a couple has children, they too must be there for the awarding of custody.

Retiring Pilot Charters Jet for Family Flight

KANSAS CITY (U) — Capt. Ben Gistad, who retires as a Trans World Airlines pilot Nov. 16 at age 60, marked the occasion Saturday by chartering a jetliner and taking 96 relatives on an aerial sightseeing tour over northeast Kansas.

The flight was part of a family reunion.

Gistad chartered a Boeing 707 for a flight at $1,300 an hour, complete with stewardesses. He provided his own copilot, his nephew Capt. A. Gistad, also a TWA pilot.

As the flight took off, the hostess made the customary announcements and greeted the passengers:

"Good morning, ladies and gentlemen. Welcome aboard Ben's special flight."

Ben's wife, Frieda, became the travel booking agent for the project.

"He told me three weeks ago he wanted to take his family flying before he retired. It was hectic to get the family all together on such short notice, but Ben had his mind set on an idea he conceived a year ago and had given me only three weeks to carry out."

The 96 relatives ranged in age from three weeks to 85 years.

"Most of the relatives are farmers and have little opportunity to fly on large commercial aircraft," Gistad said. "I just wanted to get the crowd together and take them flying over their homes before my retirement."

The family's reaction? Louis Kloepper, Gistad's 62-year-old father-in-law, put it this way:

"It's the best way in the world to shop for a farm."

Merit Cited as New Key to Job of Postmaster

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Postmaster General Winston M. Blount said Saturday 5,000 postmaster vacancies in the United States will be filled soon on a nonpolitical, merit basis for the first time.

He said first consideration would be given to qualified postal career employees.

The vacancies accumulated during the Nixon Administration's struggle to get postal reform legislation through Congress. President Nixon signed it into law Aug. 12.

National and regional management selection boards have been identifying qualified personnel for the past 17 months, Blount said, and appointments will begin soon.

"For the first time, postmasters will be appointed on the basis of qualifications, without regard to political influence," Blount said.

Next Jan. 1 the Post Office Department will be replaced by a nonprofit corporation that will function independently of the executive branch. Since the department was created 105 years ago, postmasters have been named by presidential appointment with congressional approval.

Blount said Nixon did not fill the vacancies in order "to remove the last vestiges of politics from the postal system," and to enable the Civil Service System to find qualified postmasters within the ranks of employees.

In the case of unfilled vacancies, Blount said, selections will be made on the basis of Civil Service examinations.

Picnic Coolers Termed Potential Death Traps

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For some reason kids like to crawl into things.

They also like to shut up other kids in the places into which they have crawled.

It's a merry event for the neighborhood children when a householder puts a big cardboard packing case in the yard for them to play in.

But crawling into things, or being shut up in them, can be a dangerous game.

A while back, before manufacturers quit using self-locking doors, junked refrigerators killed a lot of youngsters every year.

But who would have thought that the much smaller picnic coolers, which are standard household equipment for many a family, also could be a menace to kids at play?

BUT they are, and the National Bureau of Standards — which gets involved in such matters — is trying to make the picnic cooler safe for children.

In a recent investigation the bureau studied 16 cases in which children were killed by entrapment in portable coolers.

"Picnic coolers present a problem," the NBS reported, "because they are designed to be relatively airtight and have good insulation characteristics so that they might hold food and drink at low temperatures.

"These same characteristics may mean death for an entrapped child, however, because once locked in, his air supply is cut off and his cries for help are muffled.

"He can do little but wait for death."

A majority of the 16 cases studied involved coolers with self-locking lids. Once slammed, the lids could not be opened from inside. The study showed that children ranging in age from 1½ to six years had died in coolers.

COOLERS only 10 inches wide, 20 inches long, and 12 inches deep (about 1½ cubic feet) had proved big enough to entomb a child.

The NBS and the two dozen U.S. firms who make coolers are investigating ways of making coolers safe by design changes that will keep children out of them or assure their escape.

It has been decided to get rid of self-locking mechanisms. Another proposed standard would require that all lids would be opened from inside with a force of 10 pounds or less.

But coolers incorporating such safety factors cannot be put on the market before 1971. Meanwhile, picnic coolers stored in the attic or elsewhere where children can get at them are still a danger.

The NBS recommends a few simple precautions:

—Unhinge the lids, remove the latches, put in a cinder block or something else to reduce the "crawl space" available to a child.

—Attach a bar divider to the inside wall to make it impossible for a child to get in. (Write to the Office of Engineering Standards Services, National Bureau of Standards, Washington, D.C., 20234 for information on how to do this.)

Another precaution might be for parents to keep a closer watch on what their kids are doing. But this is outside the province of the NBS.

Kingdom Bans Entry of Hippies

KATMANDU, Nepal — Any visa applicant with "long hair and shabby clothes" will not be allowed to come to Nepal, the Himalayan kingdom once regarded as a haven by the international hippie set.

A government spokesman said Saturday anyone fitting that description will be refused entry as a hippie. The ban was imposed last month and the spokesman said Nepal's diplomatic missions around the world now are instructed to refuse visas to people they think are hippies.

The government has deported 35 hippies in the past month, and police said the goal is to make the kingdom hippie-free by the middle of December. This would end the traditional hippie-style Christmas celebrations in Nepal which featured mass smoking of hashish. Police estimated about 70 hippies remained in Katmandu.

JAPAN CLOSE TO JOINING 'ATOM CLUB'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dr. Herman Kahn, a specialist in national security policy planning, says Japan probably will become a nuclear power within the next five to 10 years.

Kahn, a physicist who directs the Hudson Institute, believes Japan's decision to join the nuclear club will come as an almost inevitable consequence of her continuing economic growth.

Japan is now the world's third greatest industrial power and Kahn believes she may equal the United States in Gross National Product in the next 30 years or so.

Accused Bank Bandit Gives Up

SAN JOSE (UPI) — Larry Francis Dare, 26, one of three men accused of a Honolulu bank robbery, surrendered to local police Friday and was turned over to the FBI.

Dare, who lives in San Francisco, said he heard from friends that agents were looking for him.

Dare, unemployed, was sought for the $2,770 robbery of the Waikiki branch of American Security Bank in Honolulu Oct. 19. Two other California men, Aslan G. Ecton, 28, and Steven P. Tinoco, 19, were arrested in Honolulu on the same charge.

Britons Don't Want Crippled Oil Tanker

LYME REGIS, England — The crippled tanker Pacific Glory, a leper ship shunned by England's southern ports, is to be towed into Lyme Bay today amid sharp protests from alarmed local inhabitants.

5 Acquitted of Isla Vista Fire; Hung Jury for 6

However, Langfelder, Sherman, Fisk and Hoiland were convicted on misdemeanor counts of participating in a riot.

Two apparent arson convictions collapsed in a dramatic courtroom scene after the jury returned at 9 a.m.

In signed verdicts the jury said that it had found Hoiland and Fisk guilty of arson.

But when defense lawyers made the usual request that the jury be polled, Judge Westwick asked the first juror, Joseph Keefe, if the guilty of arson verdict on Hoiland agreed with his findings.

"No, sir," Keefe replied.

There were gasps of disbelief in the packed, Spanish style courtroom.

"Is the verdict with regard to the defendant, Fisk, on Charge One (arson) yours," Westwick went on.

"No, sir," Keefe repeated in a barely audible voice.

Then Westwick asked Jury Foreman Ray Kubaki for an explanation.

"We had all voted for conviction once," Kubaki said. "He wanted to change his mind later, but we decided the original vote should stand." After polling the jury once again, and finding that all now agreed that Keefe's objections had rendered them hopelessly deadlocked, the judge ruled the arson charges, too, had resulted in a hung jury.

Brands of the California State Department of Insurance suggested you make sure a policy covers "pre-existing conditions" — most older persons' hospital care involves such conditions — and medical costs beyond just hospital expenses — such as doctors' bills and medications. He noted older persons rarely are hospitalized for extended periods. Most are treated for a short time in a hospital, then sent home to convalesce. So hospitalization beyond that covered by Medicare is not often needed.

Problem of the Seat

Q. Can ACTION LINE locate an outlet for caning and seat-weaving materials? We have 12 antique chairs we would like to repair but can't find the materials to do so. P. B., Lakewood.

A. You can purchase cane and rush seating materials from Cane and Basket Supply Co., 1283 S. Cochran Ave., Los Angeles. William Timpler, company spokesman, told ACTION LINE, "we have everything the home caner needs."

Graft Pays

Q. I have been looking without success for someone who can graft new buds from grown trees onto my tangerine and avocado seedlings. Can ACTION LINE help? I. C., Long Beach.

A. A semi-retired, former employee of Park Nursery and Florist in Long Beach still does this work for a minimum charge of $10 per tree. To arrange for this service, contact Donald Hamm, manager of Park Nursery, at 433-7413. Spokesmen from two nurseries told ACTION LINE that it is difficult to find people who still perform this service since most trees sold by nurseries already have been budded at a much earlier stage than your trees. Budding is done on a large scale by growers who take the buds from trees that produce good fruit and graft them onto the root stocks of trees noted for their strong roots. The spokesmen added that grafting a bud onto a branch of a seedling will produce fruit only on that part of the tree. They recommend buying a two-year-old tree that already has been budded at the roots.

Guard Moves Into N.C. Town After Violence

HENDERSON, N.C. — Gov. Bob Scott ordered 350 National Guardsmen into this northeastern North Carolina community Saturday after a night of fires and sporadic shooting which left a tobacco warehouse and a home destroyed.

City officials in Henderson reported no incidents Saturday. A total of 35 persons have been arrested.

THE GUARDSMEN were sent in to aid a 60-man contingent of North Carolina highway patrolmen which helped local authorities quell Friday night's disturbances and enforce a curfew for Henderson and all of Vance County. Sales of alcoholic beverages have been suspended.

Two white persons received minor injuries Friday night. City officials said tear gas was used after blacks began hurling rocks, bottles and bricks at policemen who were trying to break up a rally in front of the Vance County Board of Education office.

Racial tension in this community of 15,000 had been building for almost a month since school officials decided to reopen a previously all-black elementary school which had been closed under a desegregation plan.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare ordered the school closed again this week, but blacks continued to demonstrate for other demands.

ONE OF the two whites injured was pulled from his vehicle by young blacks and beaten. The other was a spectator at one of the fires who was hit in the head by a rock.

A Henderson fireman who may have armed himself against assault by snipers died Saturday of a head wound. Authorities said he dropped a pistol and it discharged. Officials said the victim, Lt. J. M. Hicks, 59, dropped the pistol on a cement floor in the Henderson fire station.

Dayan Favors Resumption of Mideast Peace Talks

United Press International
 Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan and Deputy Premier Yigal Allon spoke Saturday in favor of peace talks, under U.N. Mediator Gunnar V. Jarring, which have been boycotted by Israel since early September.

Neither Dayan nor Allon said, however, that Israel should resume talks before Egypt removes Soviet missiles the Israelis charge have been installed along the Suez Canal in violation of terms of the just-extended cease-fire.

The two leaders addressed a Haifa seminar

Mideast Talk Held 'Possible'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers said Saturday he "had some hope although nothing imminent" that Arab-Israeli peace talks can be resumed under U.N. mediator Gunnar V. Jarring.

Rogers commented on the prospects after returning from New York where he met with Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad on Friday and with Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban Saturday.

At Andrews Air Force Base, Rogers told UPI that his conversations in New York had been useful. He stressed, however, that in his exchanges with the Egyptian and Israeli foreign ministers there had been "nothing specific" to lead to expectations for an early resumption.

He said the meetings primarily were "an exchange of views on the situation after the General Assembly Mideast debate."

Israel interrupted the talks after discovering that Egypt, with the concurrence of the Soviet Union, had placed missiles in the prohibited zone west of the Suez Canal in violation of the U.S.-sponsored Mideast cease-fire provisions.

ORGY FOES ACT Equity Hits Nudity by Blackmail

LONDON (AP) — Britain's actors and actresses have begun a campaign against being "blackmailed" into appearing in nude orgy and sex scenes for films. They called for a charter forbidding this.

Peter Plouviez, assistant secretary of Equity, the actors' union, said Saturday, "More and more actors — and actresses especially — are being asked to appear nude. Sometimes moral blackmail is used and the danger is on the increase."

He said Equity had started to negotiate a safety charter for members with film studio bosses. The new charter, similar to one already negotiated for British theaters, will demand that studios spell out exactly what is required of actors and actresses in scenes before they sign a contract.

"Actresses are often told they will be required to take part in some nude scenes," Plouviez said. "But when they arrive for shooting they find that the script has been changed completely and they are asked to do much more."

Scared to Death
 LONDON (UPI) — A British doctor said Saturday emergency mobile medical units "that come screaming through traffic lights" may frighten some heart patients to death. Dr. Geoffrey Spencer, in charge of the intensive-care unit at St. Thomas Hospital, said in the Medical News Tribune there was evidence that patients rushed to the hospital were being scared to death.

just a day after Premier Golda Meir, returning from a U.S. visit, declared Israel would not resume peace negotiations, until the Egyptians pulled back the missiles.

Dayan told the seminar held by Mrs. Meir's Labor Party that peace talks under Jarring's auspices were the only real hopes for peace in the Mideast.

The Israeli state radio, reporting Dayan's remarks, interpreted them to mean he was calling for a resumption of the Jarring talks, which would put him in apparent disagreement with Mrs. Meir's stand.

Soon afterward, however, the Israeli defense ministry in an official statement said Dayan was referring to the decision to begin the talks three months ago and not about resumption of the talks now.

CHEMISTS REPAIR CANCER CELLS

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Princeton University announced Saturday that biochemists have stopped cancerous behavior in cells taken from animals and restored these cells to normal.

The university said, "The chemical, the scientists have found, repairs the surface damage found on cancerous cells, thereby causing them to return to normal growth behavior."

The discovery was made in laboratory experiments using a plant protein called Con A, or trypsinized Concanavalin A. This protein treated under laboratory conditions appears to have an effect on the runaway multiplication of cancerous cells.

"What is most interesting is that for the first time we have found that we can stop the wild multiplication of cells without completely killing them. And although we have not tested the process for an eternity we have found that a single dose of Con A prevents cancerous behavior for as long as the cell remains alive in vitro for six days," said Dr. Max A. Burger, 37, an associate professor of biochemical science.

In vitro refers to experiments involving cells removed from organisms and kept alive in cultures under artificial laboratory conditions.

A team of biochemists has now begun experiments on live mice.

Details of the effect of Con A on isolated cells were outlined in the Nov. 7 issue of Nature Magazine, a British scientific journal.

Burger, head of the research team, and Kenneth D. Noonan, 22, a graduate student from Broomall, Pa., authored the article. The researchers said that after a long series of experiments it was discovered that Con A when given special treatment would join singly with sites on the surface with cancer cells. Previously they had found that using Con A without extra laboratory treatment and material would join in several locations on the surface.

The experiments were conducted with cells taken from the connective tissue of mice that had been inoculated with a cancer producing virus.

Man Dies in Beach Plane Crash

One man was killed and another critically injured Saturday afternoon when their single-engine plane crashed at Huntington Beach State Park.

Edward Joseph Kirsch, 21, of Los Angeles, was fatally injured when he was thrown from the plane as it smashed onto the sand about 2 p.m., police said.

Rushed by ambulance to Hoag Memorial Hospital in Newport, Kirsch was pronounced dead on arrival at 2:15 p.m.

The pilot, Craig Minear, 24, Kirsch's neighbor in Los Angeles, was trapped in the wreckage for a short time. He was taken to Huntington Beach Intercommunity Hospital, where authorities said he was in critical condition.

Beachgoers told Huntington Beach police the small plane, flying low along the coast, dropped as it banked to the left and a wingtip dug into the sand less than 10 yards from the waterline.

The plane was demolished.

Police said the witnesses believed the pilot was having engine trouble and intended to try for a landing on the sand. He might have misjudged the distance or failed to see a six-foot drop-off in the sand, they surmised.

The aircraft was believed to have taken off from Santa Monica Municipal Airport for a trip along the coastline to San Diego.

Ammo Ship Sinks

Facts You Should Know About Lawson's Jewelers

Downtown Long Beach Only by
S. A. Kulick,
President
A MILLS STORE

Our store is owned and operated by Mills Jewelers, Inc. The founder of Mills Jewelers, Jacob Kulick, started as an apprentice watchmaker in 1910. By the age of 16, he was managing a department store jewelry store. In 1928 he started his own jewelry store in Niagara Falls, N. Y.

The store had been converted from a cigar store. It was very small, approximately 8' wide and 20' deep. During the depression years the store prospered due to the aggressive, newspaper advertising campaign Mr. Kulick introduced. He was one of the first to use Bulova watches. He sold watches for $1, $2, and mystery grab bags for $1.

This program is still followed today. Once or twice a year a store will run a "mad sale" featuring wedding rings in 14k gold for $2, and mystery grab bags for $1.

The store in Niagara Falls grew, over the years, to become the largest jewelry store in that city.

In 1948, Mr. Kulick decided to move to California. He acquired Lawson's Jewelers at 250 Pine Ave., Long Beach, California, in 1956 and his sons, who had been brought up in the business since they were children, began to acquire other stores. Today, 1970, there are stores from California to New York.

The stores are operated independently by each store manager as they treat their store as their own.

They may have different names, but they are Mills affiliated jewelry stores.

Through the years there has been a radical change in the type of merchandise a Mills store carries and the manner in which the merchandise is purchased.

In 1960, the advent of the "discount house" forced the firm to re-examine their aims and method of merchandising. Did they want to be an appliance store, like the typical credit jewelry operation, or did they want to specialize — to become a unique retail store, only handling jewelry items, but still selling on easy credit terms?

In those days, it was a tough decision to make — dropping entire types of merchandise, such as shavers, appliances, cameras and the like.

However, the result was more than gratifying. To become an exclusive all jewelry store meant that the firm had to be able to "out-discount the discount store" in jewelry items such as diamonds, genuine stones. How to accomplish this became the real order of business.

Hunt on for Lost Navy Jet

MONTEREY (AP) — Navy and Air Force planes pressed a widespread search Saturday for a Navy plane missing with Lt. Cmdr. John Stump, son of retired Adm. Felix B. Stump, former Pacific commander in chief.

The ATIA jet trainer vanished in overcast and rainy weather Friday morning as it approached for a landing at the Monterey Naval Auxiliary landing field.

With Stump, 43, on the routine training flight was Lt. Ruy Barnes, 29, of Durham, N.C., a student at the Naval Post-graduate School at Monterey.

A Navy spokesman said Stump, of Orange Park, Fla., and Barnes were making an instrument approach for the landing.

The last radio contact with the plane reported the aircraft 35 miles west over the Pacific at 19,000 feet altitude.

Allied Force Moves to Hit Cambodia Foes

PHNOM PENH, Sunday (UPI) — A combined force of 10,000 South Vietnamese and Cambodian troops today opened what was described as the biggest Allied operation against Communist forces in Cambodia in more than four months.

Allied military sources said the operation, including elements of a 7,000-man Vietnamese task force and more than a regiment of Cambodian troops, was aimed at clearing Communists from rugged wooded country between highways 2 and 3 about 20 miles south and west of Phnom Penh.

There were no reports of contact during the first few hours as the Allied units moved into the area, the sources said.

The operation was centered in an area between the town of Tram Khar on Highway 3, about 20 miles from the capital, and Chambak, on Highway 2 about 23 miles south of Phnom Penh.

TRAM KHAR was the scene of heavy fighting last summer, and Cambodian troops two weeks ago launched an operation to clear Highway 2 from Phnom Penh to Chambak and still further south to the province capital of Takeo, 40 miles south of the capital.

Latins Freed in Slaying

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Six Latin American youths were found innocent Saturday of the shooting death of police officer Joseph Brodnik, slain during a burglary investigation last year.

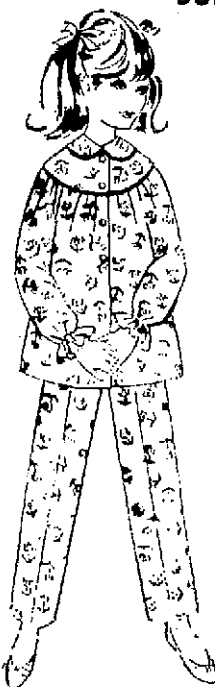

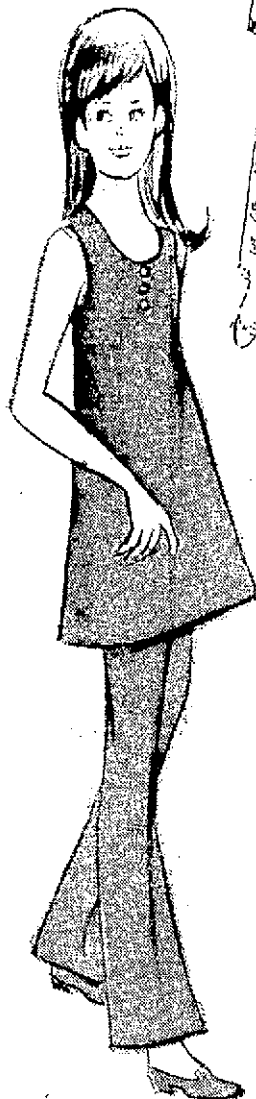

The Superior Court jury also found the six innocent of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to commit murder. Two were also cleared of second degree burglary charges but the panel was deadlocked on burglary charges against the other defendants.

Student, 21, Accused in Coed's Death

BATAVIA, N.Y. (UPI) — State Police Saturday charged a 22-year-old University of Rochester student with murder in the shooting death of a 21-year-old coed graduate student.

The suspect, identified as Zygmunt Tobias of Irondequoit, was arrested Saturday morning while he slept at a motel in Henrietta.

Tobias was accused in the death of Lorraine Redinger. Her body was found Friday morning in a field, two miles west of the Genesee County village of Le Roy.

She had been shot three times, twice in the back and once in the chest.

Troopers said Tobias and the dead girl were acquaintances.

REPORT FROM COPENHAGEN

Sex Crimes Against Children Seen on Decline Since Smut Legalized

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — A common and abhorred sex crime, physical interference with children, decreased sharply in frequency after pornography was legalized in Denmark, a Danish scientist reported today.

In a 200-page study originally made for the U.S. Presidential Commission on Obscenity and Pornography, whose findings were denounced by the U.S. Senate and the Nixon Administration, criminologist-psychologist Berl Kutchinsky concluded that the theory that pornography may prevent certain types of sexual crimes should be "seriously re-examined."

Combining police statistics and interviews with 400 Copenhagen men and women, Kutchinsky found that the decrease in such sexual offenses as peeping and physical interference with children, short of rape, could not be explained by changed sexual mores or more liberal attitudes to these crimes by the public, and certainly not by police.

The most likely explanation, Kutchinsky concluded, is pornography.

On the other hand, he found that changes of attitudes could in fact easily account for a sharp drop in the number of reported cases of exhibitionism and physical interference with women, also short of rape.

Kutchinsky's study was a central theme in the U.S. commission's recommendations last month that pornography for adults be legalized in America.

Not knowing whether his study will ever be published in full in the U.S., Kutchinsky is personally financing publication in English through New Social Science Monographs, a small, noncommercial group here.

Kutchinsky's study showed the downward trend in sex crime rates in Copenhagen became clear in the first part of the 1960s, took a dive at the middle of the decade, when the first wave of pornography, then illegal, hit Denmark. Further drops came in 1968 and 1969 when first written, then pictorial pornography was legalized.

The study also showed: From 1959 to 1969 the total number of reported sex crimes dropped from 895 to 330—a 63.1 per cent decrease. The sharpest declines were 79.8 per cent for peeping, 69.1 per cent for physical interference with children, 58.2 per cent for exhibitionism and 56.2 per cent for physical interference with women.

Changes in the criminal code of police data-collecting could not have played a role in the decrease since there were no changes. But among the 400 Copenhageners questioned by Kutchinsky, 40 per cent of the women and 35 per cent of the men declared they had become more tolerant toward some nonviolent sexual offenses.

This, and consequently reduced readiness to report such offenses to police, was sufficient to explain all or almost all of the decline in the rate of reported exhibitionism and physical interference with women, the scientist said.

But, Kutchinsky found that 93 per cent of those questioned had not changed their minds on the seriousness of peeping and physical interference with children; yet these crimes showed the sharpest decreases.

Kutchinsky also noted the number of offenses against children was reduced by half over the last five years, coinciding with the massive advent of pictorial pornography, first illegal and then legal.

In another section of the study, Kutchinsky reported these tentative findings from exposure of 72 university-level students of both sexes to one hour of hard-core pornography — movies, literature and magazines:

—Strong emotions were rare, vague mirth and growing boredom the most frequent reactions.

—The session led to decreased interest in deviant sexual practices among the majority of the students.

—Up to two weeks later many declared they had lost all interest in pornography.

Close observation of Copenhagen pornographic shops furnished this description of the typical client: a middle-class man aged 24 to 45.

Agricultural Panel to Probe 'Emotional Myths' About DDT

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The chairman of the House Agriculture Committee said Saturday it will hold hearings to determine if the "current popular emotional jag" on protecting the environment from pesticides is doing more harm than good.

Rep. W. R. Poage, D-Tex., said Nixon Administration officials as well as scientists, ecologists and health authorities would be asked to testify early next year.

"Myths and distorted facts characterize much of the information disseminated these days about pesticides, herbicides and insecticides, especially DDT," Poage said.

"Unless reason and sound judgement dispell the current popular emotional jag on the subject, Americans may be victims rather than beneficiaries of actions prompted by well-meaning conservation minded individuals and organizations," he said.

"Poage said mankind may suffer far more from the effects of withholding use of DDT than from environmental pollution caused by the use of this chemical.

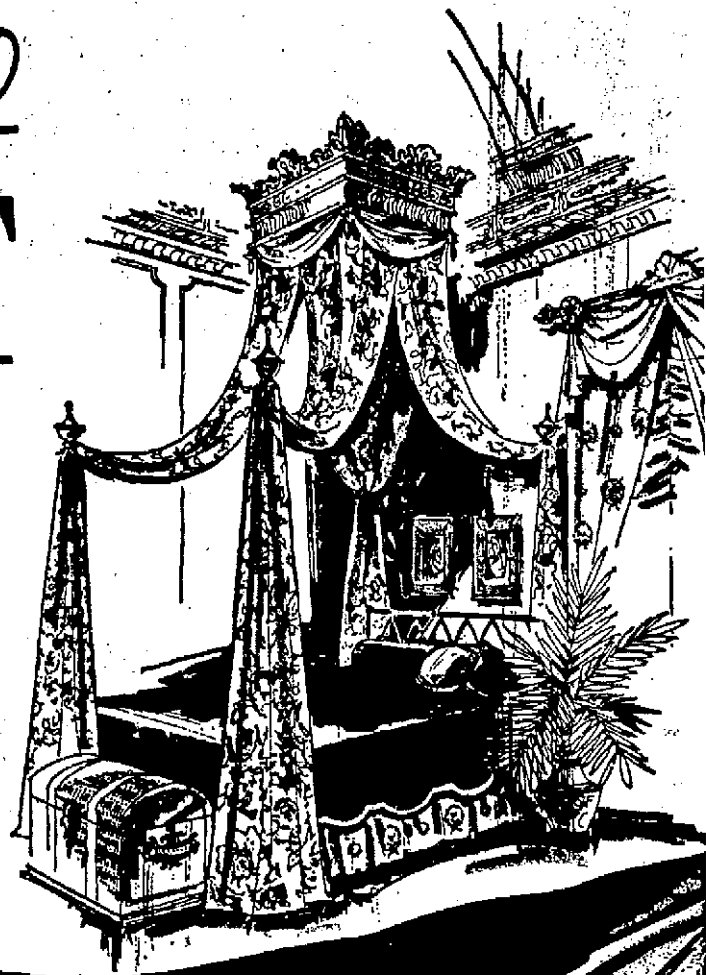

He said that Agriculture Department officials had informed him "of an alarming outbreak of gypsy moth infestation in hardwood forests in several Eastern states since DDT spraying for that purpose was banned." The infestation, he said, is "killing trees over vast tracts of mountain lands."

"If farm production should be jeopardized by the prohibition of a certain compound, then we should know that and try to find a substitute that will assure a continued supply of wholesome, nutritious food," Poage said.

3 Union Funds Fail to File Election Expenditure Reports

By JAMES H. POLK
WASHINGTON (AP) — Three political funds for the Teamsters and United Auto Workers unions have failed to file required reports with Congress disclosing how much they spent on election campaigns this fall. The missing amounts may add up to one-quarter million dollars, if past contributions are an accurate barometer. The Justice Department, however, has avoided prosecuting a single case in the last 45 years for failing to make the campaign reports. And any action this year appears uncertain. The Corrupt Practices Act requires all political committees to make public reports to Congress itemizing their contributions both 15 days before and five days before the election. Two big funds for the UAW and a national Teamsters fund missed both deadlines this fall, according to records on file with the House clerk. The funds are Democrat, Republican, Independent Voter Education (DRIVE) for the Teamsters, the UAW's Committee on Political Education COPE, and the Committee for Good Government, also located at UAW offices in Detroit. The three funds each had spent from $70,000 to $80,000 already this year, according to their last quarterly reports filed in September. A political committee often equals its previous spending in the final weeks of the campaign that are covered by the missing pre-election reports. None of the officials for the funds could be reached for comment. The Justice Department refused to prosecute after the 1968 campaign when the House clerk, who is a Democrat, sent it a list of 20 committees for President Nixon that filed late reports. The agency announced last May it didn't feel it would be fair to prosecute then because it had never done so before in the 45-year history of the Corrupt Practices Act. But it left up in the air the question of whether it would move against future violations. The decision, though, to ignore the GOP tardiness would make it particularly sensitive to move now against labor groups giving money mainly to Democratic candidates. Several other committees, all considerably smaller than DRIVE and the UAW groups, also have failed to file either of the last two pre-election reports. They include: Amalgamated Political Education Committee, New York; Boilermakers-Blacksmiths Campaign Assistance Fund, Kansas City, Mo.; National Maritime Union NMU Fighting Fund, New York; Oil, Chemical & Atomic Workers, Denver, and Real Estate Political Education Committee, Chicago.

RUMORS

CAN'T WIN

FELDKIRCH, Austria (UPI) — Herbert Stock may have his faults, but he does try to be on time.

Police said Stock, 20, stole a car Wednesday so he could drive 32 miles to this Austrian town where he was scheduled to go on trial — for car theft.

En route to Feldkirch, Stock was stopped by police and arrested for car theft. Then the police brought him to the court, where he was fined for being late, despite his plea that he would have been on time if the police had not stopped him.

BURNED UP

OLDHAM, England (UPI) — Martha Price, 93, remembered too late that she had hidden $96 in an old stuffed chair. She gave the chair away Wednesday to three teen-agers seeking fuel for their Guy Fawkes Day bonfire.

LONDON (UPI) — Uniformed door keepers at the House of Commons have been informed their traditional stiff-fronted shirts with screw-in studs and wing collars are to be replaced with soft shirts and collars — but not for comfort's sake.

LAME DUCKS SET FIGHT Yarborough Against Education Appointee

From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — Before he hangs up his political six-shooter and heads into retirement, Sen. Ralph Yarborough will be a key figure in a post-election showdown between the Nixon Administration and the Senate's so-called "radical-liberal" element.

The threat of battle hangs heavily over President Nixon's selection of Sydney P. Marland as U.S. commissioner of education, a post which requires Senate confirmation. The position has been vacant since June 10 when then Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Robert Finch fired James Allen Jr.

YARBOROUGH, a seasoned Texan of the Democratic faith, became an early casualty of the just-ended political war when he failed to capture his party's primary election. Had he emerged from the preliminary test with credentials to seek a third term, he would have been among those who attracted Vice President Spiro Agnew's "radical-lib" incantations.

Operating as a lame duck since last spring, Yarborough has been patiently awaiting his "last hurrah." The Marland nomination gives the 68-year-old former school teacher ammunition for an appropriate parting shot.

As chairman of the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee, Yarborough will supervise the Marland inquiry. And, from all indications, the committee's inquiry may resemble an inquisition.

Even if Marland survives the committee trial, his future would still be bleak. From the committee, he would be led into the Senate where the mortally wounded lame ducks and the surviving "radical-lib" still linger in numerical strength.

IF THE nomination reaches a confirmation vote, it will be this year's final clash of ideology between the White House and the Senate which twice before bristled over Nixon's Court nominees

"There's a shortage of stiff shirts," a staff spokesman announced.

ALL FOR LIB

ROSELAWN, Ind. (UPI) — The Naked City Nudist Camp, which runs a "Miss Nude America" contest, will hold a "Mr. Nude America" contest next year "to satisfy the women's liberation movement."

UPPING THE DOWN HEM

YEOVIL, England (UPI) — The management of the department said all salesgirls would henceforth wear midskirts. Linda Greenslade hit the ceiling — then she quit.

"I want to wear a mini," she said. "Nobody is going to make me dress up like my grandmother." But the store bosses stood their ground, contending it was "no good trying to sell a new style if we are not prepared to display it to the utmost."

HEALTHY

ROTHERHAM, England (UPI) — Four wives from a keep-fit class got a chance to show their stuff Sunday when their five-ton bus broke down in the middle of a busy intersection. They climbed out, gave a combined shove and, while 34 passengers and the driver sat stunned, pushed the vehicle 20 yards down the road.

"To be honest, we were as surprised as anyone when it started to move," said keep-fit fan Mrs. Clarissa Kavoluk, 56.

Dog Protest?

LONDON (UPI) — Two policemen answering a burglary call were bitten early Saturday by police dogs brought to the scene by other policemen.

CEREMONY

BASILDON, England (UPI) — There was a roll of drums and a waiter marched up to Richard Strungell-O'Toole's table and presented him with an unusual dish — his bottom set of false teeth.

He had forgotten them while dining there recently and the restaurant traced him through a charity donation made there.

"I thought it would be nice to invite Mr. Strungell-O'Toole and his wife to a meal and present his teeth to him in fitting style," said restaurant manager Andre Spriteri. "It was the highlight of the evening."

CHEERS!

LONDON (UPI) — William Gilbert, new security chief for the houses of parliament, has his first case to handle. Thieves stole liquor worth $60 from the press gallery bar.

SMUGGLED

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (UPI) — Alert guards intercepted a letter being smuggled from the Salt Lake County Jail Wednesday before it reached its destination.

The chief of security guard for the women's section of the jail opened the letter and read:

"Dear cook and all kitchen help: After all the griping we have done in the past we thought we ought to thank you for today's good meal. It sure was good. Please don't stop now."

2 Death Penalty Cases to Tribunal

By CHARLOTTE MOULTON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court will hear arguments Monday on death penalty cases from Ohio and California that pose questions affecting 150 inmates on death row.

The scores of these prisoners with appeals before the court range from Richard Speck, convicted of the celebrated murder of eight Chicago nurses in 1966, to Marie Hill, a Negro teenager convicted of murdering the white proprietor of a grocery in Rocky Mount, N.C., during an armed robbery.

Action on these appeals has been delayed pending the outcome of those to be heard Monday. Decisions will come later this term. In the meantime, no state has carried out an execution since June 2, 1967.

The nine justices are being asked not to abolish the death penalty but to decide two much narrower issues. They are:

—Should a jury decide guilt and punishment at a single sitting?

—Should a jury have absolute discretion to impose the death penalty "uncontrolled by standards or directions of any kind?"

Although other countries are gradually abandoning it, 41 states in this country still have capital punishment.

It does not exist in Alaska, Hawaii, Iowa, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, Oregon, West Virginia and Wisconsin. Five others have outlawed it except in special circumstances such as the death of a prison guard or a second murder. These are New Mexico, New York, North Dakota, Rhode Island and Vermont.

Murder and rape are the usual capital crimes, but some states make such offenses as armed robbery and kidnaping crimes for which one can be hanged, electrocuted or put to death in a gas chamber.

Federal statutes include numerous capital offenses, among them aircraft hijacking, espionage, treason, first-degree murder or rape on federal territory, the murder or kidnaping of the president or vice president, or causing death by sending injurious articles through the mail.

WHILE THE court in its most recent decisions has chipped away at capital punishment, Congress this year went the other way by adding fatal terrorist bombings to the list of capital offenses.

The appeals to be heard Monday were filed by James Edward Crampton, convicted of the 1967 murder of his wife, Wilma, in Toledo, Ohio; and Dennis C. McGautha, convicted of the 1967 robbery-murder of Benjamin Smetana, a Los Angeles storekeeper.

The argument against the single-verdict procedure in some states is that it forces a defendant to surrender his rights against self-incrimination. That is, if he takes the stand, he opens himself to possibly damaging cross-examination. And if he does not take the stand, he is deprived of his own best witness against execution.

"His testimony is the only way to bring home to the jury that it is sentencing a live human being to death," the court has been told.

IN 1957, California was the first state to provide for a separate post-conviction hearing on the penalty question. Others are Pennsylvania, Connecticut, New York, Texas and Georgia.

The justices also are being asked to fashion for jurors some standards for determining when the death sentence is applicable, such as the defendant's susceptibility to reform and the harm done to the victim. Opponents say the death penalty can be meted out now on a whim, such as the color of a man's skin.

The court ruled in 1968 that individuals with scruples against capital punishment cannot automatically be kept off juries. It also ruled that the federal kidnap statute unconstitutionally impaired the right to a jury trial, because it specified that only a jury can impose the death penalty.

Justice Potter Stewart, not usually tagged a "liberal," wrote both opinions.

IN THE first instance, he found that Illinois had "stacked the deck" against the defendant by eliminating potential jurors with scruples against capital punishment without further questioning to see whether they could return a fair verdict in spite of their personal views.

The second case dealt with the Lindbergh Anti-Kidnap Law, under which the defendant faced the risk of death if he exercised his right to a jury trial, whereas the worst he could get was life imprisonment if he chose a trial by judge alone.

Stewart said "Congress cannot impose such a penalty in a manner that needlessly penalizes the assertion of a constitutional right."

New Jobs Sought for Aerospace Layoffs

SCREENING SESSION, from left, Larry O'Donnell, Tom Doyle and Dave Nunn, ponder patterns of photo-stencils for bumper stickers they hope to produce in Larry's home workshop at 1727 Bach St., Carson to plug Long Beach Experience Unlimited group. Aerospace is a dead duck that won't fly for lay-off victims like Larry O'Donnell and Tom Doyle — but the sky is still the limit as they explore for new roles in the economy of the seventies.

They are active self-helpers in a new Experience Unlimited group in Long Beach.

As with all EU groups, they strive to break industrial taboos and reorient professional and other rejects onto new courses of adaptability.

Larry, a veteran pro at writing specifications for huge projects of the last decade — from the Air Force C-5A supertransport to a supersecret electronics-warfare wizardry called TAWS — is director of Long Beach's group, "Until I get a job."

Tom, of 5805 E. Silva St., Lakewood, started as a data-processing supervisor at the old North American Autonetics, but 13 years' service there locked him into ultra-specialized logistics work, and out of contact with the developing data field.

They exemplify the thousands which the revived Experience Unlimited wants to gather.

In Long Beach alone a doubly retired Navy rear admiral and an 81-year-old veteran of industry who doesn't even have Social Security to live on are among about 150 applicants now listed in the volunteer groups' card files at the state Human Resources Department office.

Only four women have joined so far.

Full-pension flag officers float on pretty even financial keels, but thousands of other professional types tossed out by the aerospace cutbacks are hurting badly.

Among burdens they have borne is what O'Donnell calls "this ridiculous stigma that aerospace people didn't adapt readily to commercial types of work."

"If commercial industry doesn't accept the professional skills," he says,

"these people will all be on welfare before it's over."

O'Donnell notes that the Long Beach EU group, like its counterparts in other cities, strains to show other industries how the many professional and technical skills can be utilized.

"If they could design the computers and war-machines and put man on the moon, in the change to a peacetime economy, they can solve the ecology,

3 Slaying Suspects Trial Due

Three hippie-type youths accused of two brutal murders in Orange County last June, will be called into Santa Ana Superior Court Monday for trial — and each is expected to win a continuance.

Each of them also will ask separate trials and the criminal Court Judge James F. Judge is expected to set the dates.

Arthur (Moose) Hulse, 16, of Garden Grove, alleged devil-worshiping leader of the gang; Steven Craig Hurd, 20, of Santa Ana; and Herman H. Taylor, 17, also of Santa Ana, are accused of the June 2 ax-slaying of Jerry Wayne Carlin and the June 3 fatal knifing of schoolteacher Florence Nancy Brown, 31.

Christopher (Gypsy) Gibboney, 17, who was arrested in Portland, Ore., is still held there, where he is fighting extradition.

He has appealed an extradition order to the Oregon Supreme Court and Orange County's assistant district attorney, James L. Enright, said that his case might drag on for another four or five months.

The hulking Hulse is undergoing psychiatric observation and his attorney said he will inform the court that the examination is not complete.

Hulse was described by his attorney, William Gamble, of Santa Ana, as a "disciple of the devil." Enright claimed that Hulse led the trio in the Satanic sacrificial rites around a campfire in lonely Ortega Canyon, where the body of Mrs. Brown was dismembered.

Prowler Gets Cash

Harry E. Hjorth, 3425 Lily Ave., told Long Beach police Saturday that prowlers took a purse, keys and cash from his home. Total loss was $250.

UNEXPECTED 'GET-TOGETHER' IN WESTMINSTER

East is east and west is west and the twain met unexpectedly Saturday morning in Westminster when police officers, pursuing a reportedly stolen car, simultaneously cut in front of the suspect vehicle from opposite sides, colliding with each other. The two Westminster units had been aided in the 90-mile-per-hour chase by cars from Fountain Valley and Huntington Beach. The suspect, who crashed into the two police cars after they nosed into each other, was described as a 15-year-old boy who will face assault-with-a-deadly weapon charges. He was released to the custody of his parents. No injuries were reported in the chase.

Navy Shipyard Losing 7 Vessels by Jan. 1

By BUCK LANIER
Military Editor

Long Beach's naval ship count will be 93 at the end of the year, a department of Defense spokesman revealed Saturday in a Washington news briefing.

He said the count in Long Beach today is 100 but seven ships are due to be cut as per earlier announcements this year.

Five of the seven are 60-man minesweepers, one is a destroyer and the other the mine countermeasures ship Calskill that was brought back to Long Beach for decommissioning.

"It would be illogical to count the Calskill's 350 men in the Long Beach total personnel," he said.

Today there are 25,000 officers and men based in Long Beach on an even 100 ships. Norfolk lists 118 ships, San Diego 114 today and both have always run ahead of Long Beach on number of ships assigned.

A look at the figures for July, 1969, showed 113 ships and 39,400 personnel.

The gross annual pay of the forces today is figured to be about $270 million as compared to the July 1969 total of $360 million. Pay increases in the past 15 months account for the smaller relative drop in total pay than personnel losses would suggest.

Shore activities list 4,360 personnel for the Navy — 600 less than six months ago. The civilian work force is 12,000 an increase of 500 in the last six months.

This combined group represents a take home pay of $162 million.

They're getting ready to re-live the early 20's at the Security Bank branch (what is this, the bank beat?) at Fourth and Cherry. The bank at that location will soon be 50 years old and the celebration will start Nov. 30. Nancy Rohr of the bank staff would bubble over with gratitude if somebody could give or lend her some old newspapers of the early 20's, particularly local ones.

Pleasant little Oregon-mist type rain late in the week did more to clear the air than some of the environmental measures on the ballot. Several called to report a simply gorgeous view from signal Hill with the shined-up Queen Mary a prominent feature. Nice to have somebody say something good about the Mary. . . . About ballot measures, a tremendous Yes vote went to the one lagged as the Clean Water proposition. That was predictable, though I feared all bond issues might sink. But after all, who is going to vote for dirty water?

Among the legal fraternity and some others, there's a great after-election to-do because some people voted against re-election of judges and one incumbent was defeated. They talk as if somehow it is immoral to vote against an incumbent judge. . . . If that's so, why in heck are they on the ballot? Voters shouldn't be thus tempted to immorality.

Among other things you can learn in Long Beach is lip-reading. Classes start at 10 a.m. Nov. 18 in Covenant Church, Room 206, at 607 Atlantic Ave. Even people who can hear might find this talent useful. . . . Some complain about slow mail incidents here, but the Russians still do things wrong better. The G.I. Hastings have just received a missive mailed to them in Russia by a relative in early August. And did it come by red courier? Somebody slipped it into their mailbox hours after the regular delivery.

TIME AND TIDE — It's good to know that Downtown Associates will hold off to Nov. 20 before lighting L.B.'s downtown Christmas decorations. That may seem early, but it's late (and sensible) compared with what some other communities are doing. I'm all for Christmas decor, but a too-early display can be distasteful. . . . Vito Romans, the DLBA exec, claims early sales promotion, which some decri, is really a public service. It helps to get people to do their Christmas buying at a time when it's more convenient and the selection is better. O.K. Do it early.

New Kind of Front for Oldest Profession

By STAN LEPPARD

After the door of the room in a downtown Long Beach Motel closed behind him, the big man hung a suit bag in the closet without bothering to unzip it.

He dropped an overnight bag on the closet floor, shrugged off his jacket, and put it on a hanger next to the suit bag.

The big man tossed the folded copy of a newspaper he had picked up in the motel office on a chair and sat down on the edge of the bed, yawning.

Then he pulled off his shoes and lay back across the bed, yawning again and scratching his chin, feeling the faint stubble of beard along his jawline.

The flight from Atlanta and the taxi ride from International Airport had added up to a long and tough trip for Tommy Warren, sales research team director out of Dallas. The late night out before boarding the plane in Atlanta hadn't helped any, he decided reflectively.

But, regardless of that, he was facing a series of important conferences in the Southland and would have to snap it, Warren told himself.

No strain; a steam bath and massage — a brisk rubdown — would lunge him up in tip-top shape.

Warren reached for the paper he had tossed on the chair and started scanning the classified advertisements.

Seconds later he grunted with astonishment and sat upright in bed, staring at the paper. Then he exclaimed aloud:

"What in hell is going on in this town, anyway?"

The Dallas man repeated this same question to a newspaper acquaintance the next day, displaying the ad columns.

"All I wanted was just some steam and a rubdown," he said. "Look at these. They're enough to scare you to death."

The ads, spangled with stars, exclamation points, question marks and thinly-disguised doubletalk, promised "gorgeous girls," "lovely technicians," all "guaranteed to satisfy" in "exotic private rooms" and "exciting surroundings."

Beautiful young goddesses were waiting to give "relaxing service" to tensed-up males with "the newest in vibration equipment" or "full French tip massage," or "Egyptian Plaitz Rubs," the ads said. "Did you ever get your rubdown?" Warren was asked.

He shook his head. "I somehow got the feeling that going into one of these places just to ask for a simple massage would be like going into Consolidated Edison just to borrow a light," he said.

"Some of these things look to me like out-and-out ads for houses of prostitution — although that doesn't seem possible," he added.

Southland Traffic Kills Four

Four persons, including a 4-year-old Harbor City girl, were killed in Southland traffic accidents Saturday.

Dead are:

— Amy Dye, 4, of 434 E. 229th Place.

— Randall King, 18, of 1316 Florwood Ave., Torrance.

— Walter Sawyer, 49, of North Carolina.

— Ivan M. Hamilton, 51, of 515 St. Andrews St., Santa Ana.

The Dye child was killed when she was hurled against the gear shift when a car driven by her father was involved in a collision at a Harbor City intersection.

The child was pronounced dead shortly after arrival at Bay Harbor Hospital.

The driver of the second vehicle, Arthello Perkins, 45, of 1100 W. 25th St., Harbor City, was held for questioning.

King was fatally injured when his motorcycle went off the road and hit a parked car in the 2900 block of West 235th Street in Torrance about 12:20 a.m.

He died at the Little Company of Mary Hospital, Torrance, 2½ hours after the accident.

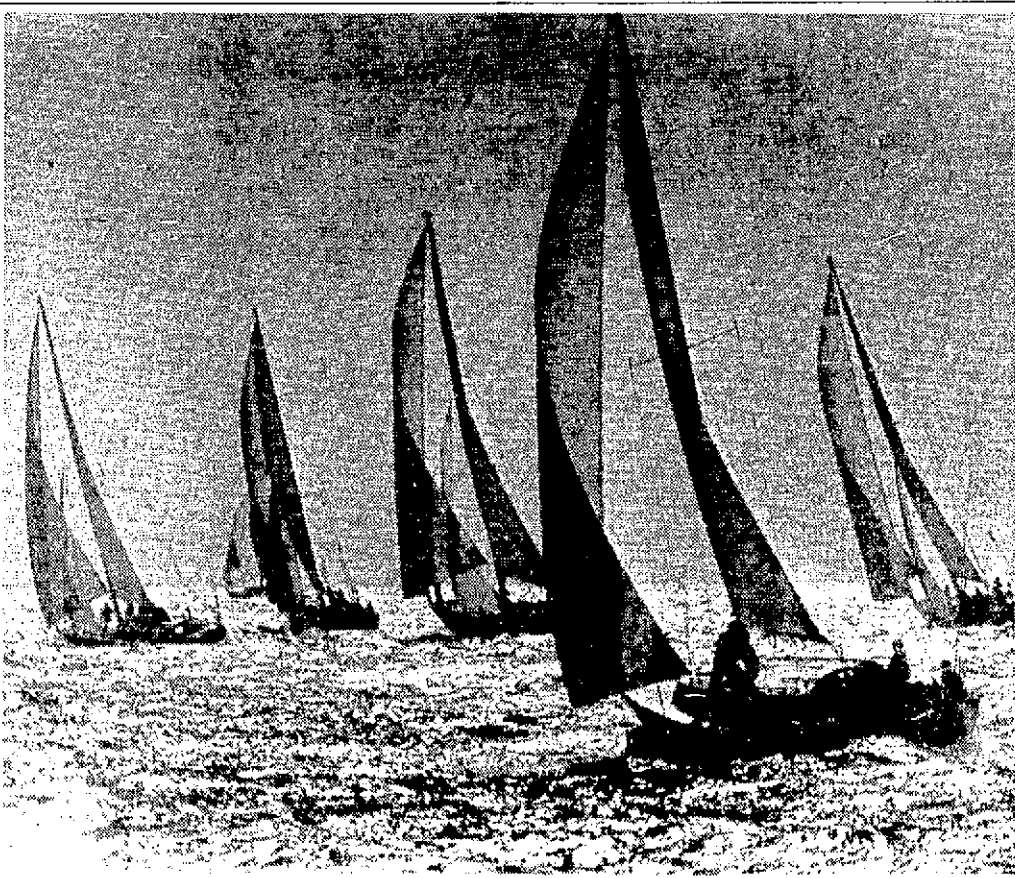

His passenger, 19-year-old Randy Barnett, 4315 182nd St., Torrance, was treated for injuries.

SAWYER was killed when a car in which he was riding ran off the road and struck a tree in the 11900 block of Lakewood Boulevard in Downey at 2:45 a.m.

Driver of the car, Robert B. Elliott, 49, also of North Carolina, was jailed on suspicion of manslaughter. He told police he fell asleep at the wheel.

Another passenger, Katherine Kriss, 43, of 9361 Lube St., Downey, was treated for a broken pelvis at Downey Community Hospital. Elliott was treated at the county jail hospital ward for minor injuries.

Hamilton, the fourth traffic victim, was dead on arrival at Orange County Medical Center at 2:50 a.m. after he was struck by a car while crossing the street at Bristol Street and Park Lane, Santa Ana.

Masts a-tilt in a brisk, 5 to 15-knot breeze, some of the more than 50 yachts in the Fifth Los Angeles-to-Mazatlan Invitational Yacht Race move out of Los Angeles Harbor and into the open sea. Four classes of sailing vessels are vying over the more than 1,000-mile course in the week-long race. Three boats registered to the Long Beach Yacht Club are entered in the classic event, along with craft manned by other Long Beach and Southland area seamen.

New look at Isla Vista

THE REPORT OF a special commission on Isla Vista is a thoughtful discussion of the problems that erupted in rioting and the burning of a Bank of America branch.

We are encouraged that the report has been praised by Governor Reagan and by university regents, for whom it was prepared.

The basic message of the report, we judge, is that a large university, such as UC Santa Barbara near Isla Vista, cannot ignore the surrounding community. Similarly, the report suggests, community authorities — in this case the Santa Barbara County supervisors — cannot ignore the university students and their problems.

WITH INDIFFERENCE on all sides, a student ghetto developed. The governor called it "a 'Peter Pan' community with all one age bracket."

Some of the commission recommendations can be undertaken by the university at little expense. The university is asked to oppose zoning changes that would increase housing density, for example, and it is asked to limit enrollment and increase the ratio of graduate students to undergraduates.

But the key to success in implementing the report's proposals is probably the suggestion that the university build apartments and rent them to students at reasonable rates. Such construction would alleviate student complaints about poor housing at outrageous prices. It would also inspire owners of private housing to upgrade their buildings and cut rents.

THE PROBLEM IS NOT all one way, of course. Building owners undoubtedly have legitimate complaints about the way many students treat apartments. The report suggests that the university housing office handle complaints from both tenants and owners. This, too, is an important element of the plan.

We hope university officials can quickly develop practical proposals to implement the report. If they can, they will not only do much to solve the problems of one campus but to provide a model for others, both inside and outside California's university system.

Judge Gitelson's defeat

JUDGE ALFRED GITELSON says he was defeated for re-election to the Los Angeles Superior Court by racists. That the judge is bitter is understandable, but we think his judgment of the problem is unduly harsh.

It is true that a great many people oppose busing pupils to achieve racial balance in schools. These people — including many blacks — do not necessarily oppose school integration; they simply do not regard it as important enough to warrant busing.

That attitude is shared by Wilson Riles, the Negro who was elected state superintendent of public instruction with the votes of many of those who voted against Judge Gitelson. If those voters were virulently racist, they obviously would not have voted for a black man to lead California education.

It is true, of course, that Judge Gitelson's integration decision did not call for busing, but school officials and the public at large felt the required integration could not be achieved without busing. That view was reinforced by Judge Gitelson's opponent, William P. Kennedy, who used the "busing judge" label against Judge Gitelson.

As a result of Judge Gitelson's experience, some judges will undoubtedly be nervous about hearing school integration cases. But we share Judge Gitelson's hope that other judges will not be intimidated. We suspect few will be. Although judges are inevitably concerned about political pressures, our experience has been that most stand up to them without compromising the law.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

EDITOR:
As a Beatle fan of many years I feel I must clear up the misunderstanding connected with Charles Manson's use of the Beatle song "Helter Skelter" as a guideline for his "revolution." This song has nothing to do with a black-white war or a revolution. Its message is sexual in nature. How anyone who saw the words to this song could possibly construe it to advocate or speak of revolution must indeed be on some kind of a drug trip.

To carry my point further, on the same album in which "Helter Skelter" appears is the song "Revolution" by the Beatles in which they give the following philosophy: While it's true that we all want to change the world in some ways "when you talk about destruction don't you know that you can count me out." They go on to state that "when you want money for people with minds that hate, all I can tell you is brother you have to wait." And they go on to say, "You tell me it's the institution, well you know you'd better free your mind instead."

This does not sound much to me like the words of revolutionaries, and I just wanted to show how wrong it is to connect the Beatles in any way with Charles Manson or anyone like him.
Long Beach ELLYN J. TURNER

Militants in disguise

EDITOR:
The most dangerous militants and revolutionaries are not the ones who merely participate in bombings, riots and burnings.

The ones who get their haircut, take baths, wear neat business suits and pose as respectable "liberals" or "moderates," while denouncing "extremists of either the left or of the right" to allay suspicion, run for and get elected to positions in government. They are in a position to do far more damage to our nation than undisguised revolutionaries.

Long Beach ROBERT WASSMAN

Tax limit urged

EDITOR:
Mr. Watson had the right idea a couple of years ago when he tried to get through a limitation on property taxes, but he was a bit premature and the limit was too low. If he or some organization would now work toward a tax limitation of 2 per cent on the appraised valuation of property, I feel certain it would meet with wholehearted support and any opposition would be very minor.
Long Beach JOHN BOLLINGER

EDITOR:
According to Doug Ives' report Dick McAllister feels he "knows the problems and how to solve them." What problems? "Revenue is not a problem or at least not a serious one" states the article. Greens at two courses need improvement and at Recreation that is under way and is planned for El Dorado. So why is it necessary to have "luxury facilities," raise fees and sell hard liquor?

Additional fees would probably work a hardship on many who want and need to golf and can do without "luxury facilities" and hard liquor.

It seems to me most golfers spend a short time in clubhouse after their game and to put a lot of money into luxury cocktail lounges could well be poor investment at the expense of a lot of people who can't afford increased green fees.

Reagan: victory without a mandate

From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — The California voter giveth, and the California voter taketh away, Gov. Reagan learned last week.

The governor was re-elected, but by no means can his victory be construed as an endorsement by the voters of either Reagan or his policies.

An examination of the election results forces the conclusion that if the Democrats could have put forward an attractive candidate without the encumbrances of the unpleasant "Big Daddy" image Jess Unruh was unable to shake, Ronald Reagan would have been deposed.

FOUR YEARS AGO, many observers expressed the opinion that Reagan's million-vote victory over Democratic incumbent Pat Brown was as much or more a repudiation of Brown as it was a mandate for Reagan.

The observation appears to have even more validity this time.

The governor worked very, very hard for Republican candidates all over the state. Having Republican Sen. George Murphy in Washington and having solidly Republican majorities in the State Senate and Assembly would help him put his programs into law, he said.

Voters responded by giving Murphy's opponent, John Tunney, a bigger margin of victory than they gave Reagan over Unruh.

And they responded by giving the Democrats majorities in both state legislative houses.

Reagan appealed to Bakersfield voters to unseat veteran Democratic Sen. Walter W. Stiern, who had helped block his tax plan. Stiern won by a comfortable 12,434 votes. Reagan asked San Diego voters to oust Sen. James R. Mills for the same reason. Mills won by 35,048 votes, more than his margin in 1966.

The governor asked the friendly voters of Orange County to dump Democratic Assemblyman Ken Cory of Westminster. Cory not only won, his victory margin was five times greater than it was in 1968.

SAME THING IN Ventura County. Democrat Ken MacDonald won by 2,120 votes in 1966. This year, Gov. Reagan implored voters to replace MacDonald in the Assembly with a Republican. MacDonald won by 8,550 votes.

A San Mateo County Senate seat never before occupied by a Democrat went to Democrat Arlen Gregorio over Republican Assembly veteran Ike Britschgi.

Five Republican assemblymen were ousted. In addition, Humboldt County Assemblyman Frank Belotti, who was first elected in 1950 and who won in 1968 by 48,288 votes, beat his Democratic foe this time by only 3,815.

And Assemblyman Don MacGillivray in Santa Barbara, a carefully nurtured product of the Republicans' heralded Cal Plan, won by a slim 1,569 ballots.

Riverside County Supervisor Ray Seeley captured an Assembly seat his Republican predecessor had won by 38,311 votes in 1968, but only by a margin of 2,033 over a Democrat who refused party help from outside the district.

THE ELECTION CAN only be termed a crushing personal defeat for Gov. Reagan, his victory over Jess Unruh notwithstanding.

Adding to his dismay is the knowledge that many of the incumbent Democratic legislators against whom he campaigned vigorously, sometimes harshly, but in all cases unsuccessfully, will be in leadership positions for at least the next few years. And they will remember the 1970 campaigns.

Republican legislators who had thought the governor's support to be vital and his opposition an insurmountable handicap may be inclined to be more independent in the future.

Ronald Reagan has long since completed the transformation from citizen to citizen-politician to politician. He will need all his considerable political skills as he deals with the Legislature for the next four years.

McNamara gets blame for TFX cost overruns

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The once-bright image of Robert S. McNamara will take another damaging blow with the completion of the eight-year congressional investigation of the controversial TFX contract. The report prepared for the McClellan permanent investigating subcommittee will be made public after Congress returns.

The subcommittee will place the entire responsibility for the contract squarely on the shoulders of McNamara, the former secretary of defense who is now president of the World Bank. For that matter, Mc-

CLARK MOLLENHOFF

Namara has always accepted responsibility for making the decision to award the contract to General Dynamics.

But shortly afterwards he clamped a secrecy around the development of the F-111 warplane that barred the public and the press from the facts that would have contradicted his claims.

Chairman John L. McClellan, D-Ark. was skeptical and had his staff keep track of every move on the $7.5 billion contract.

Testimony has made it clear McNamara was wrong in thinking the Air Force and Navy could be forced into development of a plane that would serve the missions of fighter, bomber and reconnaissance for both services.

THE NAVY DROPPED out of the F-111 program after seven test models had been built. Naval authorities decided there was no way to make the plane light enough for operation off aircraft carriers.

The testimony makes it clear McNamara purchased the second-best plane, from General Dynamics, at a price initially estimated to be $400 million more than the price of Boeing. McNamara had his own estimates to back his claim that his decision would "save a billion dollars."

The McClellan committee report will state that McNamara deliberately misled the Senate Appropriations Committee and other committees relative to the progress on the F-111. McClellan established that McNamara took part in discussions on the deficiencies of the Navy version of the F-111 warplane.

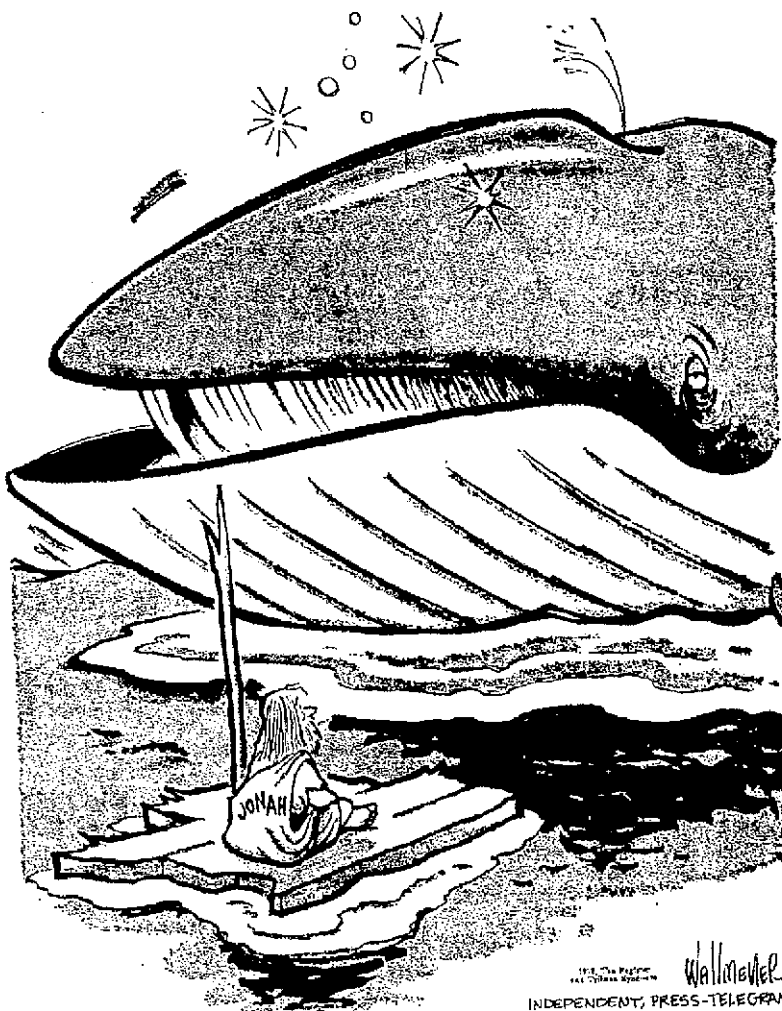

Only a few days later, the defense secretary was asked about the deficiencies. He swore he had no knowledge of them.

Originally, the TFX or F-111 was supposed to cost $2.8 million per plane. McClellan estimated the cost per plane will now be more than $14 million.

Also, although over 200 of the planes have been built by General Dynamics, they have been almost continually under flying restrictions because of a tendency for the wings to fall off in flight. Late this year, all the planes were grounded again after the 15th crash of an F-111.

The McClellan record will demonstrate again the value of awarding contracts to the lowest responsible bidder. It also will show that diligent investigators can piece together the record on even the most complicated contracts and can dim even the bright image of a "whiz kid" of McNamara's stature.

"YOU I COULD STOMACH... BUT NOT MERCURY..."

A March lion pro tem

THE MOST POWERFUL MAN in the State Senate "is in this room."

The room was at Lakewood Country Club. The date was March 27, 1970. The speaker was Senate Democratic floor leader George R. Moscone, of San Francisco. He continued:

"The man who could, without a doubt, move quietly into the president pro tem spot with a mere nod of his grey head — is Joe Kennick."

Remember, that was in March when the Republican emblem was an elephant rampant on a field of wounded burros. The GOP was talking of the great day of fruition of its Cal Plan.

That was the plan which, ever since the 1958 Democratic sweep, Republicans had used to focus money and troops into marginal legislative districts every two years, chipping away one, two or three seats per election, until this November they would win majorities. Then they could reapportion all California legislative districts to their own liking.

The plan peaked in 1968 when the GOP did win control of the Assembly and Senate. Then, last Tuesday the bottom fell out. Democrats took over the Assembly 43-37 and the Senate 21-19. It is they who will do the reapportioning, based on state population gains in the 1970 census.

Now back to Moscone. Funny he should mention Long Beach Democrat Joseph M. Kennick for the top spot when the Senate reorganizes under Democratic leadership next January. Because Kennick is beginning to nod that grey head.

And if Moscone thought Kennick could have won when Republicans had a majority, what must be the chances today?

It isn't that simple. For one thing, Democrats are plagued by the same kind of party division that had Republicans fighting over the leadership spot. During their short run the GOP had two presidents pro tem, Howard Way and Jack Schrade.

The division most apparent is philosophic. Sen. Stephen Teale, Rail Road Flat, and James R. Mills, San Diego, may run as liberals, expecting party line ratification. Kennick could not compete comfortably on those terms. And although he could withhold his 21st vote and block victory by either Teale or Mills on a strict party line tally, it is extremely unlikely he would do that.

Kennick's interest, he said this week, is to be a coalition candidate. An ideal win in his view would be with a majority of the 21 Democrats and a few crossover Republican ballots.

The shape of the contest will likely be determined when Democrats caucus to discuss courses of action and hear the pitches of those interested in the job.

Kennick knows some of the most liberal members of his party are disposed to oppose him. But he feels that the Senate harmony he espouses may appeal to enough members in both parties to make him acceptable.

If state senators are responsive to the apparent two-way stretch of November's voters — electing Reagan but saddling him with the Democratic legislators he campaigned against — the secret ballot may work to Kennick's advantage. A secret ballot, called for by only one senator, would probably be eagerly accepted. It would camouflage convictions intraparty and interparty.

However, if deep divisions persist, divisions which have characterized the Senate ever since reapportionment gave control to the South, then some maverick Republicans could play spoiler to Kennick's candidacy. A few of them could join Democratic liberals to put a liberal stamp on the Senate, possibly with the hope that such leadership would rebound to Republican benefit in 1972 elections.

Majorities favoring the South could narrow the contest. They could eliminate northerner Teale in the early running. Then, in a Mills-Kennick runoff, the Los Angeles County majority might be favorable to one of theirs — Kennick.

And yet, some of the more liberal senators are from Los Angeles County.

So grow the hedges in doping the leadership contest.

The day Ollie got acid on his pantleg

"WHY DON'T YOU," David Levinson asked, "write about the old days?"

I knew what he meant. He wanted me to tell about when I was a long-haired apprentice to Johann Gutenberg, who was trying to invent printing and one day he did. And while we were printing for the first time anywhere in Europe he would look over my shoulder at intervals and exclaim: "Mein Gott!" This was OK since we were publishing a Bible at the time.

I had trouble with Ben Franklin in the little shop in Philadelphia where he was forever thinking up good moral things like "A penny saved is a penny earned" and "It's hard for an empty sack to stand upright." And while he was patting himself on the back and looking pleased through his square Ben Franklin spectacles I had to watch it to keep from snickering. I had it on good authority that what Ben said and what Ben did were two different things. The truth of it is that the way my boss got from Boston to New York was that he conned a sea captain into a free ride by whispering that he had "got a naughty girl with child." In fact, I got fired the day I made up a maxim of my own and put it on the Franklin press. All it said was: "Ben is a has-Ben in Boston." The boys at the tavern loved it and it got me a free rum.

I HOPE IT DOESN'T disappoint David Levinson to learn that I don't really go back quite that far although frankly I was a sub-teen printer's devil in the summer of the last year of World War I, working for my Uncle Gene on the York New Teller.

What I learned mainly was NOT to carry a double galley of handset galley type across the courthouse lawn when you are barefoot. I stubbed my big toe and the citizens of York are still finding Legal Notices here and there in the grass.

Once when we were between World Wars and had the usual depression to show for it I was night city editor of the Nebraska State Journal and had a crew of university student reporters working 54 (fifty-four) hours a week. If they were anti-establishment they didn't show it in their writing, partly Platte send it by Western Union. Don't mail it in."

A WEEK LATER I got a three-page telegram from Robinson and here is a short version of it:

"NORTH PLATTE — Last night Ollie and Mary Brown who raise Herefords over by Brady were on the section road on their way up to Stapleton where Mrs. Brown's sister Evelyn lives and her youngest Irma has been down with the whooping cough.

"Mrs. Brown was taking along a jar of clover honey for Irma and she and Mr. Brown was talking about a black cloud over in the East and if it might rain and he missed the turn to Arnold. Their Model T skidded in the gravel and went into the drainage ditch and turned over on its right side and blew out a tire. Before they could get out of the automobile some acid leaked out of the battery and burned a hole in Mr. Brown's pantleg and almost the hull jar of honey went on Mrs. Brown's visiting dress. They was both shaken up pretty bad."

There was a newsy but mysterious postscript:

"P.S.: Baldwin who was hit by a locomotive died."

I never did find out who Baldwin was.

THERE WERE OTHER loose ends in my dealings with the staff, such as the time a cub reporter covered a riotous meeting of foreclosed farmers. He turned in a two-paragraph story with a note pinned to it and went out the door whistling. The note said:

"There was more—much more—but I lost my notes."

I knew he would amount to something. After he got out of law school he joined the FBI.

In those days we still had the regional telegraph wire from Sioux City relaying the news from the Associated Press to us from the rube country. The man at our end was Murphy, who spent a good deal of time explaining how sorry he was about ever leaving Muscatine, Iowa. The way he talked about it Muscatine, Iowa, was something like Paris, only more sophisticated.

THERE HE SAT surrounded by the wizard automatic typewriters of the AP trying to pretend they were not clattering out the doomsday of the legendary tribe of telegraphers who replaced the Pony Express. Like all good Morse Code mechanics, Murphy could do several things at one time. As he typed on an ancient Underwood he carried the stub of a yellow pencil between the first finger and the little finger of his right hand, crimped under the middle fingers. If he mistyped 12,000 for 10,000 (under Hogs Received in the Sioux City Cattle Market report) the pencil stub would flash and the numeral 2 would become 0. He never missed a heifer or a steer or any other click from the ticker and at the same time he would listen to the latest office jokes.

At the end of a joke, Murphy would emit a high choirboy laugh. Sometimes we heard the soprano yip-yip when Murphy was alone. We knew then that the Sioux City operator was relaying the latest scandalous testimony of "Peaches" Browning in her breach-of-promise suit against the millionaire "Daddy" Browning. It was considered so racy in those days that the fraternity of telegraphers kept it to themselves. Today you would find it on the front page and Peaches would be a likely candidate for Congress.

Well, David Levinson, that's the way things went in the old days. At the time I thought it was fun. I never knew it wasn't relevant.

Physician assistants answer a great need

By L. A. COLLINS Sr.

IT IS APPARENT many patients in doctors' offices will be served by physician assistants in minor cases. The shortage of doctors now causing long waiting periods in some medical offices can be reduced by these qualified assistants taking care of patients for minor ailments.

Many of these services do not require the attention of the doctor if he has a qualified assistant. But until recently it was not permitted — under our state laws — to delegate these services to anyone who was not a licensed physician. It has been the cause of a growing shortage of doctors in many parts of the state.

The legislature has now made it legal to delegate some of these services to qualified assistants. The change is outlined by Assembly Speaker Monagan in the following letter:

DURING THE INTERIM of the 1969 session of the legislature, the Assembly Committee on Health and Welfare held a hearing on physician assistants and their possible use in California. The result was legislation which could help relieve the present physician services shortage in California. The bill, introduced by Assemblyman Gordon Duffy, chairman of the Health and Welfare Committee, was approved by the legislature this year and signed by the governor. It becomes effective Nov. 23.

THERE WERE TWO compelling reasons for the legislation. The first is that California has a rather unique Medical Practice Act which prohibits medical doctors from delegating to non-licensed individuals any of the functions that a physician performs which are considered the practice of medicine. This means that it is illegal for non-licensed or approved physician assistants to practice in California.

The second reason is the voters' rejection of Proposition 1, on the June primary ballot. The proposed bond issue would have provided funds for

Reply to Justice Douglas

IN HIS BOOK, "Points of Rebellion," Justice William O. Douglas has adopted the fashionable, dissenting youth culture as his own. He is trying to be different like everyone else. His dissent is, therefore, the exact echo of everyone else's dissent. He repeats all the clichés of the New Left, solemnly and portentously, as if he were thinking them up for the first time. None of them is subjected to the slightest analysis or criticism.

All our problems as a nation are blamed on an evil, all-powerful "Establishment" that prevents the food stamp plan from helping the poor, that pollutes our environment, that dehumanizes people, that has a vested interest in the continuation of war. Let me analyze some of the things Justice Douglas says.

"THE CASE AGAINST the university is that it is chiefly a handmaiden of the state or of industry or, worse yet, of the military-industrial complex ... The university becomes a ciety where law is responsive to human needs."

Are these the only two choices? Was dissent suppressed at Berkeley or San Francisco State or Columbia when police were called? Of course not!

It is the practice of New Left propagandists to confuse police control of violence with the repression of ideological nonconformity. It is shocking to find Justice Douglas falling for this shabby line.

The ultimate irony of Justice Douglas' attack on the "Establishment" is that there are few people who are more solidly a part of the Establishment than a Supreme Court justice.

The semantic solution to Justice Douglas' problem is simple. He could simply stop using blanket abstractions like "Establishment," which by explaining everything explain nothing.

collection of technicians in a service station, trying to turn out better technocrats for the technological society."

Here is the typically elitist sneer against students who go to college to improve their lot. Should the university ignore their desires?

"Where grievances pile high ... violence may be the only effective response."

Many besides Justice Douglas have fallen for this one.

Long before I became president in November 1968, San Francisco State had started a student-run experimental college. The administration was persuaded, without violence, to give credit for many of its courses. Black Studies were also started in the experimental college, and 22 courses in this area had been incorporated into the regular curriculum.

The prospect of pushover victories and total control of the program (and the money involved) led a group of black and white radicals in the fall of '68 to present 15 "non-negotiable" demands (some reasonable, some absurd, some illegal) which they tried to enforce by beatings, sit-ins, fires, bombs, classroom disruptions and a student strike.

THE RESULTS OF all this violence were as follows:

1. The establishment of a Black Studies department was forcibly delayed.

2. The 22 courses transferred to the new department went down the drain because there was no new department.

3. The department, when finally established, quickly disintegrated because of continued violence and threats of violence exerted by radical blacks against nonradical blacks. The college had to start a Black Studies department all over again in the fall of 1970.

"There are only two choices: a police state in which all dissent is suppressed or rigidly controlled; or a so-

HIGHEST IN HISTORY

L.B. Students Earn $2 Million Awards

Long Beach high school and City College students "earned" more than $2 million in scholarships last year while garnering 1,500-plus nonmonetary honors for classroom work well done.

"It was the first time in local history that the '$2-million barrier' has been broken," reported Dr. Daniel W. Langston, child welfare services director for city schools.

Because "We promised not to publicize comparative returns between schools," Langston's report dealt only with general statistics — impressive, if cool and impersonal. But there is a human story to be told as well...

High school graduates received 711 scholarships worth $2,160,074; at LBCC the figures were 163 and $34,175. Since many grads could, in effect, pick and choose, not all these grants were accepted.

"Honors at entrance" status in higher educational institutions were reached by 226 high school and 174 LBCC graduates, the report showed. And in a sampling of nonfinancial honors given throughout the unified and college districts, there were:

The Governor's Award for Scholastic Excellence; Silversmith award; Harvard Book; DAR; Exchange Club Outstanding Youth; Elks' Club plaques; Bank of America trophies and certificates; Rotary Club honors; merit letters; highest honors certificates and more.

If comparisons between schools were lacking, there were individual, capsulized "success stories" told by counselors — such as:

Winners of "two prized scholarships" at Jordan were Edward S. Boss and Edward Dixon.

The son of Rev. and Mrs. Edward S. Boss, of ing his at NSC.

year California State Scholarship, now is attending the University of Redlands. Dixon, another CSS winner, and the son of Mrs. Jane K. Dixon, is using his at DSC.

At Lakewood, two of the top awardees were Dennis Noesen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey J. Noesen, 4400 Faculty Ave., and Kathy Clayton, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Clayton, 4124 Fairman St., Lakewood.

Young Noesen now, at USC earned a $6,000 Southern California Edison scholarship, along with several others. Miss Clayton received the Bank of America's $1,000 vocational arts scholarship.

Milikan counselors told of four outstanding graduates:

Linda K. Stanwood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jay W. Stanwood, 2121 Patiz Ave., winner of a $12,000 Ford Motor Co. scholarship, now attending Wheaton (Ill.) College.

Stephen E. Horowitz, whose mother is Mrs. Louise R. Horowitz, Navy ROTC scholarship.

John Gillespie Jr., whose parents live at 2741 Petaluma Ave., winner of a coveted National Merit Scholarship to UC-San Diego.

Loma Jane Hopkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Hopkins, 2149 San Anselmo Ave., received a state commission scholarship to Pomona College.

Poly graduate Hazel Johnson, daughter of Eddie Johnson, 1437 California Ave., earned a full-expense scholarship at Pitzer College, Claremont. And fellow student Jim M. Hogan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hogan, 4021 Chestnut Ave., earned an appointment to the U.S. Military Academy.

Winning the most awards at Poly was Don C. Wallace III, whose parents live at 4470 Olive Ave. Now attending UC-Santa Cruz, he was honored, among others, by the Bank of America, Exchange Club, Elks Club, Board of Realtors.

Among Wilson's major winners were Brian Doheny, whose mother is Mrs. Joyce Doheny, recipient of 20 football scholarship offers. And Kelvin Kemp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Park Kemp, 121 Belmont Ave., who was honored by Phi Beta Kappa national honorary fraternity, Bank of America and Long Beach Board of Realtors. He is attending the U.S. Air Force Academy. — Ralph Hinman Jr.

L.B. Black Pupils Increase by 499

By RALPH HINMAN JR.
Education Editor

Total enrollments dropped this fall for the fifth consecutive year in Long Beach schools, while the number of Negro youngsters again increased in preschool-through-12th-grade classes.

Attendance here in early October was 69,927, down 855 from the same period last year, a districtwide racial census reveals.

This annual, state-mandated survey of ethnic backgrounds within the public schools also noted that the 6,349 Negroes enrolled comprise 9.1 per cent of the local school population, a numerical increase of 499 in a year.

Also included in the classroom-by-classroom census — which did not include City College — were American Indians, 112 or .2 per cent; Orientals, 967 or 1.4 per cent; Spanish surname, 4,299 or 6.1 per cent; other nonwhite (Filipino, Hawaiian, Eskimo, etc.), 779 or 1.1 per cent; other white, 57,421 or 82.1 per cent.

MINOR GAINS were registered by Indian, Spanish and other nonwhite classifications, while the number of Orientals declined slightly.

Minority employees in 80 elementary and secondary schools and the district's downtown offices also increased during the year, the report indicates.

City College, legally separated from the unified District since July 1, took its own census and will complete a tabulation within the next 10 days, officials there say.

Although there are no real surprises in the K-12 census, schoolmen do express satisfaction that a plan begun several years ago to stabilize racial balance within central city facilities apparently is succeeding.

Judicious realignments of school boundaries within and immediately adjoining central city facilities are helping maintain a reasonable balance. Officials note that within the last year, about 20 per cent of pupils there were reassigned to other schools within walking distance of their homes to diffuse the totals of Negroes in core area classrooms.

TWO OF THREE elementary schools with the largest Negro enrollments showed decreases in their numbers since last year.

Whittier elementary was down 1.6 per cent in black enrollment, while Caucasians increased 2 per cent. At Burnett, both black and white enrollments dropped, 3.4 and 1.9 per cent respectively. Only at Roosevelt were the totals up, 2.4 per cent for blacks, 3.1 per cent for whites.

Poly High School, scene of three racial clashes in three years, enrolled 24 fewer pupils in all, 4 per cent fewer blacks, 4.1 per cent fewer whites.

Smaller percentages of Negroes were counted at Franklin and Hughes Junior Highs, with the count up at West Side's Stephens.

Of the district's 57 elementary schools, all but 12 — in east or northeast Long Beach and Lakewood — presently are enrolling Negroes. Every junior and senior high school except Avalon is mixed.

AN INNOVATION in census-taking this year was a special survey of the racial composition of individual classes in grades 1, 7 and 10. Officials were encouraged because only 16 of 2,097 such classes reported more than 80 per cent minority students. Less than 20 per cent minorities were found in three out of four classes.

Among other ethnic groups counted district-wide, the largest numbers of Spanish surnames were found at Avalon, 25.1 per cent; Webster Elementary, 22.5 per cent and Bryant Elementary, 18.2 per cent.

Most Orientals were attending three elementary schools: Garfield, 9 per cent; Muir, 7.7 per cent, and Webster, 3.8 per cent.

The general population decline Long Beach schools — and many others across the nation — are experiencing began in the mid-1960s and is expected to continue into the 1970s. Declining birth rates in the late Eisenhower years have, but only temporarily, reduced the number of small children in need of education.

With a new baby boom — children of parents born after World War II expected almost momentarily, enrollments again will take off later in this decade.

On a 7-1 vote, with Councilman Russell Rubley dissenting, the council overruled the Planning Commission and denied a special permit to Naturade Products, Inc.

The firm wanted to build a 6,200-square-foot addition to its existing plant.

Although the Planning Department had recommended denial of the application, the Planning Commission, after a public hearing, approved the special permit.

An appeal to the City Council was made by William J. Evelyn and Margaret Dulle, 1036 E. Sixth St., who complained primarily about truck traffic to the plant.

Alan Shulman, president of Naturade Products, Inc., told councilmen the proposed addition was only to provide on-site storage space and would not increase the activity of the business.

ARTIST'S CONCEPTION OF THE MARINER-45, FIRST SEAGOING HOUSEBOAT BUILT OF FERRO-CEMENT

What Keeps A Concrete Boat Afloat

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Maritime Editor

"If you make your houseboats out of concrete, how come they float?"

That's the most frequently asked question of Frank H. Davis, Jr., builder of the first steel-reinforced concrete houseboat being built in the U.S.

"Most people have the impression we build our 45-footers with the floatability of a chunk of sidewalk," Davis says.

Nearing completion in a Wilmington industrial building is the all-steel, cement-covered hull and superstructure of the Mariner-45, a rot-proof, fire-proof floating mobile home.

The custom-built houseboats being built by Ma-rinecrete Pacific, Inc., 1325 E. Opp St., can be constructed for approximately $28,000 or less than $10,000 for comparably equipped fiberglass, wood, or steel boats, according to the houseboat builders.

The main cabin walls and ceiling, which also serves as spacious sundeck topside, is built of a concrete mixture that floats.

To keep the center of gravity of the boat low in the water the deckhouse is constructed of pliable steel rods and wire mesh covered with a mixture of Perlite, a light-weight volcanic ash and a special water-activated cement.

"A bag of ash the size of a bag of cement weighs about five pounds, or about 90 pounds less than a sack of cement," Davis claims.

Neither the hull material, a mixture of sand and cement, nor the Perlite superstructure will burn, rust, rot, or deteriorate with age, according to Davis.

Concrete actually strengthens with age as it cures, he claims.

Laboratory tests indicate the concrete structures have a 19-to-1 safety factor.

"This compares with 8-to-1 for a passenger elevator and 3-to-1 for an American-made automobile," Davis brags.

Davis and a few associates recently completed a successful 1,200-mile shakedown cruise to San Francisco and return in a most unusual craft. Hull of the 45-foot boat was built of ferro-cement. Living quarters aboard were a 32-foot long, 11½-foot wide mobile home which had been "de-wheeled" and securely attached and blended into the deck of the concrete hull.

About Dec. 27, Davis and a crew of eight, headed by Capt. Chad McNott, an all-ocean master mariner, will take the luxuriously-appointed self-propelled, ocean-going craft on a 6,800-mile combination fun and business cruise.

The journey will include slipping through the Panama Canal and a jig-jog cruise through the Caribbean, South America, and up the East Coast to Kitty Hawk, N.C.

On board the craft will be William Luttge, and son, Barrie, who will accept delivery of the unique vessel in Kitty Hawk.

While the Mariner-45 was designed primarily as a fun-boat, (or as a live-aboarder) its unusual distinct advantages have attracted the interest of "work-boat" skippers.

Scheduled to be started in January 1971 is a 54-foot fishing trawler built to the lines of the popular Gridley-designed commercial fishing boats.

The craft, when completed, will be the first commercial-built ferro-cement boat to join the San Pedro-based fishing fleet.

As to the original question, "Why does a boat made of concrete float?"

Archimedes discovered the answer to that three centuries before the birth of Christ.

Conservation Bids Should Begin Now

By GIL BAILEY
Contributing Editor

Okay, so you didn't like the way the election went.

A good many conservationists felt that way Wednesday morning. Some may feel that way today.

This was supposed to be the year of the environment, but the victories for conservation were mixed with a number of defeats.

How do you improve the batting average?

The answer lies in a number of practical political rules which have to be put into practice now, not the week before the election.

Elections are not won on election day, they are won starting the day after election.

The primary defeats for conservation came first in the Legislature and the Congress, and then when the clean air amendment, Proposition 18, was defeated at the polls.

Legislative and congressional votes can be changed.

The conservationists goofed, and goofed badly by releasing their evaluations of the legislators and the congressmen too late in the campaign — Did you know that a number of local legislators and congressmen were at the bottom of the heap insofar as environmental ratings were concerned?

THE RATINGS should have been released early so that the opposition could have put them to full use, and the opposition could have made clearcut promises to reverse the votes of the incumbents.

It is a political fact of life that incumbents win elections in the off-year, in that free year when there are no elections.

They have state or federally paid-for help to make sure the public hears about all the good things they do.

The first political step for conservation groups to take is to watch the incumbents, and then publicly criticize or applaud the actions of their legislators and congressmen. The second action is to keep track of those key votes and be ready to support or oppose the incumbents when the next election comes around.

PRESS releases noting local politicians' votes and letters to the editor both will be printed during that off year and in the long run can back up or destroy the politician's record.

Then, use the computation of the record to decide whether to support or oppose the politician in the primary, and make his record known early.

Politicians hate watchful eyes, and they respond to them.

And the smart officeholders know conservation is an issue which can cut across the political spectrum from right to left.

An example of this process is the victory margin, of Rep. Paul McClosky of San Mateo County, a Republican whose record on the Vietnam war and other issues matches that of U.S. Senator Charles Goode, who lost his New York election.

McCLOSKEY won by 100,000 votes, four times the votes his opponent posted. McClosky has one of the best conservation records in Congress. Another California congressman, who had been in political hot water in the past for controversial stands, picked up 12 additional percentage points of victory, in part by establishing a strong conservation image.

Conservation is not owned by either the Republicans or the Democrats, but both parties and their representatives can be influenced by conservationists.

Proposition 18 offers another lesson.

There were many reasons for its defeat and one of those reasons is an apparent Southern California distaste for rapid transit.

Southern Californians didn't want to approve diversion of gas tax funds until they approved of the rapid transit plans the funds would finance. In addition most Southern Californians drive, and an awful lot of them are protective of their cars and the highways on which they run.

A MISLEADING advertising campaign against Proposition 18 also helped, but in politics one has to count on opposition and be ready to counter its best, and worst, shots.

Measures clearly presented — sewer bonds and recreational bonds — passed.

There may be more to learn from Proposition 18's defeat than from the conservationist victories.

Work and organization are the two keys to political victory.

There are organizations working in the political environmental field.

One is "Friends of the Earth," which intervened with some success nationally in a number of political campaigns. Its prime mover, David R. Brower, former executive director of the Sierra Club, makes no bones about the political aims of the organization.

"We at Friends of the Earth are determined to make the voices of the people heard on these matters. In Washington. In state capitols. And throughout the world."

FURTHER information can be obtained about this group by writing "Friends of the Earth," 451 Pacific Ave., San Francisco, Calif. 94133.

The second group is local, and it is Southern California oriented.

Mrs. Ellen Stern Harris is its executive secretary.

It is the Council for Planning and Conservation, P.O. Box 228, Beverly Hills, Calif., and it is a clearinghouse for what is being done to and for the environment in Southern California.

Political power is possible for conservationists. But they will obtain political power the same way everybody else does, by working for it.

INSTITUTE SET TO AID CHICANO STUDENTS

A two-day institute on recruitment and retention of chicano students will be held next weekend at California State College, Dominguez Hills, according to Dr. Porfirio Sanchez, director of the college's Mexican-American Studies Interdepartmental Program.

The institute, scheduled

Friday from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., will deal with developing guidelines for recruiting and retention — through tutoring and counseling — of "disadvantaged bilingual and bicultural students in higher education," he said.

"In Southern California," said Dr. Sanchez,

"there are almost 1,000,000 residents of Mexican ancestry, and in Los Angeles County there are over 700,000 chicanos. This approximates one out of every nine persons.

"Since the process of acculturation is a slow and difficult task, especially when the second culture — chicano culture — is constantly being reinforced with new additions, it becomes essential that adequate recognition be given to this ethnic group," Sanchez said.

The director requested persons interested in the institute to contact him through the college, 1000 E. Victoria St., Dominguez Hills.

SOUTHLAND BANKERS MEET

Full Employment Seen by '72

There's no pat guideline for bringing the nation out of its slump, but full employment can be expected in mid-1972, Southland bankers were told Saturday night.

Herbert Stein, a member of President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisors, told the California Bankers' Association regional meeting at Newport Beach that the Administration is moving to guide the recovery.

He told the press earlier that the government does not intend to invoke any wage or price controls, but he stressed that wage increases have a positive bearing on the business slowdown.

He also noted "a resistance to wage hikes by management because of the poor profit situation."

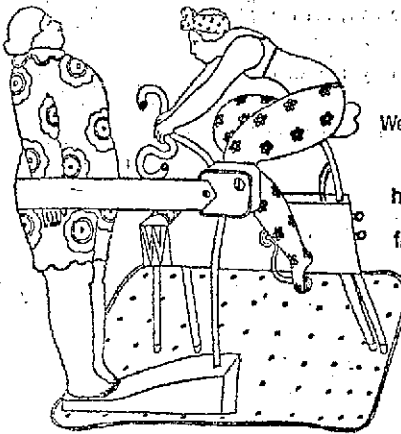

Stein reported, however, a general increase in productivity per man-hour of labor and said it is preliminary to controlling inflation.

He conceded that "we have been through an inflation of exceptional duration and intensity," but he insisted that the inflation rate has declined from the high levels of 1969 and early this year.

"Nevertheless, it is still too high, and reducing the inflation rate further is an important goal." Stein said that, while the unemployment rate "is clearly high" and the economy is "operating below its potential," the jobless total and the lowered output "are both less than in earlier periods when similar transitions had to be accomplished."

MISSING $1-MILLION NAVY UNDERSEA RESEARCH VESSEL

BOUNTY ON THE CRAFT

Vessel Throws Navy a Curve—Escapes

The U.S. Navy this week tacked up "Wanted" posters offering a $5,000 reward for the capture of the escaped CURV III.

CURV is the acronym for Cable-controlled Undersea Research Vehicle.

It is valued at approximately $1 million.

CURV III is the sister "ship" to CURV I, the unmanned deep-water salvage unit which recovered the lost hydrogen bomb at a depth of 2,500 feet off the coast of Spain in April, 1966.

CURV III had been adrift since Oct. 4 when a cable snapped in heavy seas while attempting to recover a scientific package off the west coast of Vancouver Island, B.C.

The weird-appearing craft is believed adrift in the California Current, a constant flow of warm ocean water that could carry the floating craft into local waters.

TRAILING behind CURV III are 600 feet of cable. Attached to the cable every 30 feet are white styrofoam floats.

A spokesman for the Naval Undersea Research and Development Center in Pasadena said the trailing cable could snag on rock outcroppings anywhere along the coast.

A computer is being used in an attempt to locate the missing craft. Data concerning winds, current, tides, time and other factors are being fed into the computer, hopefully to give a readout as to its general location.

The recovery vehicle has not been seen since Oct. 4.

Officials at the Pasadena center claim the vehicle, if still afloat, can be seen either from the air or from the surface.

ANYONE spotting the craft is cautioned not to attempt to recover it. The nearest Coast Guard station should be notified immediately.

The vehicle is approximately 15 feet long and five feet wide. It rides low in the water.

It is distinguished by two rectangular panels, 12 feet by 2 feet colored orange and grey.

The reward will go to the person first reporting information resulting in CURV's recovery, the Navy said.

POLITICS

Black Rafferty Supporter to Address GOP Women

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Rev. Claude Evans, who served as Los Angeles chairman of ministers for Max Rafferty, will speak for 32nd Congressional District Republican Women Federated Wednesday noon in the Fidelity Federal Plaza Community Room, 525 E. Ocean Blvd.

The GOP organization noted that Evans was removed as pastor of his church "as unfit" due to his support of Dr. Rafferty... another example of the harassment of Negro supporters of Rafferty and of Republican candidates.

The meeting is public.

PHELAN SPEECH

Lana Clarke Phelan, Democratic nominee who lost Tuesday in her race against Republican incumbent Assemblyman James A. Hayes in the East Long Beach-Signal Hill 39th District, will speak at the Tuesday luncheon meeting of the New Frontier Democratic Club in the Lafayette Hotel. Mrs. Phelan will give an election analysis.

DONALDSON VIEW

Mike Donaldson, losing Republican candidate in the 17th Congressional District (San Pedro-Wilmington area), found a hopeful sign in the returns despite a Democratic tide "that could not be stemmed."

Incumbent Democrat Glenn M. Anderson was re-elected with 62 per cent to Donaldson's 36 per cent of the vote. But Donaldson noted that he received a larger percentage of Democratic votes than any other Republican challenger running against an incumbent.

Donaldson commended his staff and more than 650 volunteers who helped on election day. He said he and his workers planned to keep their pledge to take down as many of his campaign signs as possible.

TEAGUE STATEMENT

William J. (Bill) Teague, Republican who lost to incumbent Congressman Richard T. Hanna in the 34th District, offered congratulations to Hanna and explained that his opponent "waged an effective anti-Nixon campaign that held Democratic Party regulars in line, thereby thwarting our need to obtain crossover votes from Democrats."

"President Nixon needs the support of all Orange County congressmen," Teague said, "and I hope Mr. Hanna, although a Democrat, will join with his Republican colleagues, Charles Wiggins, John Schmitz and Craig Hosmer, in giving full support to the President."

Both Hanna and Hosmer districts include portions of Orange County and Los Angeles County.

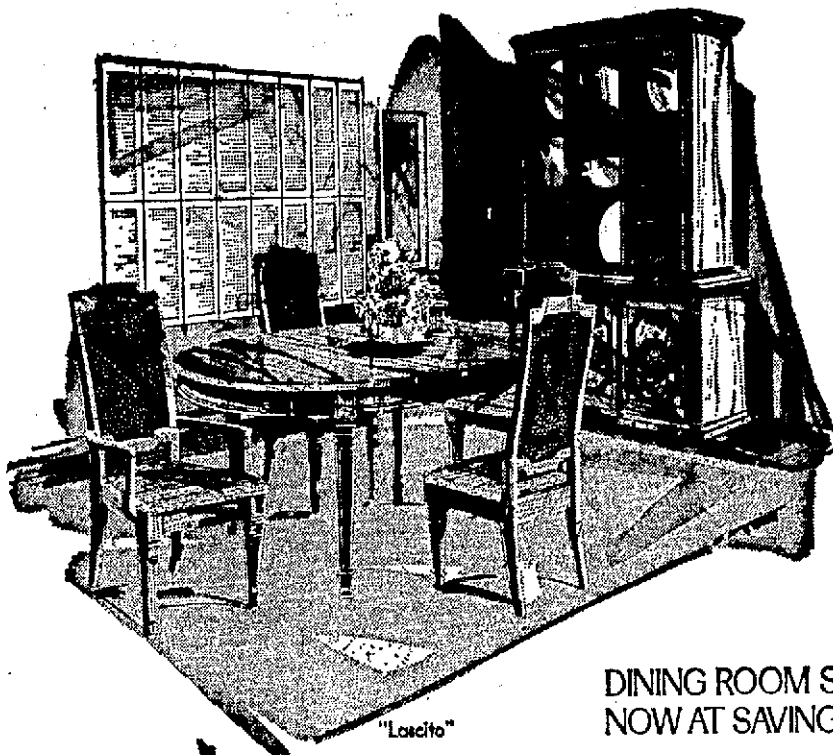

'MAJOR TRIUMPH'

Democratic National Committeeman for California, Stephen Reinhardt, hailed election results as a "major triumph" for Democrats in the state and nationally.

He said his party's "startling" success in winning both state legislative houses will prevent Republican from gerrymandering Democrats out of 10 to 15 congressional seats. It also means, he said, that the GOP Cal Plan aimed at winning the reapportionment assignment "has been a total flop."

MORETTI VIEW

Assemblyman Bob Moretti, North Hollywood, chairman of the Assembly's Democratic Campaign Committee, said his party's victory was one "for all the citizens of California because it restores the historic balance of power between administrative and legislative bodies and follows California's traditional pattern of dividing the responsibility of government between two responsible parties rather than giving a blank check to one party."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. space agency said Saturday it may send aloft a record six tons of scientific instruments in 1974 to study high-energy radiation from space.

A second mission carrying the same tonnage of instruments would be launched later if the study program is finally adopted, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said.

Eddie Peabody, Banjo Great, Dies

Eddie Peabody, who stepped off the submarine S-14 in Long Beach Harbor in 1921 and headed toward a career that was destined to make him one of the all-time greats of the banjo, died Friday night in Covington, Ky.

Peabody collapsed during a performance. Doctors said he suffered a stroke.

The entertainer, who recently resided in Tucson, was honored by the Southern California Banjo Club at a buffet dinner here last June 28 as he completed 50 years in show business.

The Long Beach City Council attended the affair and noted that in addition to being separated from active Naval service here, that the musician served with the Naval Air Reserve here when their headquarters was at Long Beach Airport prior to moving to Los Alamitos.

Peabody played at several local theaters, including the Strand on the Pike, the old Hart Theater which was at Gardenia Ave. and Anaheim St. He taught music here and also operated a "Banjo Booth" on the Pike.

During World War II,

Peabody re-entered active service with the Navy and served in the South Pacific. He was retired with the rank of captain.

Recently the banjo player entertained in Vietnam, saying he wasn't in show business "for the bucks."

"I just got back from Vietnam" he said, "and I played hospitals, bases, ships, everything I could find where guys wanted some entertainment. You have to see it once to really understand what those guys are giving."

Supervisors Back Off on Raises

Stung by citizen complaints against their plans to almost double their pay, Orange County supervisors Saturday came up with a plan to dull the protests.

They expect a record turnout Tuesday at their regularly-scheduled meeting at Santa Ana — and they will back down from their decision to ramrod their pay from the present $15,000 annually to $29,268 — the pay municipal court judges get.

Instead, they will ask the Orange County Grand Jury to "suggest" what pay the supervisors should get.

And they may also toss the hot potato to a hand-picked citizen group which would be asked for a "recommendation."

This will get the supervisors "off the hook" at least temporarily — and they may be willing to let the whole thing rest until the board reorganizes next Jan. 4, when Ronald Caspers of Newport Beach succeeds Alton E. Allen of Laguna Beach, and Ralph B. Clark of Anaheim succeeds William H. Hirstein of Orange.

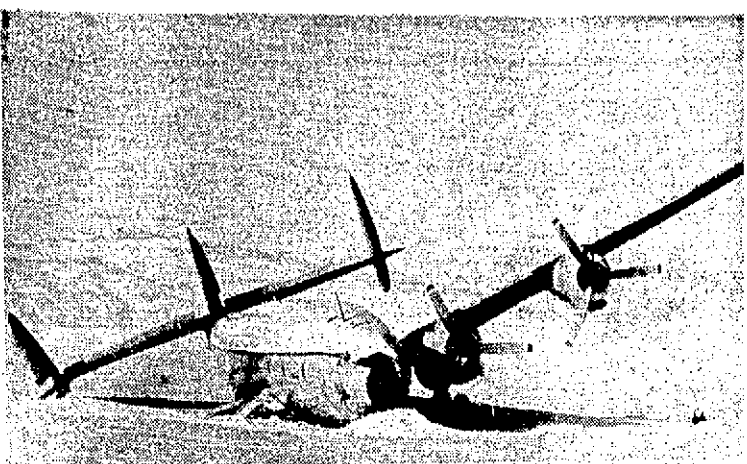

A storm of criticism arose after newspapers reported last week that the supervisors had met in secret session and decided to increase their salaries.

They did so, they said, because of apparent statewide approval of Proposition 13, a constitutional amendment which provides that boards of supervisors in general law counties can set their own pay — subject only to a public hearing and voter referendum.

In years past, the Legislature set the salaries of the supervisors — but Orange County could not wangle a boost from Sacramento because the county supervisors were generally at odds with the lawmakers.

It always was customary for the legislators to receive recommendations from the grand jury about supervisorial pay. Grand juries always recommended more, but never any specific amount.

Vocal leaders of taxpayer groups labeled "absurd" the supervisorial suggestion that their pay be almost doubled. None, however, denied that the $15,000 annual salary should be increased.

DEEP FREEZE 'MIRACLE'

A feared Antarctic "white out" descended on an Operation Deep Freeze flight into McMurdo Station's Williams Field and the pilot of the C-121J Super Constellation, top, had to make a visibility zero landing as fuel ran low after a 2,400-mile flight from Christchurch, N.Z. High winds blew the plane off the runway and smashed its right side, scattering parts all over the ice, bottom. Eighty persons, 68 passengers and 12 crewmen were shaken, but unhurt. It took rescue equipment three hours to get the passengers to the dispensary, three miles away, in the raging storm, Lt. Cmdr. Cliff Graue of Antarctica Development Squadron 6 and the crew were cited for bringing the craft in without loss of life.

ifornia massage parlor business proved. Many of the places are houses of prostitution, ranging in method from the old-fashioned system of contact to electro-mechanical devices.

"Easy to see, but hard to prove legally," said Sgt. Jim Reed of the Long Beach police vice squad, when handed a list of the sampling of the ads.

"Want to see my list?"

Reed opened a desk drawer and hauled out a thick book containing hundreds of the pasted-up advertisements. He opened the book and started comparing notes with the list I had handed him.

"THE FIRST one marked on your list: definitely a house of prostitution," he said. "Same goes for your number three, four and six."

"Your number two, most likely: your number five, almost certainly," he wound it up, handing back the list.

How can they survive if this is known? Reed was asked.

"As I said, knowing and gathering proof enough to go into court with are two different things," the sergeant said.

"We have men working on this situation all the time. But it's hard for us to get in these places, because they know all of us by sight by now."

As the number of such places in the city diminishes, the more this is true, Reed indicated.

"THESE PLACES are cautious all the way," he said. "Some of them make the proposition only to clientele they know, or to people who have been directly recommended by other people they know."

The investigation also is expensive, Reed pointed out with some of the prices almost prohibitive for the investigative budget.

One of the places visited by this researcher charged $10 for the "basic vibrator technique," and $20 for the "special hand massage."

"Special treatments" required, or desired, beyond that "were by arrangement as discussed with the technician."

It was made abundantly clear that the "special treatment" range was going to be well up in the $50 bracket — a bracket as prohibitive for the newspaper investigator's budget as it is for the vice squad's.

Another place offered to combine the $10 "vibrator technique" with the "prostate massage," all for $20. The "technician" was visibly miffed when told by her client he was unable to work up any real communication with a vibrator — basic, advanced, or intermediate.

housing, poverty and resources problems," he emphasizes.

Tom Doyle as the group's publicist, appeals to employers: "Please talk to our people. Open your door. Open your ears and your mind a little bit."

They say they also want to break taboos that ex-aerospacers won't permanently accept pay far below their lush days on cost-plus government jobs.

Applicants with the no-fee EU group, housed in the state Department of Human Resources Development office, 1313 Pine Ave., are realists, they insist.

"We're ready to face it, I think," says Tom. "That was for many an unreal era of country-club levels of living and expense accounts, and they recognize it's all gone for good."

"However, we've got many other skills and talents that can benefit the whole economy, and at the same time support us on a moderate scale. I don't think it's asking too much of prospective employers to talk to us about our broad experience as realistically as we are willing to talk to them."

Operating now for about a month, the group is one of the newest in the EU network that has been reappearing at desk space provided by the employment-service offices in a number of layoff-stricken cities.

The organization's twofold goal is:

- 1 — Reach as many professional applicants as possible and sign them up with EU.
- 2 — Cure the anti-aerospace bias too commonly encountered among employers, and get them to offer EU a chance to send candidates for their job openings.

Even in its infancy the local group has already placed about 10 per cent of its recruits.

"We offer employers a rock-bottom, nothing-deductible warranty," promises the group director. "We play it straight all the way. We don't send any candidate for any interview who doesn't have the qualifications tailor-made for the opening available."

O'Donnell notes that the more of the laid-off thousands who will list with the group, the more employers with vacancies it can satisfy.

A weekly exchange of unfilled job offerings with groups in other cities is broadening the ratio of success in matching applicants to openings.

Other Los Angeles County cities with EU groups currently are Norwalk, Torrance, Santa Monica and West Covina.

They all stemmed from the original revival of the 12-year-old organization in layoff-staggered Orange County with the activation of the Santa Ana group.

Founded in 1958 under state charter in the face of similar mass dismissals among professionals, Experience Unlimited was dormant for years after the end of that crisis.

"Our purpose is the same today," says Larry O'Donnell, "to find the jobs and get the group out to business again as soon as possible."

'MISS CLEAN' DOES HER BIT

TRASH-FILLED DAY ENJOYED BY ALL

By BOB GEIVET

Saturday was too beautiful a day to do icky things — such as picking up trash — but for more than 100 students of Huntington Beach High School, that was their thing to do that day.

They collected hundreds of sacks of rubbish left by thoughtless motorists and beachgoers at Bolsa Chica Beach, a three-mile stretch strand between Huntington Beach and Sunset Beach.

Some of them started cleaning debris off the inland side of Pacific Coast Highway near Warner Avenue — but gave up after awhile. Most of it is out of sight, tangled in the weeds, and almost impossible to retrieve.

The youthful enthusiasm transferred to the main beach, and they formed a cordon to sweep the strand clean of papers, beer cans, bottles and assorted leftovers.

Three hours later — the time the school's Ecology Club had decided the cleanup drive would end — there were more than 100 aching backs met telephone queries on services and prices with:

"We don't give any massages, we don't give any body shampoos, and we don't give any body hand rubs, honey. We use vibrators only. It's faster and cheaper."

None of the girls want to talk about their work and curiosity is the last thing they want to see in a client. One glimmer of it and he is an ex-client.

Despite the difficulties encountered by the Long Beach vice squad men, their work is slowly but surely reducing the number of phony "massage parlors" in the city area.

"Is there any hope that the ones that are out-and-out houses of prostitution will be eliminated?" Sgt. Reed was asked.

"This will be difficult to achieve as long as the newspapers continue to accept such questionable advertising," Reed said. "If they would refuse to do so, the problem would be over — because that's the only way these places can exist."

Asked if any of the massage parlors advertised are legitimate operations, Reed replied:

"Absolutely. And the legitimate and licensed ones suffer most from the illegitimate operations, because the latter give all of them a bad name."

THE FRONTS for prostitution advertise prices falsely and employ untrained people, legitimate operators claim. Licensed technicians in the legitimate places are required to have 200 hours training, they point out.

Prices of the nonlegitimate places run far out of bounds on the "out calls," it was determined. One well-advertised "y o u r place only massage" procedures goes like this:

The client is asked to give his number for callback. After the callback, a man and woman together arrive at the client's hotel, motel, or apartment.

The man makes the arrangements and takes the money — amounting to $70. He then departs, leaving the woman with the client.

But he doesn't go far — just outside or down the hall — to wait until her chore is finished. And it had better be pretty quick, unless special arrangements have been made (for more money) for a longer time, or even overnight.

While many phony massage parlors continue to move out of the Long Beach area and the number slowly dwindles inside the city, in the area at large the establishments continue to constitute a major problem — and the problem is expected to increase.

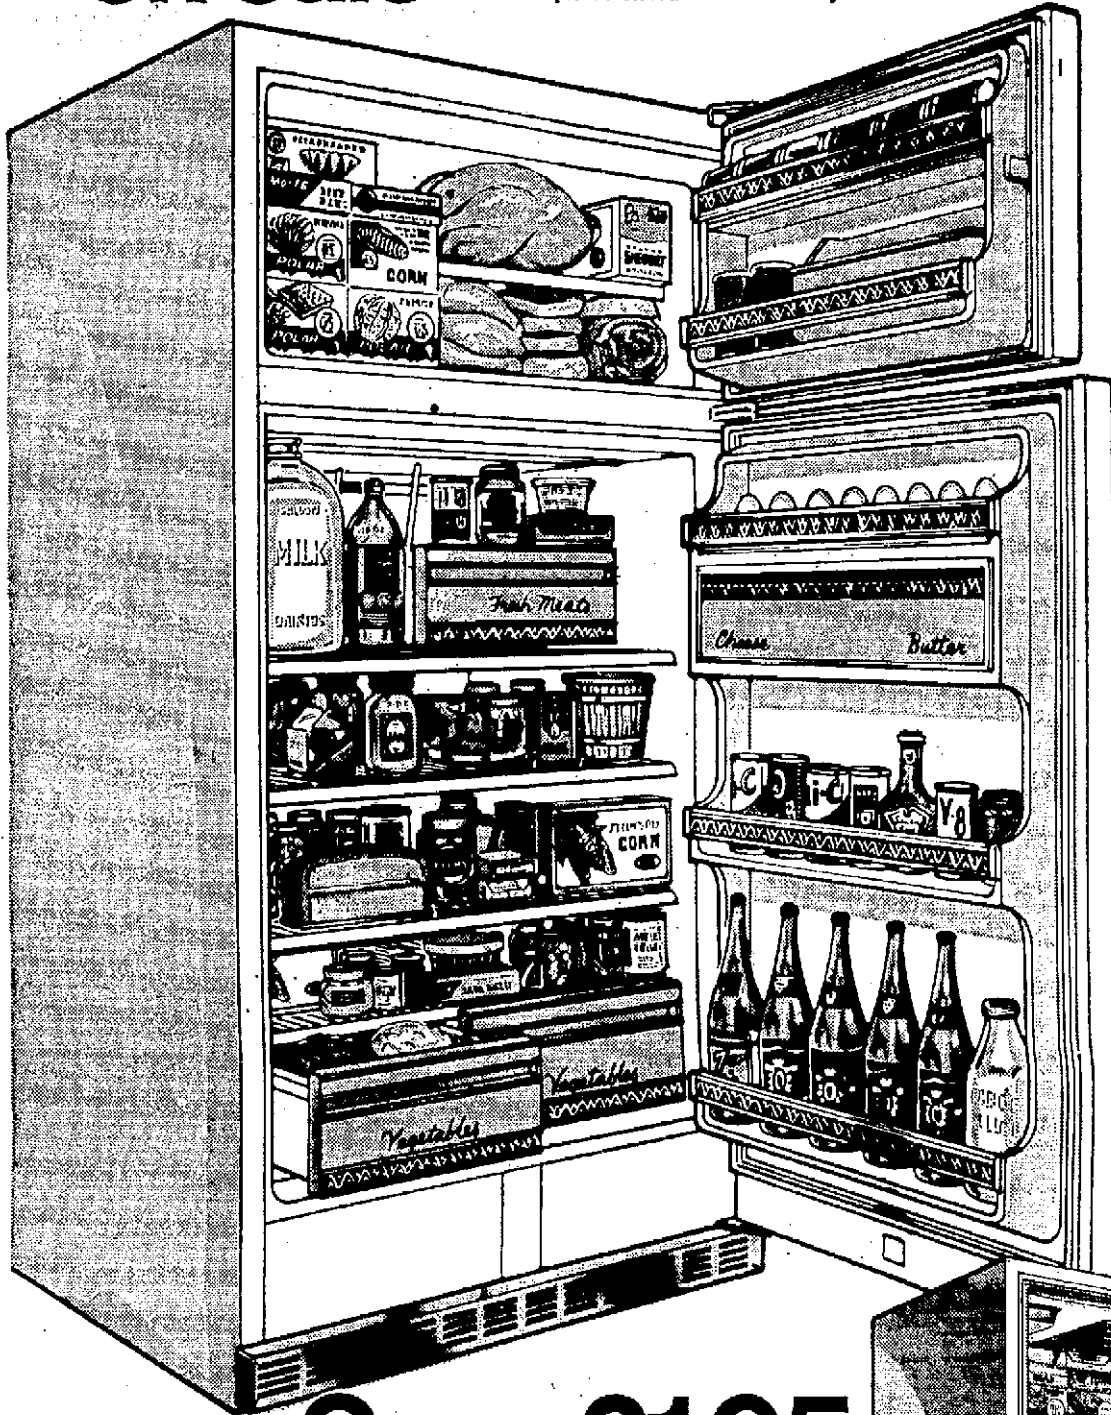

This was unfolded at a recent high level conference involving Long Beach police, Los Angeles police criminal intelligence, district attorney's intelligence, sheriff's department intelligence, and several other police departments in this area.

The gathering was told that a well-organized group from the East and Midwest is moving into this field and a "cartel," which may involve some Southland people of standing, is believed to be forming in back of it.

"Prostitution of any scope always is organized and directed, and it is never organized and directed by 'nice' or 'gentle' people," one official said grimly. "So, you can look for this thing to get rough before it's over."

If there is a better value than the Penncrest® refrigerator, it's the Penncrest® refrigerator on sale.

Admiral Hailed for SAMS0 Gears for Space Needs in 10 Years

Long Swim to Live

A 76-year-old heart attack victim is a prime example of "swim and stay alive."

Rear Adm. Frank D. Higbee, USCG (ret.), port worker in the mid-50s, has been honored by the Red Cross for swimming over 200 miles the past two years.

Recognition came from the current 11th District Coast Guard boss, Rear Adm. James W. Williams, in a ceremony at the headquarters building.

Adm. Higbee's accomplishment is even more impressive considering his attack of over a year ago.

He said his doctors attributed his recovery to "excellent physical condition via swimming."

His routine usually consists of 10 lengths or over a quarter of mile in the Naval Station pool.

He is a prime example of the Red Cross' Swim and Stay Fit program.

The program is open to all ages and those interested should contact the Red Cross in Long Beach.

You can't do tomorrow's job with today's know-how. But when tomorrow comes, you'd better be ready, or you lose out.

For the nation's military space program, tomorrow is ten years away. But development of knowledge and technology for future requirements is a job for right now. It's the job of Cypress' Colonel Dick Rumney at the Air Force Space and Missile Systems Organization (SAMS0) in El Segundo.

"TEN YEARS from now, we will be doing things in space that are impossible with today's know-how," says Colonel Rumney, SAMS0 Deputy for Technology.

This year SAMS0 has identified more than 300 items requiring further study, ranging from climatology to rocket propulsion.

Lubricants which will behave in the environment of space are needed for future long-term space missions. A normally well-behaved lubricant becomes almost unmanageable in a weightless environment. It won't stay where it's put, and leaves bearings either dry or flooded with oil.

"This is especially critical with a spin stabilized communications satellite using a central despun platform to aim the antenna at the earth," says Colonel Rumney.

"On longer and more complex missions we will need longer life solar cells and higher capacity storage batteries, or some other source of electrical power such as nuclear reactors. We will need 'smarter' computers and improved communications links with the spacecraft, possibly using lasers as carriers.

"We need better methods of simulating space environment on earth for more accurate testing of systems.

"WE NEED to know how a long space flight affects the materials used to make a spacecraft.

"We need to develop more efficient rocket motors, and to do this we need a better understanding of what happens inside a motor when it is operating," says Colonel Rumney.

Some technologies for tomorrow's systems are developed by the Air Force Laboratories, others by the Aerospace industry through their own independent research and development programs. "At SAMS0, we identify those areas that will pose problems for future space missions. These are catalogued in our "Technology Needs Program" and provide research guidance to industry and the Air Force," says Colonel Rumney.

"More than 100 actual pieces of hardware and organized research efforts have resulted from SAMS0's Technology Needs Program. Most of the work was done here in Southern California.

"SAMS0 and the non-profit Aerospace Corporation of El Segundo are studying a promising new composite material which, pound for pound is stronger than steel. In fact, it is the strongest substance known to man," says Colonel Rumney.

It is made of graphite or boron filaments embedded in an epoxy resin, and can be used wherever strength

Soviet Journalist Expulsion Blasted

MOSCOW (AP) — Tass complained Saturday that the expulsion of one of its men from Washington was an "arbitrary and unfounded" act by the U.S. State Department.

The expulsion of Leonid N. Zhegalov, the Soviet news agency charged, prevents the "normal activity of Soviet journalists in the U.S.A." Zhegalov's expulsion, announced Friday in Washington, was in retaliation for the Soviet Union's expulsion of Newsweek's chief Moscow correspondent, John Dornberg, last month.

must be combined with extremely light weight. The material is being used in the F-14. "We will also use it for some future space craft."

EVENTUALLY, when the cost is reduced, it could be used for skis, golf clubs, boats, and countless other consumer items.

Hughes Aircraft Company of Culver City, working on a SAMS0 technology need through its own independent research and development program, invented a flexible solar cell panel which can be rolled up like a window shade. Once in space, the panel would be extended its full 32 foot length to provide long term electric power for, perhaps, interplanetary space probes.

The Hughes flexible solar cell panel will be tested in space next year as part of a Department of Defense Space Experiments Program launch. Once in space, the panel will provide electrical power for several other experiments attached to the same spacecraft.

Navy Quota for Crusade 'in Sight'

Long Beach's naval facilities are wrapping up their once-a-year Combined Federal Campaign and making their quotas for the United Crusade is in sight.

The military has reverted to the yearly drive, eliminating various pushes throughout the year.

"There is a lot better response this way," Capt. C. S. Stastny, Naval Station commander, said Saturday.

For the Naval Base and shipyard Capt. John Wright, coordinator, said the quota was in sight.

The CFC closes out at the end of the week.

Roofing Job Pact Let by Council

A $46,314 contract for re-roofing the exercise deck of the Public Safety Building was awarded last week by the City Council to D'Palma Bros. Corporation Co., Inc., of Los Angeles.

Waterproofing material on the roof of the Public Safety Building, which is used as an exercise area for prisoners in city jail, has worked completely away in places, councilmen were told.

The contract calls for the leveling of the roof deck, by use of a lightweight concrete, and then the surfacing of the area with layers of neoprene latex mastic material.

Prize-Winning Lensman Dies

ALHAMBRA (AP) — Larry G. Bartlett, 57, photographer for the Alhambra Post Advocate the past 29 years, died early Saturday of a heart attack.

Bartlett, who had operated Dot and Larry Photo Enterprises with his widow, Dorothy, had won numerous awards.

In 1953 he won the best of show award in state Associated Press competition. The picture showed a one-legged father pulling his daughter up a hill during an Eastern Egg hunt.

Other AP prize winners taken by Bartlett included photos of the 1949 Kathy Fiscus well tragedy and a photo of a bird being fed by hand in 1957.

WHERE IS HE
 Jim Thompson, ex-intelligence officer and silk manufacturer, was one of the best-known Americans in Asia. And, although he hasn't been seen since Easter Sunday, 1967, he hasn't been forgotten. His fate is now one of Asia's most talked of mysteries.

'JUDGE CRATER OF ASIA' U.S. Millionaire Vanishes on Stroll

By MORT ROSENBLUM

CAMERON HIGHLANDS, Malaysia (AP) — On Easter Sunday 1967, an American millionaire with a mysterious past went wandering at this lush mountain resort. They're still looking for him.

He was Jim Thompson, the "Thai Silk King." No one has forgotten Thompson here, but the dripping jungles have yet to hint why he never returned from his stroll.

Rewards of $30,000 remain on the books, and Malay bomohs — witch doctors — still twitch in occasional visions.

Visitors roaming jungle paths peer through lianas and only half-jokingly explain they're looking for clues.

THOMPSON, a World War II intelligence officer, settled in Bangkok and rose to fame and riches with the hand-woven splashy colored silk he manufactured. He gathered a priceless art collection, roaming the northern hills.

When he disappeared, at 61, he had just opened a new plant producing the silk that had become a major modern export of the ancient kingdom of Siam. He was one of the best known Americans in Asia.

The last trace of Thompson was the sound of foot-steps, thought to be his, crunching on the gravel outside the home here of Dr. and Mrs. T. G. Ling, a noted Singapore physician, and his American wife, who runs the Helen Ling Antique Shops, had invited him up for a holiday.

Theories abound: Professional kidnappers grabbed Thompson but disposed of him when they released him.

Aborigine trackers spent days on the trail. Finally, authorities recruited Richard Noone, a British veteran of the area who spent a decade tracking down communist terrorists during the Malayan emergency.

Experts finally gave up, convinced that if Thompson were in the jungle, they would have found traces.

People who knew Thompson well advanced their private ideas, ranging from one circumstantial and now discarded theory involving his will to wild guesses. His past contacts as an intelligence officer, an American embassy officer and a thriving businessman add dimension to the speculation.

The case has become the Judge Crater case of Asia. Judge Joseph F. Crater disappeared in New York in 1930 and though the line, "Judge Crater, please call your office," is still a favorite graffiti line, he never has. Neither has Jim Thompson.

TACOMA BRIDGE COULDN'T STAND WIND

'Gertie's' Last Gallop Resulted in a Scandal

By ROBERT McDANIEL

TACOMA, Wash. (UPI) — It was just 30 years ago this weekend — on Nov. 7, 1940 — that Galloping Gertie galloped for the last time.

She was a thing of beauty — the Tacoma Narrows Bridge, third longest span of its kind in the world. Over one mile long, the bridge rose over Puget Sound, connecting Tacoma and the Olympic peninsula.

There were critics of the $7.4 million bridge project even before the formal dedication ceremonies July 5 that year. Some bridge engineers said the span was not properly designed to withstand the strong winds that hammer the area several months each year.

And the span came to be known as Galloping Gertie when, almost from the beginning, the bridge showed roller coaster tendencies. There were some who said

Gertie undulated so much that approaching cars would disappear from sight, as if negotiating a series of rolling hills.

A strong wind had been building for most of the week and by late Thursday morning, just two days after President Franklin D. Roosevelt had been elected to a third term, Gertie died.

WITNESSES at the scene estimated it was only eight minutes from the time the first suspension cable snapped until a large chunk of the bridge's 2,800-foot long center span twisted free and plunged nearly 200 feet into Puget Sound.

Amazingly, the only casualty was a small dog who refused to leave his owner's car which went down with the bridge.

While he lost his dog, the late Tacoma newspaperman Leonard Coatsworth got the story of his life.

His was the last automobile on the bridge before it collapsed.

Coatsworth jumped from his doomed car and scrambled to safety.

"Once I stepped out on the roadway I was thrown on my face and slid against the curb. By this time cables were snapping with pistol-like reports and the cement around me was beginning to crack," he later wrote.

ALTHOUGH Gertie was gone, she was immediately forgotten. Weeks after the collapse a scandal developed concerning insurance for the span.

A Seattle business leader and insurance broker was ultimately convicted of embezzlement of $9,000 which was to have provided $800,000 in insurance for the bridge. The company eventually honored the policy even though their agent had pocketed the premium.

Oust School Leader for Flag Abuse

SAN BRUNO, Calif. (UPI)—Students at Skyline College here have ousted their student body president because he used an upside-down American flag as a bulletin board in his office. Students voted 394-189 Friday to oust Dan Tobias, 28, and school officials followed that by expelling Tobias because they said he falsified entrance papers.

BEFORE the recall vote, Tobias and other officers at the 1,100-student school had stopped pinning notices on the flag, but left it upside-down as a distress signal.

School officials said Tobias failed to list four years' attendance at C. W. Post College, New York, when he registered at Skyline three semesters ago.

Gauditz Heads Y Branch

New executive director of the Los Cerritos Branch of the YMCA of Greater Long Beach is Gerald (Jerry) E. Gauditz, a graduate of three Long Beach schools who is returning to Long Beach after stints with YMCAs in Caracas, Venezuela, Springfield, Mass., and East Whittier.

Thirty-one-year-old Gauditz, who succeeds Long Beach YMCA executive Jack Kane in his post, has already taken over his new duties at Los Cerritos and has big plans for the future.

Kane, who had been associated with YMCA work in the Long Beach area since as far back as 1961, resigned last month to accept the post of Associate General Executive of the YMCA in Fort Worth, Tex.

GAUDITZ, who comes here from the job of Associate Executive Director in the East Whittier YMCA, was graduated from Long Beach Polytechnic High School in 1956, Long Beach City College in 1961 and California State College at Long Beach in 1963.

He worked for the YMCA of Greater Long Beach from February, 1959, until August, 1963, serving as youth program director and building and camping director for the downtown branch.

In August, 1963, he received a fellowship to work with the International YMCA in Caracas and became executive director in charge of camps for the Caracas YMCA in February, 1965.

He returned to the United States to become an instructor at Springfield College, Springfield, Mass., in 1968, a post he held until he went to East Whittier in September, 1968.

His wife, Beverly, is a graduate of Paramount High School and California State College at Long Beach. They have one son, Derek.

'OH, MY GOSH!'

Cathy (4-11) Cracks the Gym Barrier

It was time now to do her thing, a minute-and-a-half's eternity before thousands of strangers, four feet off the ground on a beam four inches wide and 16 feet long.

"I wasn't very nervous until I started hearing that we hadn't won a medal in 38 years," says Cathy Rigby. "Then everybody was wishing me good luck and telling me 'you can do it,' and the more they wished me luck the harder my heart pounded. I just thought, 'Oh, my gosh!'

"Sometimes I think I might be missing something . . . but then winning the medal and standing up there and hearing the crowd, I don't feel like I'm missing anything." — Cathy Rigby.

But in less time than it takes to say Ljubljana, Yugoslavia, the 17-year-old star of the Long Beach SCATS had won a silver medal for second place in the balance beam competition of the 17th World Gymnastics Championships — the only international medal ever won by an American gymnast.

"I don't think she realizes the extent of what she's done," says coach Bud Marquette, who was with Cathy and teammate Wendy Cluff in Yugoslavia last week.

"It still hasn't hit me," Cathy confesses. "My parents are going to put the medal in a frame with velvet behind it and hang it on the wall or something, but the pressure will probably hit me the next time I go over there. They expect more of me now."

CATHY'S ORDEAL lasted through seven rounds of eliminations over five days. There were six sessions per day and Ljubljana's Tivoli Hall was nearly jammed to its 8,000 capacity each time.

"It seems it would make you more nervous," Cathy says, "but it helps a lot having everybody on your side. The Swiss team had a cowbell and they rang it for me. The other girls are nice but you say 'hi' or 'good luck' and that's about it."

The largest gymnastics crowd Cathy ever saw in the U.S. was during the '68 Olympic Trials at the Long Beach Arena, which was "about a quarter full."

At Ljubljana, lots were drawn for the six finalists' starting order. Cathy was first.

"Usually, first-up doesn't stand a chance," Marquette says. "Funny, the Russians never seem to go first."

RICH ROBERTS

But Cathy was awarded 9.7 points on a scale of 10, a near-flawless performance.

"When you start your routine you think of everything you have to do," she says, "and then when you come back to reality it scares you. All of a sudden you realize the crowd is there . . . like near the end, I was thinking, 'I've made it almost all the way through — I can't fall now."

"Sometimes you have to ad lib parts because you're off balance, but I didn't have to do that at all. But then I had to wait through all the others to find out."

East Germany's Erika Zuchold, third up, also scored 9.7 and took the gold medal on a stronger compulsory routine, 19.2 to 19.05. The favorite, Russia's Petrik, went last and scored 9.55.

IT WOULD TAKE a coldhearted judge to snub Cathy even if she landed on her head. This little blonde pixie is right out of a Walt Disney fantasy, as big as a raindrop, as graceful as an angel, as light as a feather. She wears size "3 to 5," depending, it is supposed, on whether she is inhaling or exhaling at the moment.

"I'm 4-11," she says, "and three-fourths. I'm working on that other quarter-inch."

Weight is not a problem. "Not now, but it was last year. I real-

Nebraska Crushes Iowa State

AMES, Iowa (UPI) — Quarterback Jerry Tagge tossed two touchdown passes and Joe Orduna crashed over for three more Saturday to pace fourth-ranked Nebraska to a 54-29 Big Eight rout over Iowa State.

Tagge also scored on a one-yard plunge in the second period and rattled the Cyclone secondary for 223 yards passing.

His two touchdown strikes covered seven yards to Dan Schneiss in the second period and 14 yards to Johnny Rogers in the third quarter.

Orduna, who had 69 yards rushing, scored on runs of three and eight yards in the first period and went over from the 6 in the third.

Early Tally Doesn't Unnerve Spartans

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan State, stung early by a 98-yard touchdown on the opening kickoff by Stan Brown of Purdue, didn't recover until the third quarter when two TD's by Eric (The Flea) Allen put the football game away, the Spartans winning their third in a row Saturday by a 42-14 score.

BOY STABBED DURING LONDON SOCCER GAME

LONDON (AP) — A youth, about 15 years of age, was stabbed in the chest at the Ipswich-West Ham soccer game Saturday.

Hooligan fans caused trouble at other games, too. At Derby, where Derby County and Liverpool tied 0-0, seven spectators were escorted from the stadium by police. One man was treated for cuts in his hands and face.

At Loftus Road Stadium in West London, where Cardiff downed the Queen's Park Rangers, 1-0, fighting broke out on the terraces behind the Cardiff goal after the Rangers' Terry Venables had missed a penalty.

'YOU'RE NO. 1, BABY'

Adamle's 4-TD Effort Leads 'Cats

EVANSTON, Ill. (UPI) — Northwestern switched from a faltering air attack Saturday to a slashing ground game led by fullback Mike Adamle, who scored four touchdowns in a 28-14 Wildcat victory over Minnesota.

Adamle, who carried the ball 48 times for 192 yards, scored three times on one-yard plunges and once from the 5.

Northwestern trailed 14-0 in the first 13 minutes. The underdog Cophers jumped into a quick lead when defensive back Mike White returned a blocked punt 35 yards for a touchdown.

Two Wildcat drives in the first half ended with passes intercepted in the end zones and Minnesota scored a second touchdown on a four-yard keeper by quarterback Craig Curry.

ARA: 'WE WERE FLAT'

Pitt Leads Irish for 1:39 Then Theisman Unloads

SOUTH BEND (UPI) — Pittsburgh's Panthers sought for redemption too early in the game.

They woke up a sleeping giant when they took a 14-13 lead on No. 3 ranked Notre Dame in the second period Saturday.

Pittsburgh held the lead for only 1 minute, 39 seconds.

Then, Joe Theismann, who surpassed career records of the legendary George Gipp and Terry Hanratty with 381 yards total offense, unleashed the first of three touchdown passes, for 54 yards to Denny Allan, to put the Irish in front to slay.

Unbeaten Notre Dame wound up with a 46-14 victory.

"We were flat," Irish coach Ara Parseghian said afterwards.

"The worst thing was we were playing a team that was badly beaten last week. They're a real good football team and they had the psychological advantage of playing a team that's ranked No. 2. They had a chance to redeem themselves and they did a real good job.

Wolverine Backs Stomp Illini, 42-0

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Glenn Doughty and Billy Taylor each scored two touchdowns Saturday as the Michigan defense spent much of the afternoon in the Illinois backfield throwing sophomore quarterback Mike Wells for losses or forcing him to throw incomplete passes.

It was the eighth consecutive victory in as many games for Michigan this year and the 4th conference triumph in the Wolverines' last 26 games.

Michigan passed and ran over, through and around the Illini defenses all day, with wingback Doughty and tailback Taylor each scoring two touchdowns.

Vols Need FG to Nip S. Carolina

COLUMBUS, S. C. (UPI) — George Hunt calmly kicked a 31-yard field goal with 11 seconds left Saturday to pull 10th-ranked Tennessee to a 20-18 victory over South Carolina.

Hunt's kick spoiled a major upset bid by the Gamecocks, who were 20-point underdogs, and kept the Volunteers in contention for a post season bowl game.

South Carolina had gone ahead, 18-17, with 4:56 remaining when quarterback Tommy Suggs connected with flanker Jim Mitchell on a 61-yard touchdown pass.

Tennessee rallied behind reserve quarterback Dennis Chadwick and moved the ball to the 14-yard line to set up Hunt's winning kick.

OLE MISS BEATS HOUSTON

Archie's Heisman Hopes Ended With Broken Arm

OXFORD, Miss. (UPI) — Archie Manning threw two touchdown passes before suffering a broken arm and Cloyce Hinton kicked a near-record 57-yard field goal Saturday in leading Mississippi to a 24-13 victory over Houston.

The injury ended Manning's collegiate career, dashed his hopes of winning the Heisman Trophy and jeopardized Ole Miss' chances of winning the Southeastern Conference championship.

Manning's injury occurred when he was tackled in the third period while trying to pass. Doctors said his left forearm was broken, apparently when he fell on it.

Manning had been having a good game until he was injured by Houston linebacker Charlie Hall. He threw two touchdown passes in the first quarter, 14 yards to tailback Randy Reed and five to running back Bob Knight.

Houston narrowed the margin in the second period when fullback Robert Newhouse shook off several Rebels on a 12-yard touchdown run.

Manning, who completed 14 of 25 passes for 188 yards in that first half, tried only two passes in the second half.

The Rebels, stunned by Manning's injury, didn't get their attack going again until the fourth period when Hinton kicked a field goal — that was only two yards shy of the modern collegiate record.

The Bengals, picking up their sixth consecutive victory after an opening loss to Texas A&M, drove 87 yards for their other touchdown with the final two yards coming on a pass from Buddy Lee to Jimmy Ledoux with 8:17 left in the first half.

LSU Defense Too Much for 'Bama

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Safety man Craig Burns set up the go-ahead touchdown with a 33-yard punt return Saturday then turned in two pass interceptions to help protect it as underdog Louisiana State upended Alabama, 14-9.

The punt return by the speedy senior from Baton Rouge put the 12th-ranked Bengals at the Alabama 22 while the Tigers were trailing 3-0. Five plays later Art Centelle leaped across from the two-yard line to put LSU into the lead with 7:09 left in the first half.

Lakewood Trojans Enjoy Field Day

SPOKANE — Lakewood's Ron Ayala found another spot in the Trojan record book Saturday by kicking eight extra points in USC's 70-33 win over Washington State and his fellow ex-Lancer Mike Rae equalled a personal record.

These two feats added a definite Lakewood flavor to USC's one-sided win which snapped the Trojans' two-game losing slump.

Rae threw three touchdown passes, completed six of 12 passes for 141 yards and drew praise from John McKay.

"Mike did a real good job. He threw the ball deep awfully well," said McKay.

"Three of the most satisfactory TDs I've ever had," said Mike, who played from the middle of the second quarter until game's end. "The line was really opening holes and pushing those guys around."

Mike's three touchdowns were to Sam Dickerson for 35 yards, 45 yards to Skip Thomas and 36 yards to Charles Young.

"I didn't think Young could get out," said Mike, who was hit just as he released the ball goalward. "He had three guys stopping him at the line. He finally got there and got open."

The touchdown to Thomas, his first reception after switching from cornerback to flanker, came after a near six-point to Chris Chaney. The ball fell off his fingertips inside the 5.

with the opening kick and stunned the Indians as Jim Krieg raced 95 yards for a score.

Plunkett then went to work, chalking up three touchdowns in seven minutes for a seemingly unbeatable 21-7 lead.

But the Huskies, playing hard-nosed ball behind quarterback Sonny Sixkiller, scored with 39 seconds left in the first half to trail by only seven points.

The TD came on a one yard Sixkiller to John Brady pass.

Unable to practice during the week because of a bout with the flu, Sixkiller took the play away from Stanford's Heisman Trophy candidate as he steered the Huskies to a third quarter score and then threw for two points to give Washington a 22-21 lead.

Sixkiller, only a sophomore, finished with 18 completions in 41 attempts for 158 yards. It wasn't one of his better games but it scared the daylight out of Stanford.

WEST POINT, N.Y. (UPI) — Syracuse half-back Ray White raced for three touchdowns in the first half Saturday, and the Orangemen then had to hold off a desperate comeback by the Army to settle for a 31-29 victory.

Although Syracuse seemed to have the game wrapped up with a 28-13 lead, the winning points came on a 32-yard field goal by George Jakowenko with 4:55 left in the game, which made the score 31-21.

Substitute Army quarterback Dick Atha directed a valiant second half effort that fell short, throwing two TD passes to senior Joe Albano after intermission.

Van's QB On the Move Again

Norm Van Brocklin had probably the greatest "moving quarterback" in the history of football in Fran Tarkenton when he was coaching the Minnesota Vikings.

But the Dutchman hated every minute of it. Tarkenton's movement — most people call it scrambling; Fran says it isn't — scrambled Van Brocklin's nerves to say the least.

Van himself always has been "pocket oriented." He always dropped straight back and threw from the pocket; figured everyone else should do the same.

They still joke about Van being so slow that even if he desired, he couldn't run out of a pocket if everyone else was standing still.

Van, whose Atlanta Falcons play the Rams today in the Coliseum, has revamped his offense this season to feature quarterback Bob Berry throwing from "of all things, a "moving pocket."

BERRY HAS HAD pretty good success with this maneuver. In the Falcons' second game of the season against Green Bay, Bob completed 28 passes, a club record.

"Usually you judge completions by crowd response because you're either dodging defenders or you're flat on your back with a couple of linemen on top of you. But lately I've had the pleasure of seeing our touchdowns," Berry says. This is due to the moving pocket.

The success of Len Dawson throwing out of the moving pocket at Kansas City convinced Van that sliding his quarterback to the outside behind blockers could get the job done a little better with a man like Berry, who is between 5-10 and 5-11 and one of the two smallest QBs in pro football.

Berry points out that "the moving pocket gives your linemen a better chance to get position on the defensive linemen. On a dropback, the linemen can just charge straight in at you.

"By rolling out behind your blockers you cause them to hesitate a fraction to see if it's a run or pass, force them to run more than usual, and to change their style of rush."

Berry was sacked no less than 10 times by the Rams during Atlanta's visit to the Coliseum a year ago. Bob is anxious to see if the Falcons' moving pocket can nullify Deacon Jones & Co. this trip.

It should make for a most interesting afternoon.

THE IRONY OF HAVING HIS QUARTERBACK "move" is that Van has been so dead set against it in the past. His problems with Tarkenton led to the latter's trade to the New York Giants early in 1967 and Van's resignation as coach of the Vikings a few weeks later.

Just when it appeared he had gained a more firm hold of the team, he was written out of the act by the equally-outspoken Tarkenton.

The Dutchman could see no other solution but to resign when Tarkenton openly rejected the team and Van as a coach.

The trouble between them had been building for two or three seasons as Van attempted to keep Fran in the pocket. It came to a head after the '66 season when Fran sent a letter to the Viking front office asking that he be traded.

Less than a month later, Tarkenton was traded to the Giants for three prime draft choices — two No. 1 picks and a No. 2 selection.

THE DRAFT CHOICES the Vikings got from the Giants speeded the building of Minnesota's present champs.

In an outstanding 1967 draft in which they chose five men who were destined to become starters, the Vikes got Clint Jones, one of their four outstanding running backs, and Bob Grim, their starting wide receiver, with the No. 1 and 2 Giant picks, and starting offensive tackle Ron Yary with New York's No. 1 selection.

Jones was the second man picked in the '67 draft behind Bubba Smith of Baltimore, while Yary was the No. 1 chosen in the '68 draft.

After joining the Giants, Tarkenton explained that "I don't plan to scramble; in fact, I don't classify it scrambling. Football is instinct, pure instinct. I may have overdone it at Minnesota at times because I couldn't see much sense in giving up on a play or eating the ball."

"But I insist that you can't consider it scrambling when I run through a big hole after it looks like I've been trapped for a loss. I improvise only when I see there is no other way to move the ball."

AFTER BROADCASTING THE New Orleans Saints' games in '67, Van succeeded Norb Hecker as coach at Atlanta after three games in '68. The Falcons, who were 0-3 at the time, were 2-9 the remainder of the season.

But the rest of that year as well as last season was spent weeding out a lot of deadwood who didn't fit Van's hard-nosed mold.

Van has wheeled and dealed and also capitalized on mistakes of other clubs by picking up castoffs who have become starters for him.

Atlanta now is rated one of the most physical teams in pro ball. Even if the Falcons lose, rivals know they've been in a real brawl.

A DEFENSIVE TEST

Bullets at Lakers Tonight

By DOUG IVES Staff Writer

Baltimore's Bullets, one of the real unpredictable teams in the NBA, invade the Forum tonight to face the Lakers, who boast a four-game winning streak.

Featuring a high-powered offense led by Earl Monroe and Gus Johnson, the Bullets are a perfect test for an improved Laker defense that has allowed only an average of 99 points in the last four outings.

In their only previous meeting in Baltimore, the Bullets rallied to win in overtime, 118-116. Only once in nine games have the Lakers yielded that many points.

Baltimore, leading the Central Division by four games, has for years been long on offense and short on defense. Three nights ago the Bullets gave up 135 points and became the first established team to lose to an expansion club.

The string of losses had reached 22 by the three new clubs before Portland prevailed, 135-131.

The Lakers, coming off a rallying win over New York, are starting to get the balanced scoring and tough defense that it takes to win an NBA title.

Gail Goodrich broke out of his slump in the last game with 32 points, raising his average to 16.6. Five Lakers average in double figures, led by Jerry West's 26.8.

The Lakers play in Chicago on Tuesday and Detroit on Wednesday before facing the Pistons at the Forum Friday.

Rams' Winning Way: Get the QB

By BUD GOODE

That "ka-pock-a-ta, pock-a-ta" sound emanating from New Orleans last Sunday was not the rattle of a freight train. It was the echo of cleats on quarterback-Bill Kilmer's helmet as the Rams' front four ran over him.

The New Orleans' quarterbacks were dumped five times by the Rams' defensive line, which leads the NFL in percentage of opposition passers sacked.

There are several ways to measure the efficiency of your defensive line — the number of opposition rushing TDs allowed, opposition yards lost per pass, opponent first downs rushing, opponent average yards per rush and opposition passer tackled percentage. According to the Sports Computer's Univac analysis of pro football, the most important of these is the passer-tackled statistic.

The Rams lead the NFL, dumping the opposing quarterback 16.8 per cent of the time, with the N.Y. Jets, Boston, Oakland, Denver, Green Bay and Minnesota close behind.

According to Ram coach George Allen our defensive squad begins with the front four. It's tough to argue with Allen's winning percentage — and suicide to argue with his front four.

Here are the Sports Computer's passer tackled percentages:

| | Opp. Passer Tackled % | | Opp. Passer Tackled % |
|---------------|-----------------------|-----------------|-----------------------|
| Rams | 16.8 | Cleveland | 11.1 |
| New York Jets | 14.5 | Houston | 10.5 |
| Boston | 14.2 | Philadelphia | 9.9 |
| Oakland | 13.1 | Atlanta | 8.9 |
| Denver | 13.0 | Buffalo | 8.5 |
| Green Bay | 12.9 | Cincinnati | 8.5 |
| Minnesota | 11.7 | Chicago | 8.1 |
| Baltimore | 11.5 | Pittsburgh | 8.1 |
| Kansas City | 11.1 | Dallas | 8.0 |
| | | San Francisco | 7.5 |

Rams Return Home to Face Falcons

By AL LARSON Staff Writer

The Atlanta Falcons have a golden opportunity to step up into pro football's "high society" today when the boys from the land of Dixie travel to the Coliseum to square off with the Rams on 100 yards of chewed-up grass.

This will mark the eighth meeting during the five years the Falcons have held membership cards in the NFL, but the fact that San Francisco's only defeat this season came at Brocklin's hands of Norm Van Brocklin's Falcons makes them worth inspecting.

Odds makers favor the Rams by 12 points, but most of the Falcons are young enough to ignore the 12-point spread.

find something noteworthy in the Little Sisters of the Poor if the Rams were playing them.

An expected crowd of 65,000 for the 1:05 kickoff will see if Allen is right.

It will be a homecoming in several respects. The Rams return after a three-game trip in which they won over Green Bay and New Orleans and lost in the mud and rain to Minnesota.

Atlanta's fiery coach may not regard it exactly as such, but the Dutchman will be back on the scene where he helped quarterback the Rams to divisional titles in 1949-50-51 and the NFL championship in the latter year.

His coaching aides include all-pro offensive guard Duane Putnam, a teammate with Van Brocklin in L.A., and Bob Griffin, center and linebacker with the Rams in the same era.

Atlanta's starting QB Bob Berry also is no stranger in the Coliseum. He starred for the U. of Oregon — Van Brocklin's alma mater — and this season boasts an enviable passing record of 57.8 completions.

A rollout type, Berry has thrown 10 touchdowns passes. His chief targets are tight end Jim Mitchell, 26 for 327 yards, and running backs Jim Butler, 20 for 136 and Harmon Wages, 19 for 103 and 2 TDs.

The Falcon defense is anchored by middle backer Tommy Nobis. A broken hand picked up in last week's game against the Bears won't hamper his ability to flatten Ram runners. Nobis' career was interrupted last year by knee surgery but he managed to come back before the season ended and played briefly. They grow 'em tough in Texas.

Ram quarterback Roman Gabriel has an incentive for a good day. He is only three passes away from breaking Van Brocklin's record of 37 passes.

Computer Picks

Rams 13 over Atlanta. St. Louis 6 over Boston. Buffalo 1 over Cincinnati. Oakland 6 over Cleveland. Dallas 1 over New York Giants. San Diego 1 over Denver. Detroit 15 over Houston. Miami 3 over Philadelphia. Minnesota 10 over Washington. New York Jets 3 over Pittsburgh. San Francisco 13 over Chicago. Baltimore 5 over Green Bay.

Cuozzo: 'Don't Have to Compare Myself to Joe'

Associated Press

After he had led the Minnesota Vikings to a convincing victory over Detroit last week, quarterback Gary Cuozzo was asked to compare himself with last year's hero — the departed Joe Kapp.

"We are 6-1," snapped Cuozzo, "so I don't think I have to compare myself with Joe."

Cuozzo probably was right; but comparisons are as inevitable as they are appropriate to make one before the Vikings begin the second half of their schedule against Washington today in one of the features of a 12-game program.

While Cuozzo has led the Vikings to six victories, he has not challenged the passing leaders in the National Conference. He currently ranks 10th with a 52.7 completion percentage, 1,140 yards and just six touchdowns.

Kapp, however, has had even less success with Boston. He ranks 15th in the American Conference with a 43.2 completion percentage, 357 yards and just one touchdown. Under his leadership the Patriots are 0-4 and John Mazur has replaced Clive Rush as coach.

The two quarterbacks will be focal points on the weekend program, Cuozzo as he leads the NFC Central leaders into Washington and Kapp as the Patriots tangle with the St. Louis Cardinals, tied with Dallas for first place in NFC East.

Eight other games have a bearing on first place in the division races — Detroit at New Orleans, Dallas at New York Giants, Cleveland at Oakland, San Francisco at Chicago, Atlanta at Los Angeles, Denver at San Diego, Houston at Kansas City and the New York Jets at Pittsburgh.

TRIBE NOW PRODUCES MOVIE

Apaches Prospering on Self-Help

By HOWARD GRAVES

DULCE, N.M. (AP) — A little more than 30 years ago the Jicarilla Apache Indians were shattered by disease and death. Tribal population dropped to less than 400.

Today, the nearly 1,800 tribal members are considered among the richest people in the world in per capita value, largely because of oil and gas discoveries on the reservation.

But, motion picture producer Ronnie Lubin of Los Angeles didn't know about the riches when Jicarilla tribal accountant J. Gabriel Abeyta telephoned him about spending some tribal money on a movie.

"We've never heard of you," Abeyta recalled Lubin saying.

"We don't know anything about you, either," Abeyta said he replied.

THE TRIBE'S 49-year-old president, Charlie Vigil, had heard on television that entertainer Johnny Cash would make a movie in Spain with Kirk Douglas.

The Indians, whose reservation crouches beneath the Colorado border in northern New Mexico, telephoned Lubin, who agreed to talk with tribal officials in Los Angeles.

Two days later the 10-member tribal council approved the venture.

The movie, "A Gunfight" was finished with bullfight and gunfight scenes on location at Ocala, Spain, a small village about 50 miles from Madrid. Other portions of the film were made on location near Santa Fe, about 125 miles southwest of Dulce.

In negotiations with the Californians, the tribe set a $2 million ceiling for its investment, the money borrowed from a New Mexico bank to avert dipping into cash assets of some $13 million.

THE FIRST $2 million in proceeds goes to the Indians. After that, they are to receive 25 per cent of all net profits.

Paramount will handle U.S. and Canadian distribution and sales, with the tribe receiving 60 per cent of the royalties.

"I don't see how the tribe can lose money," said Thomas O. Olson of Albuquerque, tribal attorney. "To me, it's a question of how much money they can make."

Abeyta says other tribal monies are invested in stocks and bonds through an agency investment fund set up with four competitive banks in Santa Fe and Albuquerque.

The tribe, he said, is buying U.S. Treasury bills and putting money into reservation industries which provide jobs for tribal members.

"ONE REASON they were interested in doing business with the tribe," Abeyta said of the movie people, "was because we would be less demanding."

"We were willing to learn. We don't know restrictions that exist in the movie business. In New Mexico, they wouldn't be plagued by unions and a high distribution overhead. They would have a freer hand and make more money."

"All we wanted was a fair return on our investment," Abeyta added.

The annual tribal income is a bit more than $2 million, of which about 75 per cent comes from oil and gas lease royalties. The remainder is generated from timber, investments, hunting and fishing, a cattle sales barn and a newly established Jicarilla Apache Tribal Industries.

The tribally owned industrial firm assembles electronic components under federal contracts. In an agreement with Energy Conversion Systems of Albuquerque, it assembles stainless steel cooking pans.

AN ESTIMATED 95 per cent of its 85 employees are women, said general manager L. E. Cox.

The jobs, Cox said, have given an incentive to tribal members to build their own homes. In the past, he said, "they've had no pride."

Some of the homes belong to the tribal housing authority, which rents them at low prices. Others are built by tribal members under a self-help program. Rent is scaled on the head of household income and number of children.

Vigil estimated there are 350 family heads on the reservation. He said there are 500 to 600 employable tribal members 18 years of age or older.

The tribe distributes a portion of its wealth three times a year to each enrolled member, regardless of age. It generally totals $260 to each person.

EDUCATION, says Vigil, "is the key to continued progress."

A high school graduate, Vigil says he is concerned about tribal young people failing to go on to college.

Several years ago the tribe established a $1 million scholarship fund for higher education. But few have taken advantage of the opportunity, says Vigil. A scholarship covers all expenses.

Perhaps Vigil summed up his tribe's future best in remarks last June at dedication of the JAT plant. He said:

"As I hear the old chants of the tribal medicine men and see the spirit of the white man's gods, I know we must teach the young how to love."

"We as a people must stop asking for help. We must learn to help ourselves by helping others through the power of love."

Myrna Loy Picks Roles That Are Right for Her

By DUSTON HARVEY

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Myrna Loy is one leading lady of Hollywood's past who doesn't intend to play "cannibalistic mothers and the other monsters."

"Why should I?" asked the red-haired actress. "I did all those when I was young. I've had a very checkered career, but I know those roles aren't right for me."

Instead she's pursuing a stage career which she started on a learn-on-the-job basis after four decades in the movies.

Miss Loy, who started her screen career in 1922 playing exotic Oriental sirens in Rudolph Valentino films and became one of the top box office draws of the 1930s playing witty sophisticates, made her first stage appearance in 1961.

SHE IS currently on a national tour in "Dear Love," a play based on the Elizabeth Barrett-Robert Browning letters and co-starring its author, Jerome Kilty. Miss Loy hopes to make her New York stage debut in the two person play next April 5 after performances in 16 cities.

The gracious 68-year-old actress lounged in a violet midi dress, sipping a soft drink and gesturing with a cigarette, while she discussed her long career in an interview in her hotel suite.

She was born Myrna Williams at Helena, Mont., into a musical family and as a child studied dance. At the age of 15, she was giving dance lessons in the Los Angeles suburb of Culver City. Her screen name was changed to Loy for the Valentino epics.

Miss Loy's most famous role was as Nora Charles in the "Thin Man" series with William Powell in the '30s. She made more than 100 films, appearing last two years ago in "April Fools."

SHE MADE her stage debut nine years ago because opportunities in movies were getting slim.

"Cannibalistic" mothers and the other monsters offered women of my age these days just aren't for me," she said. "I did all those when I was young. In '13 Women,' I killed 12 of them, but Irene Dunne got away. I used to tell my friends, 'I wish I'd gotten her too,' when she got parts I wanted."

"Bette (Davis) is fantastic in them, but they're really camp. All older women in films today are mad. It gets to the point where you wonder just what the writers have against women."

She made her stage debut in "The Marriage-Go-Round" against the advice of friends, who thought it was a bad role for a beginner.

"I'd never performed in the theater, except as a dancer in my youth. I did study drama in school, but I never had an opportunity to perform. The closest I got was as an understudy for Ophelia in high school. But I was a sophomore and the senior who was playing the role didn't break her leg."

"I DECIDED I would just go out and learn to do. How else do you learn to do theater? You have to learn with an audience."

During the past decade, she's performed in five plays, including two other years in "Barefoot in The Park."

"That was a great exercise in learning to play comedy on stage. In theater, you have to stop for the laugh ... freeze until the laugh begins to break and then move in on it. In films, you never stop. The editor cuts the film to take care of it."

She enjoys playing to a live audience, but said experienced performers in movies reach the point where they sense whether a scene is working — "The men up on the light let you know."

One area where Miss Loy did get a little coaching before performing on stage was her voice.

"I always had a low, soft sort of voice in films," she said. "The sound men had to open it up all the way. But it was very effective and worked for me."

A laugh. "MY VOICE coach had me doing Greek drama, then he told me: 'You have a big voice, but you don't like noise. So you don't like the sound of loud voices.' I've had no trouble since."

Asked if she liked being remembered chiefly for her roles as a witty sophisticate in the "Thin Man" mysteries, Miss Loy doubted it was true — noting that she'd also starred in such classics as "The Best Years of Our Lives."

She lamented the decline of sophisticated film comedy.

"I think the thing that is gone is the way of life of that period — the Noel Coward type of rich chatters with butlers and maids. That kind of life did exist then; it doesn't now; so it's not being written about.

"Life is somewhat more grim now. It's extremely difficult to be witty. I knew people who talked that way — George Kaufmann, Harry Kurnitz, Dorothy Parker. In fact, I used to get pretty rough. I'd be exhausted after a conversation. I'd sit there and think: 'When will I think of something witty to say?' Fortunately, a lot of them are good friends of mine and put up with me."

Repertory's 'Indians' Gives Sitting Bull Some Revenge

By RALPH HINMAN JR.
Drama Critic

South Coast Repertory offers its usual superb production values in a current mounting of Arthur Kopit's new quasi-historical work, "Indians" — which I mentally retitled "Sitting Bull's Revenge" at the end of two intermission-less hours.

But joking aside, this extra-long one-act play — which could be improved by a judiciously placed break at midpoint — is powerful, emotional and flawed drama.

Panoramicly it sweeps across 40 troubled, often inglorious, years of U.S. history, decades in which a western nation ruthlessly, brutally pushed aside the continent's earliest inhabitants. Needless to say, in the playwright's eyes, the white invader always is morally wrong, the redman right.

MORAL STYLES, like any other, change with the generations. In my lifetime I've observed that Western literature — whether books, movies or plays — has passed or is passing through three separate and distinct phases: 30 years ago, "the only good Indian is a dead Indian," a patent falsehood; two decades past we discovered good guys and bad guys in both wagon train and teepee, clearly much nearer the truth; now, recently, it's been "discovered" that both the nation and its westward-moving citizens were moral monsters, a view comparable in absurdity to that of phase 1.

"Indians," it goes without saying, falls in the third group. It was put there, deliberately, by a contrived ending in which a dying "Buffalo Bill" Cody feels called upon to haltingly, stumbingly defend "our government's Indian policy." No skill at reading between the lines is required to realize the American nation is being accused of attempted genocide of the Indian tribes.

THE ACTUAL record is bad enough, but this ridiculously hypercritical judgment is too much. It may please masochists, young and old, who seek some personal release by crying for scourging for the "crimes" of generations long gone. But it won't wash in any cool, rational moral evaluation of a vanished time and place.

Cody — brilliantly characterized by Hal Landon Jr. — becomes the writer's symbolic, archetypal white man — artless, corrupted by visions of the big money, alternately cruel, kind, murderous.

And Sioux Chief Sitting Bull, done with strength and enormously high dignity by William Verderber, represents an Indian civilization in mortal combat with the invader.

'Dirty' Movies Hit by Mary Pickford

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Mary Pickford, the first movie super star of them all, does not see motion pictures anymore because "they're dirty."

When Hollywood was young, and perhaps more innocent, Mary of the long blonde curls was America's sweetheart, the very picture of girlish charm. A pixie.

Tiny — only 5 feet tall — and wispy, Mary Pickford was queen of an era when heroines were all good and beautiful.

Today at Pickfair, the faded mansion to which she moved almost a half-century ago with Douglas Fairbanks Sr., Miss Pickford spoke in a fragile voice, but her spirit belied her 77 years.

"MY PICTURES were clean and entertaining," she said. "We didn't have to violate good taste and decency."

"Buddy (Charles Buddy Rogers, her third husband) and I used to have movies shown here at Pickfair. But there's no telling what you'll see when you watch a movie these days."

Miss Pickford rarely leaves her estate. She suns herself in the garden, reads and is content to watch a few television shows.

"I like 'The Beverly Hillbillies' and 'Bonanza,'" Miss Pickford said. "That Lorne Greene on 'Bonanza' looks a lot like my Buddy."

SHOCKING PARASOL

Rosy Ryan (Sarah Miles) delights in flaunting her parasol. Its black French lace is rather shocking to her elders in the remote Irish village of Killybeg. Miss Miles stars in David Lean's film "Ryan's Daughter" with Robert Mitchum, Trevor Howard, Christopher Jones, John Mills and Leo McKern.

claimers. His hair is silver and his smile engaging.

Mary regarded her husband with affection. "I believe the husband should be the man of the house and run things. Maybe that's because I'm English." (She was born in Canada.)

"I don't go along with the women's liberation movement. Not at all. I don't see why women aren't happy just being feminine. Let the men take care of things. They've done a pretty good job through the years."

"That doesn't mean women can't speak up. Buddy and I have been married almost 38 years. They've been good, happy years. But we have our arguments. He doesn't always give in and neither do I."

Rogers laughed and agreed. MISS PICKFORD, who began playing bit parts in silent pictures in 1912, is thrilled that the American Film Institute in Washington, D.C. will celebrate a Mary Pickford Film Festival Nov. 8-15.

More than 50 feature films and hundreds of one- and two-reel shorts have been made available to the institute.

EARL WILSON'S BROADWAY

Culp Raves About Sheila Sullivan

NEW YORK — Robert Culp sprang gallantly to his feet, bowed, and kissed the fingertips of his blonde actress friend Sheila Sullivan.

(You see, there are nice things happening in Our Town, too, besides stabbing and muggings.)

"This girl is out of this world!" he'd said before she arrived to have coffee with us at the Ground Floor. "It's like seeing Carol Lombard come back to life. She's sensational and it's her first movie. How old is she? I don't know... she's 30 on up... she's no kid."

Culp, getting divorced from France Nuyen, was exclaiming about a picture he did with Sheila and Samantha Eggar in Canada called "In The Beginning." Sheila, whom he'd been dating before the picture started, had some memorable scenes with him — once they had to get "parboiled" for a nude swim.

"We did the scene the hard way," Culp dourly confessed.

"It was so cold — well, Don Franks, one of the cast members, built us a little Indian sweat lodge with hides and little reeds — and hot rocks in the ground like a sauna — and we stayed in there and parboiled ourselves so we wouldn't feel the cold when we went in the water."

SHEILA SPOKE UP. "You don't feel the cold for about five minutes. We had to do the scene five or six times. By the end of it, I couldn't feel my teeth. I felt like I was novocained all over."

"It was supposed to be summer and supposed to be an idyllic swim — boy, could we act!" Culp said.

"I wouldn't do that for George Stevens or John Ford — I wouldn't do it for anybody... this," he said, "is the kind of picture you want for all your life."

They shot it around a famous old inn in Vancouver. "It was built around 1910, allegedly as a summer place for Kaiser Wilhelm if he won the first World War — but there was a hitch in those plans," Culp smiled.

"There are only three things I ever did professionally that I liked — everything else you do just for the money, you get in and get out..."

"One was 'I Spy,' way back in '64. Nobody had ever seen a white person and black person in a continuing basis on TV before... then 'Bob and Carol and Ted and Alice' — and then this..."

"How about Sheila?"

"She'll have billing... I don't think 'Introducing Sheila Sullivan'... that's too corny... We spent four months living in a trailer in the woods in Canada. Will we get married? Well, we haven't run it down that far, I really don't know yet."

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "Humility is the ability to act embarrassed while you tell people how wonderful you are."

EARL'S PEARLS: When Zsa Zsa Gabor first discussed with David Merrick taking over the lead in "40 Cares" she mentioned she didn't resemble the original star, Julie Harris. "That's all right," Merrick said, "Pearl Bailey didn't look much like Carol Channing, either."

A woman told at the Steak Pit of arguing with her husband: "He said I was a terrible housekeeper, and I got so mad I ran into the uh, what do you call it — oh, yes, the kitchen." That's earl, brother.

LORAIN MILLER COLLINS VIEWS MOSAIC TRIBUTE TO THE GENEROSITY THAT MADE A HOSPITAL POSSIBLE

A gift for children

By JOYCE CHRISTENSEN
Women's Editor

It seemed as though all of Long Beach was there.

There were civic and social leaders, judges and politicians, doctors and attorneys, business men and women all with one common denominator — a love for children.

And they were there to pay tribute to a woman and her late husband whose own vision and love of children made possible the Earl and Loraine Miller Children's Hospital Medical Center.

Occasion was a preview benefit reception of the new facility which opens later this year. Hostess group was Junior League of Long Beach.

Doctors, nurses, volunteers and other hospital personnel conducted tours through the 114 bed and crib hospital which adjoins Memorial Hospital of Long Beach.

Guests also visited the new quarters for three children's clinics which are on the ground level of the new center — Children's Clinic of Long Beach, Psychiatric Clinic for Children and the Junior League-sponsored Dental Health Clinic.

BUT THE high point of the evening came with the unveiling of a mural in the main lobby which honors Loraine Miller Collins and her late husband, Earl Burns Miller. Their gift of $4,680,000 made possible construction of the first children's hospital in Long Beach.

The full color ceramic mural by Edward Fazio depicts the Millers standing near their Oregon cabin to view a panorama of the Cascade Mountains.

Six hundred preview guests crowded the lobby, leaning forward to catch the soft-spoken words of Mrs. Collins as she told of the love for the out-of-doors she shared with her late husband, and of their first meeting at Sequoia National Forest.

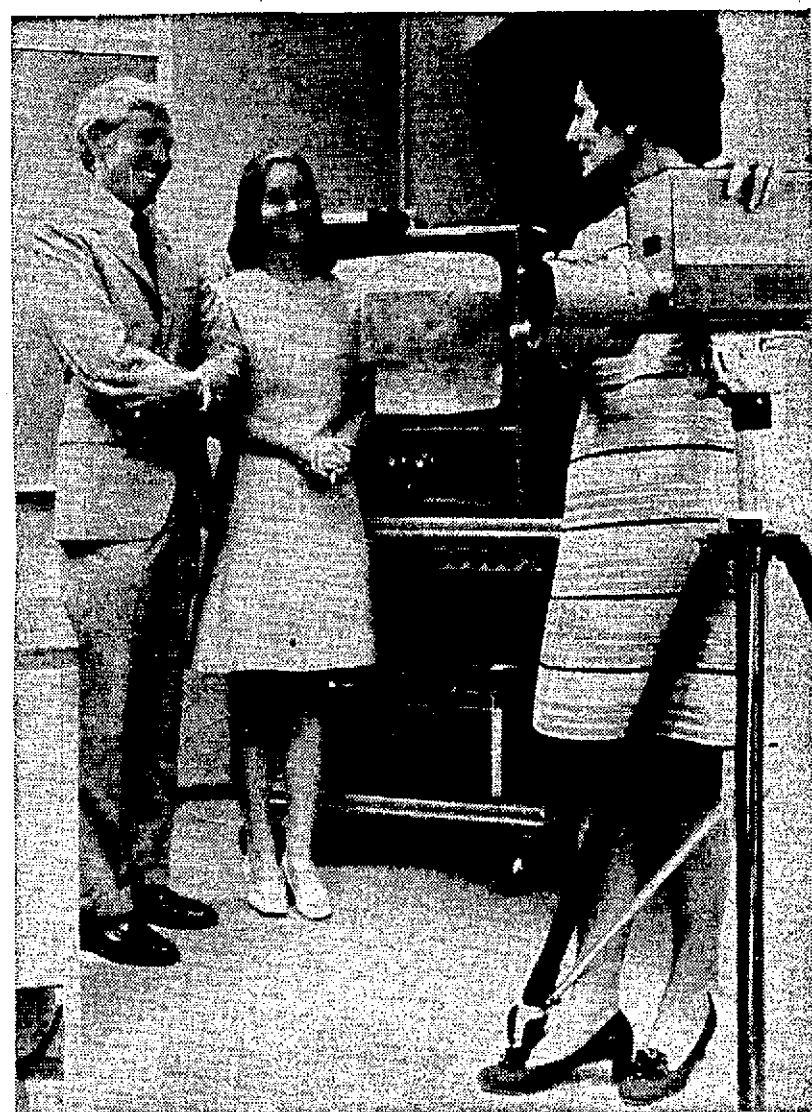

"AFTER WE were married," said Mrs. Collins, "we would spend a day or two in the hills when we could afford it. Then a week or two and later a month or two each year. Earl and I found our greatest happiness in the valley of the Metolius.

"You who knew Earl well learned that he wrote little verses to me, some funny, some serious. Often he would allude to mountain streams, flowers or trees.

"One time, after I had been quite ill, he wrote these lines: I would have you strong as a lodgepole pine is strong. I would have you straight, as a lodgepole pine is straight. I would have you reaching toward the stars."

It is these words that are inscribed in metal at the base of the mural. They are the Millers' wish for all young people who will one day go through the doors of the medical center.

SPEAKING OF GOLF . . . and other sports

The sun shone on the ladies attending the trophy presentation luncheon for winners in the 18th Annual Dick Browning Oldsmobile Golf Tournament at Virginia Country Club.

Presentation day was the only time the weather co-operated. Play was rained out on one day, forcing the postponement of the luncheon for a week. Other days the lady golfer fought Santa Ana winds among other "handicaps."

Honored in Class A were Daphne Munzer and Lois Young, first place; Nell Taylor and Helen Christensen, second; Marion Slocumbe and Carolyn Dickinson, third; Jill Jebbia and Estelle Mooney, fourth; Margaret Wallace and Dixie Millie, fifth.

First in Class B were Mazelle Wilhoit and Jeannette Kinley; second, Joyce Paul and Joan Krietsch, third, Patsy Settles and Geraldine Wookledge; fourth, Kay Roggeveen and Marialice Johnson.

Morning of the luncheon, the 9-hole group played a quickie tournament and the winners were Florence Marshall and Rose Morgan, first; Dora Hill and Jackie McConnell, second; Chuckie Clarke and Elizabeth Hill, third.

Helen Woodruff, aided by Kay Roggeveen, made the table centerpiece of autumn leaves. Marialice Johnson was trophy chairman and had a wonderful time selecting the crystal pieces. She already has selected the awards for the next tournament—wrought gold baskets and gold and crystal jewel boxes among them.

ED TWINING COORDINATED the annual Long Beach Rotary golf weekend in Palm Springs and after Ed had proved his superior golfing skill by being one of the winners, he and wife, Patti, hosted a party for the gang in their Palm Springs home.

Patti says the affair was catered by "P and P." Patti is the first letter and good friend and special guest, Pat Cockriel, was the other chief cook. John Cockriel was chief bottle washer. Bob and Betty Hill were unable to attend the tournament this year but they sent mink tees to all the ladies so they could tee off in style. The men received mink pens to keep their scores. (Golf scores in ink?)

Most of the group stayed at Bermuda Dunes — among them Capt. John (a winner) and Maryb Kauth, Frank (another winner) Kirkland with Alma, Vern and Corinne Fay. Corinne was a winner among the ladies.

CARTING OFF PRIZES FROM BROWNING TOURNAMENT AT VCC

. . . Bill Blankenship is pilot for Mazelle Wilhoit, left, and Jeannette Kinley, overall and B Class winners; Daphne Munzer, A Class winner; Joan Bescos, tourney chairman.

GOLF AND EARLY CHRISTMAS shopping were on the agenda when Frank and Joy Grand, Bob and Hilma Greenberg, Doug and Lois Benwell, Stan and Barbara Allen and Dick McDonald journeyed northward to Del Monte Lodge.

Chief planners of the excursion were Chick and Loraine Cicoletti. Chick organized the golf and Loraine took care of the shopping in Carmel.

It was necessary for Loraine to do her shopping early this year as she and Chick are going on a golfing adventure. Avid golfer Chick won a door prize at a tournament held at Brookside in Pasadena. The prize was two first class airline tickets to practically everywhere. The Cicolettis will be gone a month touring New Zealand, Australia, Fiji, Tahiti and Hawaii.

ANOTHER GROUP of outdoor sports were Harlan and Phyllis Miller, Rea and Marge Rawlins, "T D" Mahannah (Bob came later) Nancy Hartley (Dr. Phil ill) Don and Carolyn Raney, Dick and Aimee Walker, Don and Marianne Walker and Garnet and George Hedley who picnicked on the lawn of the Coliseum before viewing the USC homecoming game with Cal.

Dr. Jack and Martha Tylicki entertained some of the group in their bus at the game, found time to see the USC-Cal water-polo clash before the football game and then gathered back at the Tylicki home for chili dinner.

A POPULAR INDOOR sport this week was TV watching on election night. Although the computers did not declare the victors in the Assembly races until the wee hours, Mike Cullen and Jim Hayes had victory parties. The Cullens took over International City Club and good friends from everywhere came to watch the returns and offer congratulations.

From the Valley came Mike and Darlene Hummel. Down from Los Angeles came Irv and Barbara Taplin and Mike Fitzpatrick. Ed and Jean Evans came from Orange County and Councilman Mark and Sara Hannaford from Lakewood.

Many of the guests visited both parties, crossing party lines for the gala affairs.

The Cullen's oldest daughters, Lisa and Shawn, attended with Shawn's guest Nancy Carter. Gloria Wallace brought her Karen.

Up the street at International Towers, Jim Hayes had not only a bi-partisan group but an international one as well.

Joe Nagano catered French dip sandwiches from his Spanish restaurant. No one took a head count but guests consumed 150 pounds of roast beef and 6,000 hors d'oeuvres.

Among the consumers were Dick and Bunny Kussman, George and Joyce Murchinson, Laine Raines, Harry Albert, Steve Carroll, Jack Mallory from Los Angeles.

Spring promises rebirth of pretty fashions

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Staff Writer

NEW YORK — With an eye on the cash register, the nation's influential designers are pinning their hopes for Spring on the rebirth of the pretty dress.

The pretty dress was the common denominator in the majority of more than two-dozen fashion openings previewed during the past three weeks by United Press International fashion writers in the nation's garment district, New York's Seventh Avenue. Some of the clothes will be in the stores next month, and here's how you'll recognize the "pretty dress" among them:

A hemline at or just below the knee; a skirt that helps disguise hip problems via gathers, soft folds or gentle pleating; bodice that's slightly fitted but rarely bosom hugging; sleeves to the wrist or just over the elbow.

Promotion of the dress with the sensible hemline to fashion's front ranks doesn't mean that fun, intrigue and romance will be missing on the Spring fashion scene.

There will be plenty of pantsuits, a full serving of dressess with romantic, come hither or sexy looks, and even a touch or two of the comical.

Strictly from the comics were three long crepe dresses in the Geoffrey Beene collection, with comic strip characters embroidered on with pounds of sequins.

RIGHT BEHIND the pretty dress space is the ethnic look, inspired by gypsies, peasants, the South American cowboy, the American Indian and grannies of the 1890s. The "ethnics" were designed for patio parties, at-home festivities indoors or even a black tie dinner dance.

For daytime the costume and the Chanel suit repeated in many collections. The costume was a little dress with matching jacket — bolero, cable boy or slightly fitted to the hip.

Coats for spring, most often midi length, came in paintbox colors but navy, always a Spring winner, was most often repeated. A blazer silhouette was preferred in the coddlecoat collection designed by Victor Joris. Cape and trenchcoat silhouettes also were seen. Frequently coats came with matching trousers.

Some fashion houses didn't show a hemline higher than the midi. Pierre Cardin America, for one, relied on high slits — fore, aft and at the sides — to show flashes of gam. These were called petal skirts, sometimes shown by models in bare feet.

Head coverings ranged from small (scarf wrapped) to huge (cartwheel straws). In between were sombreros, fedoras and flatbrimmed straw sailor hats given a touch of spring via floral embellishment.

At the other end, the sheer stocking in beige tones most often was seen for daytime. Ladylike shoes to go with these included t-straps, ankle straps and modified versions of the opera pump.

Some fashion authorities claim the latter never really went out of style on Main Street, U.S.A. Through the era of the chunky heel and the monster shoe, those firms never dropped the opera pump. For a good reason. It sold.

THE ROMANTIC LOOK for evening included crepes and matte jerseys that fitted like a second skin and bared the back, columns of chiffon that provocatively draped the body, and lace versions of the pretty dress — fitted bodice, portrait necklines, long sleeves, gathered skirt, sometimes deckings of ruffles and almost always cinched at the waist with a wide sash, bowed at side or front with flowing streamers.

Some peekaboo looks will make it to the spring fashion scene. Christian Dior-New York did it with toeless shoes. More interesting for girl-watchers was Bill Blass, who revived the body in a big way with a spring collection that was soft, sensuous and sexy, especially for evening.

His unlined printed chiffon and organza dresses included a chiffon number with a wrap skirt worn over matching bikini panties that showed.

Victor Joris designed a short shorts suit with matching like jacket, accented by white knee socks.

"Short shorts are the answer to the midi," he said.

Frank Greens mark 60 years of marriage

A dual celebration marking the 60th anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Green of Long Beach and Mr. Green's 81st birthday will be observed with family members today.

On Monday, they will host an open house for friends at their home, 2410 E. Fifth St.

Mrs. Green was active with the choir and as organist at the Unity Church for 20 years and still plays the organ there occasionally.

What Scouting is all about

By LINDA ZINK
Staff Writer

Serving others is what being a Girl Scout is all about.

It's baking cookies for a children's Christmas party, singing for the blind, reading to an elderly patient.

It's helping the handicapped at day camp, cleaning up beaches, making decorations.

And it's putting other people's needs and feelings before your own.

Explained Mrs. Peggy St. George, public affairs director for the Greater Long Beach Girl Scout Council, "Each month our office receives dozens of suggestions for service projects from groups and individuals in the community. I'm happy to say that our girls fill almost every request."

The Greater Long Beach Council, headquartered at 4040 Bellflower Blvd., represents 520 Brownie and Girl Scout troops in Long Beach, Bellflower, Lakewood, Lynwood, Compton, Norwalk, La Mirada, Paramount and Avalon. More than 10,000 girls, ages 7 through high school, are involved.

"In addition to projects suggested to our office, the troops have their own projects, many of which I'm not even aware of. The girls are free to provide service wherever they think it will be valuable. The only limitation is that any project must be checked out first — either by our office or by troop leaders who are specially trained in choosing and preparing for service projects."

"The girls are constantly involved in conservation and ecology programs — beach clean-ups, freeway on and off-ramp clean-ups, planting trees and shrubs, collecting bottles and aluminum cans and keeping Council properties up."

"The Junior high and high school age girls maintain hospital and convalescent home projects on a year-round basis. They provide entertainment, read to patients and write letters.

"The younger girls aren't allowed to do hospital visits but they do their part too — making tray favors, toys and decorations."

Other services include working with the League of Women Voters in preparing and distributing educational materials, doing office work for the March of Dimes and the Salvation Army, presenting flag ceremonies for civic groups and dedications, and a special project with the California Youth Authority in Norwalk.

The year's biggest project, Mrs. St. George noted, is the Christmas party for the Norwalk-La Mirada Crippled Children's Society at Cerritos College.

More than 1,500 girls are involved in this one project — 1,200 girls will each bake one dozen cookies, the Brownies are making decorations, others will package candy, serve as hostesses and provide entertainment."

A new project is the organizing of the 50-voice Singing Tree Chorus, directed by Freeman High, a professional chorus director from Los Angeles who volunteered to lead the group.

"Singing is a very important part of Girl Scouting. The girls perform mostly Girl Scout and folk songs, but everyone seems to enjoy it — especially the girls themselves."

During Christmas, project requests become even more frequent. "One hospital alone has requested girls for 12 different occasions — for decorating trees, wrapping gifts, cavorting, a Chanukah party, passing out gifts and a New Year's Eve party."

Support for the Girl Scouts comes partially from the United Crusade and partially from the annual calendar and cookie sales.

M. I. MASTERSONS HONORED

Reception marks 60th anniversary

Friends and relatives from many areas of the West will attend a gala champagne reception today to celebrate the 60th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. M. I. Masterson, 5754 Lucia Walk.

The event will be held from 2 to 4 p.m. at International City Club, 1900 E. Ocean Blvd. Hosts will be the couple's sons and their wives.

Married in Bozeman, Mont., on Nov. 9, 1910, the honorees have three children, Melvin I. Masterson Jr. and Norman W. Masterson of Long Beach, and Paul C. Masterson of Sepulveda. They have five grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

practice just prior to World War II.

MRS. MASTERSON was born in Blairstown, Mo. Her forefathers, too, were immigrants from Ireland in the early 1700s, settling first in Virginia and Tennessee and later in Missouri.

Mr. and Mrs. Masterson met at Yellowstone National Park where he drove a stage coach for tourists — known then and now as "dudes" — and she worked as a summertime employe after studying at Montana State College.

Following their marriage, the Mastersons homesteaded near Hardin, Mont., just a "hilltop away" from the historic battlefield of Custer's Last Stand.

MR. MASTERSON retired after 40 years as a scaffolding and lathing contractor in Long Beach.

Mrs. Masterson is a member of Bardi Circle and both have been active in Naples Improvement Society. They have been members of First Church of the Brethren which Mr. Masterson's father, the late Rev. Benjamin F. Masterson, founded at Third Street and Walnut Avenue and served for many years as pastor.

Remodeling feature I appreciate most is the new walk-up window and its extended hours. They'll be from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. Now I can get to the bank on time. Join everyone Wednesday and see for yourself all the improvements.

HIGH fashion hits the peak in the Christian Dior designs for Bulova watches at Wehrman Jewelry. One has a wide tapered 14K gold band. Its cushion shape case has no numbers; the owner tells time by the emeralds and diamonds encircling the face! $875. Seven other stunning Dior designs, from $135. And more fabulously styled, shock resistant Bulovas for women from $50. . . . Tiny tuning fork in men's Accutron watches, from $110, assures accuracy, always. Wehrman's encourages layaways, a point to remember if a watch is on your Christmas list.

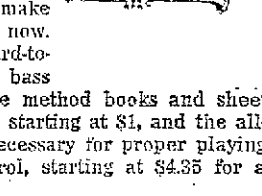

ROYAL Copenhagen, that exquisite porcelain the Danish have been creating since the early 18th Century, has just arrived at Smith's of Long Beach in the form of pet birds and winsome figurines, from $21 to $85. Each piece is made by hand in the Bing and Grondahl porcelain factory. So superb is the work that examples can be found in New York's Metropolitan Museum of Fine Arts and London's Victoria and Albert Museum. Wrapped in Smith's tasteful complimentary gift wrap, Royal Copenhagen is a choice gift for a very special person.

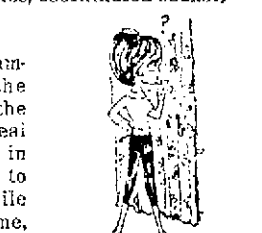

SHELVES at Whittaker Music are lined with newly arrived trumpets and trombones, all good quality major brands. But they won't last long. Many parents find Christmas the ideal time to present their young musician a new horn and make their selection early — like now. Whittaker's even has hard-to-find bass trumpets and bass t-bones, plus go-withs like method books and sheet music, a variety of mutes starting at $1, and the all-important music stand, necessary for proper playing posture and breath control, starting at $4.35 for a chrome-plated model.

LIKE other fine things, wearing Hammonton Park clothes spoils a man for anything less. With assurance born of experience, Dunn's Men's Shop knows a customer buying one of these good looking suits is going to feel 10 feet tall. Further, they are so comfortable — a quality men search for but don't always find. With the holidays fast approaching, men in the family will make a fashionable appearance by taking advantage of Dunn's offer: Hammonton Park suits that were $165-$175 are now $126-$133. (With the savings, how about stocking up on new shirts, wide ties, coordinated socks?)

NOW, before the mad scramble of shopping for the Thanksgiving turkey and the Christmas tree, is the ideal time to put the house in shape. Company's bound to come, invited or un, so while you have a little spare time, take down your draperies, remove your bedspreads and let Quick 'n' Clean Laundry and Dry Cleaning freshen them. They're proud of the job they do, and rightly so. Their vast machines lift the soil from your articles. They're two types of drapery folders — the suspended kind for fan-folding and a steamer that erases wrinkles with live steam. So convenient, so really quick 'n' clean.

What is a HEALTH FOOD STORE?

It's really simple — we're in business to supply pure natural food and vitamins to the people who want it. Food without preservatives or pesticides, vitamins from Organic and Natural sources, Cholesterol and salt free foods for those on restricted diets and many other special purpose foods. Did you know that health food stores were the first to introduce the public to sugar-free soft drinks, whole grain cereals, low calorie foods, yogurt, pineapple, tomato and carrot juice, juice extractors, blackstrap molasses, hulled sunflower seeds, safflower oil and many others?

One of the major functions of the modern nutrition or health food store is to be able to supply people with a complete selection of interesting food. Many people do not realize that if they are on salt free, allergy, low fat or cholesterol diets — with the right food, they can love it!

Dance students to perform on Monday community bill

A program of tap and ballet dancing by students of Dorothea Hackett Dance Studio will be featured Monday in Long Beach Auditorium, beginning at 8 p.m.

The students, ranging in age from 4 to 14 years, also will perform specialty numbers.

Sponsored by the Long Beach Recreation Department, the admission-free concert begins with community singing at 7:30, directed by Mike Beeney, with Regenia Beam as accompanist.

The Tvo Orchestra plays for old time and square dancing following the stage show.

You can help

Each week the I, P-T Women's Section brings readers a list of volunteer opportunities. Interested persons may contact the Community Volunteer Office, an agency of the United Way, at 426-7171, 10 a.m.-3 p.m., Monday through Friday.

CAN YOU MANAGE IT? A youth agency needs a volunteer to help coordinate requests from groups that need help and from groups that can fulfill the needs.

SANTA'S HELPER: A CVO volunteer who places volunteer entertainment in hospitals and convalescent homes would like to have a Santa Claus (with his own Santa suit) who would be willing to work with her Christmas scheduling.

BOOKED UP: An agency is in desperate need of an experienced, retired librarian to catalogue the many books and periodicals on social work it has accumulated.

CLERICAL ASSISTANCE: A number of agencies need help with typing, filing and answering phones. One agency needs volunteers on a continuing basis; others require assistance preparing for upcoming benefits and campaigns.

A SENSE OF HISTORY: Share local historical facts as a volunteer guide for classes of children who will be touring a nearby historical site now through next June.

Sitting with teen-agers

By ERMA BOMBECK

When plump, apple-cheeked grandmothers were passed out (the ones who insisted on babysitting while you were still carrying the child), my mother was out getting an unlisted phone.

Don't get me wrong. She loves her grandchildren. As she puts it, "I also love Smokey the Bear and Harry Reasoner, but I wouldn't want to sit with them on a regular basis."

She considers grandchildren a special bonus for having outlived her own children. "When you're a sitting sit-in," she declares, "you lose your role as grandparent. Of course," she said, "if you get desperate you can call me at this number at a candy store. They know where to reach me."

I CALLED the number last week. "Mom, I haven't had a vacation away from the kids since my honeymoon."

"What kind of a crack is that?" she asked.

"I told you I was desperate. Do you suppose you could sit with the kids for a few days?"

"They hurt me the last time," she said.

"That's my fault," I replied. "I should have told you that when you stand the baby on your lap, he pushes his head against your chin and cuts your tongue in half. Besides, the kids are teen-agers now. It'll be easier."

"Then what?" she asked.

"The problems of teen-agers are over-dramatized," I told mother. "Actually, there is nothing to sitting with them."

"FIRST, I have hidden the distributor from the car in the flour canister. This will give you a warm, secure feeling when the announcer comes on TV and says, 'It's ten o'clock. Do you know where your children are?' They'll be tearing the house apart looking for the distributor."

"Second, don't worry about meals. They'll eat anything as long as it is in a carry-out bag."

"Third, keep a supply of dimes. You'll need them when you have to make a phone call at the gas station on the corner."

"Fourth, if you want them to wear something clean, put it in the dirty clothes hamper. It's sneaky, but it's the only way you can get them to rotate their clothes."

"Fifth, you'll get used to the records, especially if you spend your evenings crouched in the utility closet next to the hot water heater."

"Sixth, don't ever say you understand them. It breaks down the hostile relationship between you that it takes to understand one another. Now you know all there is to know about teen-agers. I am off to the city."

"Hold it," shouted mother. "In case I need you where can I get in touch with you?"

"Here's the number of a candy store," I said. "I'll check in from time to time."

The Aces on bridge

TEAM CAPTAIN

The key to success in almost any endeavor is timing. Contract bridge is no exception. Countless examples exist where the wrong play at the right time is successful; the right play at the wrong time is not.

Today's hand was played in a team contest. It illustrates the importance of timing for the defense.

*Stayman Convention.

Opening lead: Three of spades.

After South's standard opening of one no-trump, North used the Stayman Convention in an effort to locate an eight-card major suit fit. When South denied a four-card major suit, North retreated to two no-trump. South's good intermediates convinced him to bid the vulnerable game.

West's opening spade lead was won by East's ace, and the spade five was returned, South winning the queen. South led the diamond three to dummy's 10 and played a low heart from dummy, East and declarer playing low. West won the heart ace, played a third spade and established his jack.

South knocked out East's heart king, won East's return and claimed his contract. He took two spades, two hearts, four diamonds and one club.

When the hand was replayed in the other room, Edgar Kaplan, famed player, coach and author (Bridge World magazine), was in the East chair. Edgar was also defending three no-trump, reached via the same bidding sequence.

"The play to the first three tricks was identical. However, when declarer played a low heart from dummy at trick four, Edgar rose with his king. Heresy? Second hand low? What was Edgar up to?"

Edgar won the heart king and shifted to a low club. Declarer was helpless.

IF HE TOOK his ace, the defense would collect two clubs, two hearts and one spade. If he finessed, West would win his queen and shift back to spades to clear that suit. The heart ace would provide entry to cash the spade jack and would give the defense two spades, two hearts and one club.

Note that the play of the heart king is the only successful line of defense. A club lead by West will not succeed because declarer will then be able to capture East's king and return the suit, taking in all two spades, four diamonds and three clubs.

New look at Weber paintings

'GRAND CENTRAL TERMINAL,' OIL ON CANVAS, 1915

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Page Editor

Today, with a public reception from 2 to 4 p.m., Long Beach Museum of Art opens an exhibition which director Jason Wong terms "probably the most important exhibit of oils we ever have shown." And he fully credits the Museum Association for making the show possible.

"Max Weber — The Years 1906-1916" will remain on view through Nov. 29. Many of the 60 oils were exhibited during the 10-year span of the title but have not been displayed since. The collection is valued at at least half-a-million dollars.

Wong first heard that these paintings from the Weber Estate would be available for exhibit when he was in New York last May for the conference of the American Association of Museums. Recognizing their importance, he arranged for the show to come to Long Beach, knowing that funds must be found to finance the exhibit.

On his return, he presented his problem to the Museum Association asking, "Can you help?"

Response was immediate and the association, under the presidency of Courtney Trostle II, assumed full responsibility for sponsoring the show.

The oils were painted during Weber's early years in Europe, the time of his studies in Matisse's studio class in 1907-08, of his friendship with Picasso and Henri Rousseau, and after his return from Europe in 1909. They reflect his experiments with pure abstraction in 1914, when fellow-painters Marsden Hartley, Stanton Macdonald-Wright and Arthur Dove also were exploring this approach. By 1915-16, Weber's painting was distinctly his own.

The artist's works today are in the most important museums and collections in the United States, including the Museum of Modern Art and the Metropolitan Museum.

Sharing the opening is a second show, "The Art Rental Gallery Exhibition," with a great variety of new paintings, watercolors and graphics by established artists and newcomers from the Los Angeles area.

'SURPRISE,' OIL ON BOARD, 1910

'Dimension' elicits empathy, wonder

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

Visiting "Dimension," an exhibition of sculpture for the sighted and blind, at the Gallery of California State College, Long Beach, is a touching experience.

Even for those not visually handicapped (who are requested not to touch) the installation is presented so that the tangible experience is vivid.

The polished edges of bronze works — like the 18th century rooster from Benin, Africa, and Frederic Remington's "The Outlaw," reflect the exploring fingers of the thousands who have "seen" the exhibit as it has toured California since Jan. 12.

Diane Sachko, curator and gallery director, is delighted to have the exhibit at our college (where it will remain through the 27th) "because of the lively interest expressed by students from art, psychology, history and special education departments." The installation in the CSLB Gallery is the most outstanding of the six locations the show has visited, according to California Arts Commission representatives.

INDEED, the show is a total learning experience, rich and insightful rather than dry and didactic. An audiotape recording by Irene Dunne (with 10,000 records contributed by Capitol) is a talking catalogue. Identification labels in Braille are on the inside of the guide rail by each of the 30 works.

Selection was guided by quality and significance of each of the works, as well as tangibility and sizes which could be realized by two hands.

EARLIEST is a small granite couple from Egypt of 3,500 years ago; most recent is a crystal eagle on a sphere by James Houston. In between are works from India, China, Cambodia and Japan, as well as figures recapitulating the history of Western art from the Hellenistic to the present.

Aside from the fine organization, scholarship, and preparation of the exhibit, the impression is one of gentleness and wonder, empathy rather than sympathy. One "sees" these works anew, in a new dimension.

Visiting hours at 6101 E. Seventh St. are 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Mondays through Fridays, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturdays, and 1 to 4 p.m. Sundays.

WHEN LEE DICKEY, ninth-grade student at Lindbergh Junior High School, visited "Dimension," she commented on "The Young Faustina," "My, that's nice sculpture—she has a long nose!"

Bacharach to play Arena

Burt Bacharach, whose "Raindrops Keep Fallin' on My Head" won him an Oscar this year, will appear at Long Beach Arena Nov. 20. He will be backed up by a 30-piece orchestra whose members, all selected by the composer, are among the finest movie, television and recording musicians on the West Coast. Bacharach has five Motion Picture Academy Award nominations to his credit. "Raindrops" is from his score for "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid."

'Dear Love'

Myrna Loy and Jerome Kilty star in "Dear Love," the story of the courtship of Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning, which opens Monday at Huntington Hartford Theater, Hollywood. The play will run for three weeks.

Orchestra to open season

For Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra's first Long Beach concert this season, Zubin Mehta not only will conduct but also will preview the program.

The concert will begin at 8 p.m. next Sunday in Milikan High School Auditorium. Symphony Juniors have arranged a 6:30 p.m. preview in the auditorium at which Mehta will give his impressions of the music to be played. All ticket holders are invited to attend without charge.

Mehta has chosen a pre-dominantly Beethoven bill which will open with the "Leonore Overture No. 3" and conclude with "Symphony No. 3," the Eroica. The program also will include Bartok's "Miraculous Mandarin Suite."

Some season tickets are available and may be purchased from Mrs. Howard Nixon, 380 Orlena Ave. A limited number of $4 season tickets remain for students. Individual tickets also will be sold at the box office the night of the concert.

The orchestra will return Monday from a tour of the Midwest and the East. On Oct. 24, the tour opened in New York when the orchestra played in the General Assembly of United Nations to commemorate that organization's 25th anniversary.

Rare sounds blend in Winter Consort

With repertoire, from classical to contemporary, Paul Winter and the Winter Consort will play a concert Saturday at 8:30 p.m. in the Men's Gym at California State College, Long Beach.

Known for its unique blending of instruments, the group combines sax, oboe, cello, classical and 12-string guitars, lute, English horn, sitar and 50 folk percussion instruments. Some of their unusual instruments are the Renaissance racket, an ancient double-reed instrument which produces flat bass sounds; the kalimba (African thumb-piano), the Israeli darbuka (jar drum) and chalil (folk flute).

The Consort includes Ralph Towner, Collin Walcott, Fred Sherry, Glenn Moore and Paul McCandless.

The group has performed for audiences at the White House, Woodstock Musical Festival, Carnegie Hall and the 2,000-year-old Roman amphitheater in Caesarea, Israel.

PAUL WINTER started his first musical group, a German band called "The Hungry Five," when he was 12 and formed a succession of instrumental ensembles throughout high school.

At Northwestern University he organized the Paul Winter Sextet which won first place in the 1961 Intercollegiate Jazz Festival. The prize led to a five-year recording contract and a six-month tour that was so successful it attracted the attention of the Kennedy family who invited the sextet to become the first jazz group to play at the White House.

Tickets for Saturday's concert are $3 and may be purchased at the college or through Ticketron.

Musicians perform 'for pure joy'

Three greatly talented artists who perform "for the pure joy of giving good music to those who enjoy it" will begin a series of concerts in this area next Sunday.

The L'Abri Ensemble will play Nov. 15 at 7 p.m. in Rolling Hills Covenant Church, North Rolling Hills Estates; Nov. 16 at 7:30 p.m. in Biola College, La Mirada; Nov. 17 at 8 p.m. in First Congregational Church, Long Beach; and Nov. 18 at 7:30 p.m. in Orthodox Presbyterian Church, Long Beach. There is no admission charge; a free will offering will be received.

Jane Stuart Smith, dramatic soprano, and Frances Kramer, violinist, are accompanied by Ruth Stark, pianist.

THE TRIO takes its name from the L'Abri Fellowship in the tiny village of Huemot, Switzerland, where the singer and violinist met some time ago. L'Abri, which means "shelter" in French, had been founded earlier by Dr. Francis Schaeffer, theologian and philosopher, and his wife. They opened their chalet to young persons who were seeking to find the meaning and purpose of their lives. One visitor was opera singer Jane Stuart Smith who had won acclaim in Milan, Venice, Palermo, Cairo, Athens, Vienna and other European cities.

JANE STUART SMITH

Another was Frances Kramer who spent two years in Huemot studying with Joseph Szigetti. The two agreed to work together and gave hundreds of concerts in Europe and the United States.

THEIR PURPOSE: "To say, through a program of sacred and classic music, that man's God-given ability to create, as well as his alienation from that Creator, is demonstrated through music, and that many of the world's great composers, such as Johann Sebastian Bach, recognized that this need is met in being reunited with the One who is the source of his life and gifts."

Marionettes enact 'Canterbury Tales'

Master puppeteer John D. K. Brunner will bring his popular and unique marionette production of "Canterbury and Other Tales" to the Soroptimist House of California State College, Long Beach, Thursday at 8:30 p.m.

Geoffrey Chaucer's incomparable writings come alive on stage with all the timeless advice, ribald humor and lusty action performed by the marionettes, covering everything from war and taxes to sex and marriage.

The successful adult marionette production has been performed before theatre arts groups, colleges and universities throughout California. The audience travels to the medieval times but the timely humor and advice reflect our world today.

Sponsored by the Evenings on Campus of the Associated Students, the event is free and open to the public.

Jazz date

High light of "An Evening With the Crescent Bay Jazz Band," Dec. 4 will be at 10 p.m. when the band will be raffled off. Under sponsorship of the South Bay New Orleans Jazz Club, the program will be given from 6 to 11 p.m. at the Schlitz Brown Bottle, 7521 Woodman Ave., Van Nuys. Admission is by advance ticket purchase only. For details call Ron Going, 3530 Claremore Ave., Long Beach, or Lila Stafford, 3136 W. 134th St., Hawthorne.

TWA increases 707 comforts

By HERB SHANNON
Travel Editor

Recent passenger surveys by several airlines show that 80 per cent of travelers who have sampled the wide-bodied Boeing 747 jumbo jet prefer its commodious comfort to the narrower cabins of DC-8s and 707s.

Both the recalcitrant 20 per cent and 747 fans who occasionally find it convenient to fly in the earlier-model jetliners will welcome Trans World Airlines' new program to upgrade 707 passenger services to 747 standards.

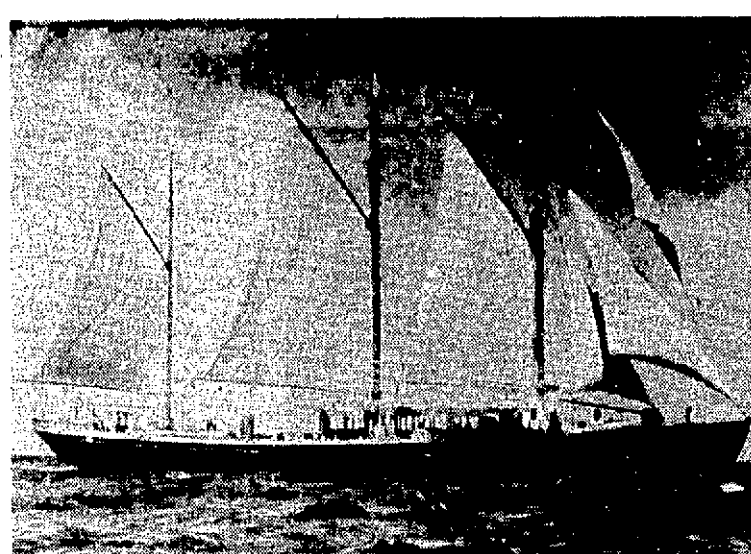

The most noticeable change in the airline's new 707 Ambassador service, which includes everything from improvements in luggage handling to more choices in meals and movies, is the seating arrangement in what used to be called the coach section.

Coach is now the Main Cabin, and is fitted with virtually first class seating throughout. The new seats retain the conventional three-in-a-row coach arrangement on either side of the aisle, but the back of the center seat folds down when unoccupied to form a table between the aisle and window seat.

THE SEATS ARE also wider than previous coach accommodations, and feature an inflatable lumbar support built into the back, a popular comfort device first introduced by TWA on its 747s earlier this year. A push-button control adjusts the seatback to the passenger's contours.

In addition, seat belts and armrests are retractable, making a three-seat couch for reclining on long flights, if you are not above average height. If your personal fuselage is a stretch version, stick to 747s where you may

SAIL THE CARIBBEAN ABOARD SUNDOWNER

LUXURIOUS YACHT LIVING

Sundowner offers bargain sailing trips

For the ultimate in cruising for those who don't own a yacht and can't afford a crew, a new series of three one-week cruises in the Eastern Caribbean has been planned within budget reach on board the Sundowner, a luxury 143-foot motor schooner.

The program, called Sundowner Club Cruises, is a new concept in cruising and combines the advantages of charter yacht and ocean liner cruising, and is scheduled to begin Dec. 19.

The cruises on board the fully-air conditioned Sundowner are designed to make "snob cruise appeal" available to non-yacht owners seeking adventure in lesser visited islands and in the finest cruising area in the world — the Windward Islands.

Sundowner, which has eight staterooms and two spacious lower berths, affords the intimacy of a charter yacht with 14 to 20 shipmates, along with the roominess of a large deck area.

Under command of a seasoned skipper, Capt. Michael Tate, who served 14 years with the Royal Marines, the Nova Scotia-built Sundowner is offering three cruise choices: the Grenadine Club, the Windward North and the Windward South Club Cruises.

THE GRENADINE Club Cruise departs from Grenada Dec. 19 and 26; Jan. 16, 23; Feb. 13, 20; March 13, 20 and April 10 and 17 and is priced from $225.

The itinerary includes sailing through the beautiful Grenadine Islands with stops at Tobago Cays, Union and Palm Island, Petit St. Vincent, Bequia, Mayaro, Canouan and Carri-cou and then back to Grenada. Included are airport welcome and transportation; cocktail reception; complimentary dinner at a Grenada Island Hotel; entertainment, food and beverages on board the Sundowner and use of snorkeling and fishing gear.

THE WINDWARD-North Club Cruise also originates from Grenada and departs Jan. 2 and 30; Feb. 27 and March 27 and is priced from $250. This cruise sails the Grenadine Islands with visits to St. Vincent and St. Lucia and ends in Martinique.

Included are airport welcome and transportation, shipboard cocktail party; complimentary dinner at a Grenada Island restaurant; Calypso dancing to the Sundowner's own steel band; all food and beverages; island hopping including a visit to the banana-growing island of St. Vincent — known for its black sandy beaches and Captain Bligh's breadfruit tree and one of the largest strongholds of the now extinct Carib Indian; lessons in island lore from the Sundowner's Captain, and a visit to the exciting city of Port de France and its many shops and night-clubs.

PRICED FROM $275, the Windward-South Club Cruise leaves from Martinique Jan. 9, Feb. 6, March 6, and April 3 and sails downwind with stops at St. Lucia and St. Vincent with three days of cruising in the Grenadine Islands and makes its last stop in Grenada.

Highlights include airport welcome and transportation; gala shipboard cocktail reception; complimentary dinner at a restaurant in the City of Port de France; a visit to Castries and Marigot Harbors off the island of St. Lucia; beachcombing and a visit to the Botanical Gardens on the island of St. Vincent; visits to Petit St. Vincent and Hillsborough and Tyrell Bays off the island of Carriacou, an afternoon at Halifax Harbor and a special Sundowner moonlight cruise to St. George Harbor on Grenada.

Included in the Sundowner's deluxe accommodations and at your complete service are nine crewmen, officers and a hostess, ship-to-shore transportation in two auxiliary 18-ft. non-sinkable tenders; daily maid service and daily meals and beverages served in the Sundowner's open air saloon.

The Sundowner's gourmet kitchen offers such specialties as charcoal broiled steaks, native lobster, prime ribs, Indian curry and banana flame. Breakfast is hearty American style and an elegant buffet is served for lunch.

English tea is a daily afternoon feature followed by hors d'oeuvres at cocktail hour, a moonlight dinner with a fine selection of liqueurs and coffee afterward.

For further information on Sundowner Club Cruises contact your local travel agent or write Sundowner Club Cruises, 300 East Joe Orr Road, Chicago Heights, Ill. 60411.

Night traffic stops at Fiji

By STAN DELAPLANE

Nadi, Fiji

The north-south Pacific traffic comes through here at midnight. Jets from Honolulu bound for Sydney. Planes from Sydney and Auckland headed for blue sky morning in Hawaii. It's a lively airport at night. Free port liquor and cigarettes. Japanese transistor radios. French perfume.

You must stay overnight to catch the morning DC-3 down to Suva or a taxi to the beach resorts, halfway down the unpaved Queen's Road. Best hotel is the Mo-cambo. A medium dining room but a breezy coconut bar.

The Fijian is the posh new resort down the coast. A sleeper: Man Friday. About $9 double for a bure (thatched hut) on the beach. Do your own cooking. Shop in a Fijian village store. Kerosene lights. If you like warm, native, get-away-from-it-all life, this is your cup of coconut-milk.

"Can we bring leis home from Hawaii? How long do they last?"

The lavender vanda, a child lei, last best. White pikake and ginger are apt to go up. Cheapest long lasting are white-to-white plumeria — about $1.50 a lei. Tell your friends to keep leis in the refrigerator when not wearing them. Leis are worn on the shoulder. Same length hanging down in back as in front.

find four unoccupied seats in the center coach section.

Personally, I believe the readily retractable armrest is TWA's most notable contribution to flight comfort, having just made a 12-hour non-stop flight from London to Los Angeles in the last row of the coach section of a 707 which had not yet received the benefit of the new seat system. It's a 15-minute job to wrestle the old-fashioned armrests out of their sockets.

Food trays built into the new seats fold out in halves, allowing more passenger mobility without knocking your neighbor's coffee into his lap. And all the seats are spaced the same as first class, allowing more leg and carry-on luggage room.

THERE'S MORE — short subjects have been added to the regular double-feature film fare, still a TWA exclusive. Food service has been upped to a choice of three entrees in the main cabin and five in first class, special passenger service agents are assigned to each flight, and a new baggage retrieval service is available at key airports.

It's hard to believe TWA's baggage retrieval methods could be improved, judging by personal experience last month at the far end of the airline's 747 inaugural New York to Rome flight.

After turning Fluminio Airport inside out in search of my one bag, it turned out to be a case of lunch in Rome, luggage in Madrid. A teletype message to the effect that the properly-tagged suitcase somehow got on the wrong plane came while I was filling out a missing luggage form.

The bag was forwarded from Madrid on the 4 p.m. plane as promised and was delivered to my hotel room in Rome at 5:15 while I was taking a siesta in skivvies. The happy hall porter was gone before I could get to my trousseaus for a tip.

TRIP TIPS

New discoveries for ocean voyager

By MARIE MATTSON

(First of two columns on ship travel)

An exciting new world awaits the first-time ocean traveler.

Depending upon where you're heading, it may be a world where porpoises leap in the air alongside your ship... where flying fish skim over the water, their wings like glass... where you'll be fascinated by a spouting whale... or where an iceberg, nine-tenths submerged, floats in the distance like a blue-white island.

Sea travel puts you in the like — or would I rather be in a quiet atmosphere and spend day after day just reading, sunbathing or relaxing? Are gourmet meals necessary — or would plenty of simple, but wholesome food be all right?

If you answer "yes" to the first alternatives, then book on a passenger or passenger-cargo liner. If it's "yes" to the second, then freighter travel may be for you.

Passenger liners go all out to keep you deliriously happy, delectably fed and constantly entertained. There are shops, movies, cocktail lounges, night clubs, games, swimming pools, gyms, saunas, hairdressers, barbers, laundry, daily newspaper, TV and lots of planned activities. Plus a doctor, nurses and a hospital for persons who require medical supervision.

These ships are the leviathans of the sea lanes. The longest ever built is the SS France. She's about three times as long as a football field, has 11 decks and carries 2,000 passengers.

Smaller passenger-cargo liners have space for from 13 to over 100 passengers and offer food and entertainment on a less lavish scale.

Freighters are the workers of the merchant fleets; when they carry passengers, it's never more than 12. Atmosphere is informal. Although there is no planned entertainment, there may be a swimming pool on newer ships. Very few freighters have a doctor aboard, so persons over 65 years usually must have a physician's statement attesting to good health.

THE SMOOTHNESS of any voyage depends upon five major factors:

1 — Weather. Stormy weather makes rough sailing. One of the stormiest routes is the North Atlantic in winter.

2 — Size of ship. The larger a ship, generally the smoother it rides. The biggest passenger liners are around 50,000 tons — small freighters may be only 10,000 tons.

3 — Speed. The faster you go, the more motion there will be. New ships make between 20 and 30 knots (25 to 35 land miles per hour) — older ones do half that.

4 — Load. A loaded ship gives a smoother ride because breezes can't buffet it around so easily. If you'll be traveling on a small vessel, look for one with a full load of cargo.

5 — Stabilizers. This equipment is found on most newer ships — and even on older passenger liners. Stabilizers eliminate about 70 per cent of a ship's motion.

SPEND THANKSGIVING AFLOAT ON PRINCESS ITALIA

Princess Italia to take holiday cruise to Mexico

A festive Thanksgiving at sea, including a special show and an eight-course menu of traditional holiday cuisine, has been planned by Princess Cruises for its 11-day sailing to Mexico on the 420-passenger Princess Italia, departing Los Angeles Nov. 20.

This cruise will also feature the "Jacques Cousteau Film Festival," with TV personality Rod Serling as shipboard host.

Mexican Riviera ports of call will be Acapulco, Puerto Vallarta and Mazatlan, with optional shore excursions available in each port. Cruise fares begin at $395.

In addition to the ship's regularly scheduled nightclub entertainment, a Thanksgiving show, "Harvest Moon Festival," will be presented, featuring a specially created group dance called "The Plymouth Rock" and the Italia's version of the limbo, "Sliding Through the Cornfield." The ship features two dance bands.

PRINCESS CRUISES also will score a first for any cruise line on this sailing with the "Jacques Cousteau Film Festival." Not only will passengers view several of the renowned French oceanographer's documentaries from his award-winning television series, but, by special arrangement with Cousteau and his producers, they will see the premiere of "Tragedy of the Red Salmon," simultaneously with its ABC-TV network airing Nov. 24.

Serling, narrator for the Cousteau series, will host the shipboard premiere and give passengers a behind-the-scenes glimpse into the world of television.

The $20,000,000 luxury liner has a 175-seat theater as well as closed-circuit television in every stateroom. Passengers can view the ship's movies in either the theater or the privacy of their staterooms.

Every stateroom on the all-first-class, fully air-conditioned ship also has individual temperature controls, telephone, private facilities, and multi-channel music system.

The Princess Italia has nightclubs, cocktail lounges, swimming pool, card room, library, duty-free gift shop, and a gymnasium.

Further information on the Thanksgiving Cruise or other sailings to either Mexico or Alaska-Canada may be obtained from travel agents or from Princess Cruises, 3435 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles.

touch with another language, too. A "knot," rather than being something you tie in a string, will measure the miles per hour of your ship. A "quarter" won't have anything to do with money, but will designate the section of the ship just forward of the stern. And a "log," instead of being part of a tree, will record the nautical events of your voyage.

There's a good chance you'll learn to look at a strange ship and tell whether she's about ready to sail. Whether she's carrying mails — or explosives. What country she's from. Where she's going. All this information — and more — is conveyed by flags a ship flies when she enters or leaves port.

IN PLANNING your first ocean voyage, ask yourself these questions: Should it be a ship where I'll have lots of companions — or would I prefer only a few people around? Do I want the stimulation of entertainment — night clubs, movies, games, sports and

Riding shotgun

Husbands on the French Riviera carry their shotguns on family buying trips to Cap 3000, the spectacular new shopping center next door to the Nice-Cote d'Azur Airport. The center has a backyard skeet shooting range to keep dad amused while mom markets.

"All of a sudden Albert started calling me baby. I think it was after the Panama Canal."

These are not good times we live in.

The whole world seems to be messed up. Wars. Riots. Smog. Noise.

And something even worse: millions of people who are not as happy as they have earned the right to be.

We do not have the answer. But we have a suggestion.

The End of the World. For Under $30 a Day.

We know a place where there are no wars, riots, smog, noise and where people are actually as happy as they have the right to be.

The Sea.

Are We Exaggerating?

If you know anyone who has ever taken a pleasure cruise, stop reading this ad and ask them what it's like at sea.

14 Consecutive Nights of Cocktail Parties You Don't Have to Go to.

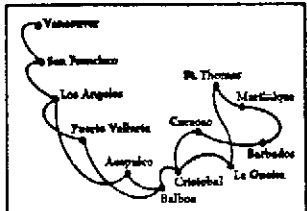

They will not tell you about the three piece orchestras and all the rich desserts and maybe not even about the school of porpoises that followed the ship from Panama to Acapulco.

Beneath all the Glitter.

They will tell you, instead, about the funny little human things that happen. Like getting acquainted with your own husband. Or forgetting all about the world for a while. And not feeling guilty about it.

Couldn't you use a little of that?

Winter cruises aboard S.S. Oriana. For people who thought they couldn't afford winter cruises.

S.S. Oriana sails January 10 from Los Angeles, stops at Puerto Vallarta and Balboa. Then through the Panama Canal to 4 sun-warmed Caribbean ports and back via the Canal and Acapulco to Los Angeles on January 31.

DEAR ABBY

Tossing and turning continues

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am in complete sympathy with "CHEATED" who said when his wife decided to get twin beds, something happened to their marriage.

My husband asked for twin beds because he thought he would be able to sleep better, but our marriage has deteriorated miserably since we stopped sleeping together.

From the twin beds he moved into the spare room and things have gone from bad to worse. We argue constantly and go for days without speaking. It's hard to stay angry at a person when you can reach out at night and feel his warm body next to yours.

I doubt that he is sleeping better because I can hear him moving about at all hours. I am also up tossing and turning.

I am sorry we ever gave up our big double bed, but my pride prevents me from suggesting we try it again since it was his idea to give it up.—ALSO CHEATED

DEAR ALSO: There is more suffering going on in the name of "pride" than for any other single reason. Tell your husband how you feel and quit wasting precious time. And if you both toss and turn half the night, at least you'll have company.

DEAR ABBY: Last Saturday night my husband and I went for a ride in the car and decided to drop in on another couple. My husband went to the door to see if they were home. The lady of the house answered the door and said they were just watching TV, and to come in, so we did.

The room was dimly lit and the man of the house was sitting in a big chair with nothing on but a pair of undershorts. We sat there visiting for a good two hours or more and he never did get up to go put on a pair of pants. I was terribly embarrassed in a situation like this?—what would you have done EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: Probably exactly as you did. Just sat there expecting "Nature Boy" to excuse himself at any moment to put on a pair of pants. But since he didn't, I would have learned a lesson: When one drops in on friends without telephoning TUESDAY: Sloppy Joe, whole kernel corn, fruit cup supreme, peanut butter cookie, milk.

WEDNESDAY: Veteran's Day.

THURSDAY: Taco, green beans, apricot halves, whole wheat bread—butter, milk.

FRIDAY: Italian spaghetti, peas, fresh fruit wedges, hot buttered french bread, milk.

JUNIOR - SENIOR HIGH MONDAY: Cheese enchilada or neapolitan macaroni, green beans, fruit cup supreme, peanut butter sandwich, milk.

TUESDAY: Pizza, garden salad, apricot halves, whole wheat bread—butter.

WEDNESDAY: Veteran's Day.

THURSDAY: Hamburger in bun, pickle chips, 1/2 cheese slice, whole kernel corn, strawberry-rhubarb sauce, milk.

FRIDAY: Chopped steak on whipped potatoes, spanish coleslaw, chocolate pudding with marshmallows, hot buttered cornbread, milk.

first, he can expect anything.

DEAR ABBY: About a year ago we moved to California. We moved into a very nice house in a nice neighborhood. We would have appreciated it if only one neighbor had rung our bell and said, "Hello."

We've been here a year now and we still don't know any of our neighbors. Since nobody rang our bell, should we, as newcomers, have rung their bell and said, "Hello?"—PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: No. It's up to the neighbors to make a newcomer welcome. Since they ignored you, a friendly greeting when you see them is about as far as you should go. If you were to ring a neighbor's bell and say, "Hello," you might be taken for a ding-a-ling.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 6900, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

TELEVISION LOG OF THE INDEPENDENT-PRESS-TELEGRAM AND THE EVENING NEWS

The End of the Amateur Hour

By JOEL DREYFUSS
Associated Press

The years went by but the scenario remained the same. The hoofers, crooners and comedians performed frantically for the audience's approval, then basked in the applause that brought them one step nearer to the elusive world of "show biz."

Ted Mack's Original Amateur Hour, the oldest program on network television, had emerged unscathed in the changeover from radio to television, survived two wars and settled into a comfortable routine while the rest of television sought desperately to understand the taste of its audience.

The show finally died, quietly. CBS said last Monday it had been canceled, when it was not renewed by the sponsor, Geritol.

The Amateur Hour had not been seen since late September, but its disappearance was not noticed because of a number of National Football League double-headers that preempted its Sunday slot.

FOR NEARLY 23 years — 36 years counting the time on radio — a parade of performers presented their routines to audiences across America.

Most remained amateurs, even if they won. But over the years some of the entertainment world's most luminous personalities had their first national exposure on the show — and a lot of them went away losers.

There was skinny Frank Sinatra, a member of the "Hoboken Four" quartet. They were on in STUDYING THE RHINO... With the Goddard Family

Rhinoceros "calling," like hog calling, can prove useful.

That's one way John Goddard, a Canadian wildlife biologist, sometimes gets the huge animal to leave natural shelter so it can be observed close up.

Goddard has been studying the rhino and its habits for seven years in Africa. The story of his work will be presented in "Kifaru—the Black Rhinoceros" at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, Ch. 4 ("Kifaru" is the Swahili word for rhinoceros).

THE ART of "rhino calling" was first practiced by game poachers in Africa who killed the animal for its horn (the horns brought a good price because in certain parts of Asia the horn, reduced to a powdered substance, has been considered a powerful aphrodisiac).

Goddard learned the technique from game scouts, some of whom were poachers once themselves.

The biologist demonstrates the call during the special documentary.

The story was filmed on location in Tanzania and Kenya, Africa.

GODDARD FOUND "rhino calling" to be especially useful during field trips in dense brush.

"It's less dangerous to call him out than to go in after him."

Goddard explained that there are two calls, one for each sex.

"A kind of distressed mewing sound — a baby

OUR FAMILY has enjoyed watching the "Lassie" show, and I have a question... Is "Lassie", in actuality, acted by a male or female collie?

The reason for this question is that some years back, I heard that the part was played by "Laddie", a male collie, for the reason that a female dog could have pups from time to time and so not be able to appear. Yet, early in the continued story series now being shown, there were scenes of "Lassie" nursing her babies...

Mrs. C. Shallcross,
Long Beach

("Lassie" is still a "Laddie" and has been since 1938. The current "Laddie" is the fourth in the series and he's just "acting" as a "she." Spokesmen for the show say a male is used because it is "better looking" than the female which sheds its coat twice a year).

...I WAS watching Ch. 2 at 8 p.m.; the Jim Nabors Hour came on with guest Andy Griffith.

I was shocked and deeply offended when they acted a Biblical theme of Noah's Ark and Daniel.

It was a ridiculous and blasphemous caricature of God's Holy Word. The Bible is not to be used for amusement or ridicule...

A Christian
Martha Staal,
Artesia

(I hardly think Nabors or Griffith intended to be "blasphemous," or "ridiculous" the Bible).

... Do the stations have control over programs? We were led to believe that Dean Martin had a new show.

Then, a couple of weeks back they put in a scene with Rocky Marciano. Then this past week Mike Douglas did the same thing.

Aren't there enough live people to have on programs? I know they still run his beer commercials which probably bring his family money. I don't see why we have to see dead

Mrs. Charley Sell,

(Are you sure you saw Rocky Marciano? Marciano was killed in a plane crash last year. However, Rocky Graziano is alive and well and appeared on Dean Martin's Show and in several commercials. The "Rocky" nickname may confuse some).

with junk programs and many of us wonder...

Too much time is given to programs like dope, crime and plain junk, which the TV viewers have no control over and is not even good for the young people to see.

So get busy, take the trash off, and put back at least some of the good things.

Willard Harris
Long Beach

MANY OF THE good programs have been taken off TV and replaced with old shows... not the least bit interesting to anybody (young or old). Why can't we have the good programs such as the following:

"Hawaii Calls," "Polka Parade," Ted Mack and the "Amateur Hour," "Don and Dettina Shaw," "The Hal Linker Family," "Wonders of the World," "Passport to Travel" with Hal Sawyer, "Melody Ranch"... and Englebert Humperdinck, who is absolutely fabulous? These have all been replaced

(Some of the shows you mention are off, but not all. "Don and Bettina Shaw" are on at noon, Thursdays and Fridays (but after Nov. 19 the Thursday showing will be cancelled); the "Hal Linker Show" is now called "Three Passports to Adventure" and airs at 7:30 p.m. Sundays; "Passport to Travel" is on at 7 p.m. Sundays, all on Ch. 13. These are regularly scheduled, although may occasionally be preempted as was the case last Sunday when the station aired a two program polling voters).

SEASON'S STRONGEST NEW SHOW

Flip's In

By GENE HANDSAKER
Associated Press

"I dreamed of its being like this," said Flip Wilson.

"Walking down the highway at night . . . or in some dingy hotel . . . it was supposed to be like this. I sucked all the love, beauty and enjoyment out of this dream so many times."

And now that the dream has come true — stardom on his own television series, with the Nielsens nifty and the critics flipping for Flip — is the dream in realization as great as it was in anticipation?

"Absolutely!" the little entertainer said in his soft-husky-rapid voice, his chocolate skin glistening with sweat from rehearsal under hot TV lights.

"And I just want to go slow and easy . . . for a long time!" — he stretched out the adjective, savoring it. "This is the time I prepared for."

THE FLIP WILSON Show, an hour of comedy and variety Thursday nights on NBC, made its debut Sept. 17. Almost unanimously, the reviewers sang his praises.

The Nielsen audience ratings scored Flip's fun-time as the fall's strongest new show, headed only by the seasoned "Lucy," "Mayberry R.F.D." and "Doris Day." Flip shaded "Carol Burnett" and "Gunslinger" and was 14 places ahead of "Laugh-In" on the list.

Wilson's triumph — if, as more than one critic mentioned, he can keep up the pace — crowns a 15-year campaign for comedy stardom.

He was born Clerow Wilson 36 years ago, the tenth of 18 children in a destitute family in Jersey City, N.J. When he was 8, his parents separated and he was placed in a foster home. He ran away eight times and was sent to a reformatory.

"The first nice people I ever met were in that school," he has said.

But later, after his release, he dropped out of school at 16 and, lying about his age, joined the U.S. Air Force. He worked as a clerk until renowned as a barracks clown brought an assignment entertaining the men on Pacific bases. His quick wit produced the nickname Flip.

AFTER HIS discharge Wilson was working as a bellhop at a San Francisco hotel where the nightclub dance team needed a fill-in during its costume change. Flip got the job, walking on in the guise of a drunk and ad-libbing from there.

After a few months of this in small California clubs, he began developing his own act, giving himself 15 years to mature as a comedian.

He hitchhiked about the country, playing low-pay night clubs, then finally becoming a regular at a Harlem night club in New York City. In 1965, he made the first of numerous appearances on Johnny Carson's show.

Then came the Ed Sullivan Show, Joey Bishop, Merv Griffin and many other guest appearances, including eight on "Laugh-In."

Flip's comedy has been described as falling somewhere between Dick Gregory's satire and Godfrey Cambridge's exuberance. Like Bill Cosby he tells stories rather than one-line jokes. But whereas Cosby's tales are often based on personal experiences in childhood, Wilson's draw on fantasy and exaggeration.

SITUATIONS from the Bible, history and current life emerge with ludicrous, sometimes pointed twist. In one routine, Flip alters a frequent claim of segregationists to argue facetiously: "The Indians aren't ready yet . . . Do you want to buy a $50,000 split-level and have some Indian put a wigwam next to it?"

In his version of history, Christopher Columbus persuades "Queen Isabella Johnson" to finance his voyage because if he doesn't discover America "there's not gonna be a Ray Charles."

In ample wig and screeching voice as Geraldine Jones, with hand on hip, he has given the language a catchall quip, "The devil made me do that."

Soon to join that, Flip fans say, is the question he asks as the sermonizing Rev. Leroy: "Can I get an amen?"

FLIP 5 feet 7½ and 157 pounds, lithe and graceful

TV NOTEBOOK

The president of the American Broadcasting Co. says television is stagnating.

James E. Duffy, president of the American Broadcasting Co., urged broadcast students in Milwaukee, Wisc., to "seize not simply the day, but the decade" to save television. Duffy quoted the New York Times' Jack Gould as saying that television may be facing a fragmented audience or "a lack of involvement by community and academic leaders more content to let a TV set stand idle than to recognize its influence, for good or ill, among those who cannot afford the cost of other entertainment."

Duffy said he hoped the students would make "an overwhelming refutation of that statement."

He told 150 Wisconsin college students, "You have the unparalleled opportunity to seize not simply the day, but the decade. In a way, I envy you."

CHUCK JONES, ABC-TV's boss of children's programming, has an excellent, witty and intelligent youngsters' movie called "The Phantom Tollbooth" on the market, and next season he will also try to lift the level of video shows for the same audience. He will offer a series of hour-long children's shows called "Curiosity Shop," combining animation, film, live action and music, and aimed mainly at the 6-to-11 age group.

"The idea is to involve the child in explorations that stimulate his understanding of himself and the world around him, not merely to teach him numbers or letters or facts," said Jones.

SPECIAL

60 MINUTES (2), 10 p.m. — Mike Wallace goes to Lawrence, Kansas, for a look at the middle-of-the-night illegal harvesting of crops of wild marijuana, and its stripping and pressing into kilo blocks for shipment. And Harry Reasoner, in one of his last CBS assignments, travels with the Reithoffer Carnival for a look at the modern version of carnivals on wheels.

DICK CAVETT (7), 11:30 p.m. — Veteran actor-dancer-singer Fred Astaire is sole guest, who stars on next week's ABC "movie of the week," makes his first appearance on a talk-show to reminisce about his long career, his former dancing partners, his best-dressed-man status, his family, his current life style and the state of professional dancing today. Clips from his movies and special dance routine are highlights.

Never Play a Loser

Gene Barry Recounts Rise to Security

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Gene Barry's confident swagger on television is the product of an insecure man who once aimed for the stars and made it.

Barry, who headlines "The Name of the Game" in its third year on the tube, no longer is gripped by insecurity. He is rich, getting richer and good at what he does.

Still, he attributes the self-confidence on the screen to the self-doubts he had as a struggling young actor.

"I remember I spent $41 for a suit in New York City on the easy payment plan for my screen test at Paramount many years ago," he said. "I got the part in a picture title '19 Elevado Street.'"

The recollection of that suit and his own economic straits led to Barry being selected recently as one of somebody's (or everybody's) list of 10 best-dressed men on (or off) television.

"Now I'm sick of the clothes horse bit and look forward to shirt-sleeve scenes in the show," said the impeccably dressed actor.

But it is neither wardrobe nor superlative acting talent which has seen Barry through three series, the two previous being "Bat Masterson" and "Burke's Law."

Partly by accident and partly by design, Barry is possessed of three qualities that make him a successful television actor:

Strong facial features.

An imposing voice.

A flair for the dramatic gesture.

These elements can be found in other successful television stars: Raymond Burr, Lorne Greene, Jim Arness, Efrem Zimbalist Jr. and Robert Young.

Those actors who lack one or two of the three elements rarely succeed in a series and soon drop from sight.

"People who see my show tell me they believe me in the characterization," Barry said. "I suppose I have the necessary qualities, but they aren't valuable only to actors."

"They could be used off-stage in politics or industry. Maybe I'm in the wrong business."

There is another element of characterization that benefits any successful star of a television melodrama or action-adventure series — the look of a winner.

"Movie audiences may pay to see a loser once or twice," Barry said. "But as a weekly visitor to the living room, they wouldn't put up with the antihero or the guy who always comes in last."

GENE BARRY

"Viewers want to see the star in adversity, some kind of trouble, but they don't want to worry about us too much."

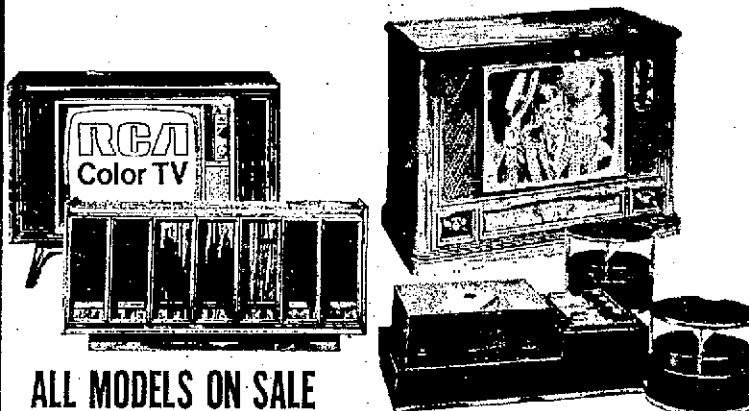

"They know we're going to come out on top. And we do."

"I've worked hard for this. I just want it to be good."

"I do all my worrying during these moments — during rehearsal. This is when I check and back-track. I don't want to worry during the taping; I want to enjoy myself. I generally finish worrying the day before the taping." "If you're not havin' any fun it's not fun," he said, quoting the first of his "Laws of Humor" he has compiled in a two-inch-thick notebook.

FLIP SAID he'd been asked if he thought being black would be a barrier to his success.

"I always said I didn't think so. My team on this show has convinced me my dream was right. Will brotherhood work? It's right here on this show."

Negroes on the staff, he said, include a stage manager, a writer, a secretary, the show's censor and "five or six guys in the band."

Divorced in 1967, father of four children who live with their mother in Miami, Wilson lives with his pet bulldog Jerry in a rented, 12-room house in the Hollywood Hills.

"At the end of the day I want to be alone. I have to be alone, to write and create," he said.

"I can't get swept up in the parties, the things that would destroy my dream."

"Movies? Serious drama? Yes, I want to do it all. But comedy is my love. Once I've established that I'm a comic I'll go do these other things."

KIFARU: The Black Rhinoceros (4), 7:30 p.m.

— E. G. Marshall is narrator for Irvin Rosten's action-filled documentary of biologist John Goddard's study of the life patterns of the rhinoceros in his Kenyan and Tanzanian habitats. Musical score is by Oscar-winning Elmer Bernstein, as hour details Goddard's goal of collecting enough scientific data to help preserve the animal from extinction — tranquilizing the rhino for tagging and checking its teeth to determine age. Show is first of season's three "Monogram Series" specials, the next, Feb. 5, exploring forest fires.

CRITICS' CORNER

MEN FROM SHILOH, ICE CAPADES, both aired Nov. 4, Ch. 4.

About half the television viewers of the nation were burning midnight oil Tuesday watching election returns. NBC thoughtfully booked some light entertainment early Wednesday evening to balance things off.

"The Men From Shiloh" had all sorts of help from guest star Greer Garson with a 90-minute comedy. Then followed that most relaxing of all television extravaganzas, an ice show.

Except for an occasional appearance on a variety show and those feature film rebroadcasts, Miss Garson has been a stranger to television. Her first dramatic role, in one of Doug McClure's "Shiloh" segments, was a woman lawyer using her feminine charms in a manner that must have brought jeers from any women's lib ladies watching.

The story began in the familiar Western fashion. Trampas-McClure's long-playing cowboy role — won a gold mine in a bar room poker game in a small town, then was arrested for the murder of the loser.

Attorney for the defense turned out to be an elegant lady from the East whose methods, while unorthodox, got Trampas acquitted in time for the final commercial and undoubtedly started some studio vice president dreaming about spinning off Miss Garson and her character in a series.

The story was done lightly and at no time did anyone think Trampas was in danger. Miss Garson had some excellent help, with E. G. Marshall playing a susceptible judge and James Whitmore a stony faced but cooperative marshal.

"HIGHLIGHTS from the 1971 Ice Capades" which followed was an eye-filling, ear-filling program that made no demands on the viewer.

It was like all the others, from the solo star swooping and darting to the comedy skating chimp. This time David Janssen was the host and managed to skate from one end of the rink to another without wobbling much. Florence Henderson, resolutely keeping off the ice, added some vocal solos.

The zodiac theme provided an excuse for some stilted dialogue and some very handsome costumes.

BETH BRICKELL

Beth Brickell Wears Hair Long Again

By RICK DU BROW
United Press International

Miss Beth Brickell lives alone high in the hills of Los Angeles, in a lush area known as Benedict Canyon, which is almost as famous for its celebrity residents as for its fire insurance rates.

She has a huge dog who is very friendly and lovable, and who will let almost anyone into the house, doing very little good as a burglar alarm.

It is a nice house, with several fine adornments—a spectacular view and a framed diploma showing that the former Millie Elizabeth Brickell, of the University of Arkansas, has done all right for herself in what they used to call Tinseltown, before the tinsel disappeared.

SHE DID a two-year stretch as a sexy young mama in the children's show, "Gentle Ben," on CBS-TV with Dennis Weaver, formerly of "Gunsmoke" and more recently of NBC-TV's "McCloud," playing her husband.

But that's well behind her now, and a good thing too, because a young lady with her looks and ability, obviously is cut out for more adult and with-it roles.

On her series, she wore her hair short—on CBS-TV's orders because the network wanted her to look more average, which is impossible in her case. In the second season, when she tried to wear her hair longer, the network hollered because she looked so luscious.

WELL, GOODBYE to all that type-casting. She now wears her hair long and blonde and natural, which seems to fit in with her penchant for playing folk songs on the guitar. On this particular occasion, she wore a mid-length gaucho outfit, with boots, and served exotic tea.

She tends her own gardens—literally—and generally avoids Hollywood social life. She was a political science major in college, and did editorial work on newspapers. At night, she studies her craft at school.

"It's so nice to be able to look the way I want to now," she said, in recalling her series experience. "It's nice having long hair. It's so much more feminine and appealing to men."

HER TELEVISION career has begun to shape up nicely. She recently appeared on the top-rated series "Marcus Welby, M.D." The same night, she turned up in the two-hour preview of NBC-TV's new series "San Francisco International Airport," as Pernel Roberts' secretary.

Also this season, she will appear on ABC-TV's police show "Dan August" as a sensitive, frustrated wife; on NBC-TV's western "The Men From Shiloh," on a two-hour NBC-TV "World Premier" called "The Great Man's Whiskers," about Abe Lincoln; and on "Bonanza," in a role she says is her best ever—that of a pathetic, homely country girl.

"They didn't want me for the 'Bonanza' part," she said. "They didn't think I was the type." In the best Hollywood tradition she went to the Salvation Army, bought a dreadful, dumpy dress for $1.50, put it on, wore no makeup, got herself into a pathetic homely mood and went to the "Bonanza" office where, in the best Hollywood tradition, the secretary didn't recognize her. She got the part.

Black Rhino

rhinoceros's signal of distress—will bring mother rhino to investigate.

"A sort of puffing snort simulates an adult male greeting a female and will often bring a rival male at an aggressive trot."

WHEN GODDARD made the calls from a vehicle, the rhinos would often come right up to the car.

"Being rather myopic, they can't tell what we are. Sometimes they are confused and go through a series of behavioral patterns indicating they think we are rhinoceros."

On foot it's another matter.

In that case Goddard always made a point to keep within fast running distance of nearby trees.

MRS. SHELLEY GODDARD has spent the past several years living in Africa with her husband, John, and their daughters Penny, 9, and Nikki, 3.

"Climb a tree and eventually they lose interest," he said.

each and every month...EVEN FOR THE REST OF YOUR LIFE.

This is not a misprint. If you qualify, you get protection which pays you at the rate of $1,000.00 CASH a month beginning the first day and for your full stay in a hospital (other than a sanitarium, rest home or government hospital) due to any accident. Even if you're confined only for one day, you still get $33.33.

It covers all kinds of accidents. When you slip, stumble, fall, get burned, hit by anything, run into anything—any unintentional act or event. Yes, you are covered at home, at work, at play—24 hours a day.

And what's more—

This policy is both GUARANTEED RENEWABLE and NON-CANCELLABLE for Life.

1. Use your policy as often as you need to—you own it, it can never be taken away as long as you pay your premium on time. Your premium can never be raised; your benefits can never be reduced.
2. YOU GET CASH...use it for any purpose; pay bills, buy groceries, pay rent, etc. When you are hospitalized your everyday living expenses still go on. Help meet them with the TAX FREE cash this policy provides. You are paid the full amount even though you collect other insurance, compensation or benefits from any source—including MEDICARE.
3. YOU GET CASH WHILE YOU ARE HOSPITALIZED FOR ANY ACCIDENT, ANYTIME, ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD. You DON'T have to be hurt in any particular kind of accident such as: Auto, Pedestrian, Bus, Traffic, Train, etc. All Accidents are covered. At Home, at Work, at PLAY—TWENTY FOUR HOURS A DAY.

You get a full month's coverage for $1.00. Send no money. When you receive your policy, read it carefully. Only after you agree it does everything we claim, send in your dollar. Remember for each day you are in the hospital, you get $33.33. Yes, for one day or a Lifetime.

No agent or salesman will call or bother you. You are buying directly from the Company through the mail and the savings are passed on to you. That's how this policy can be offered at such a low cost!

Compare this with others. We welcome comparison because this policy pays from the first day, we can't pay any sooner. It pays for a lifetime, we can't pay any longer. Remember, the benefits are $1,000.00 a month for Life and the cost is only $5.00 a month, or if paid in advance, $55.00 for a whole year.

You are under no obligation. Fill out the application and mail it today. Don't wait until it's too late. Policy issued age 1 through 80 if you qualify. This offer must be limited to only one policy for each person.

Lenin's Lucky Break

Alexander Kerensky was in a position, as prime minister, to arrest Lenin in the summer of 1917 and perhaps to have put an end to the possibility of a Bolshevik victory. David Floyd, expert on Russia for the London Daily Telegraph, relates how Lenin avoided arrest.

The Day They Laughed at Lenin

For four months in 1917 Alexander Kerensky ruled Russia as head of the Provisional Government that followed 300 years of autocratic reign by the Romanov czars. In this article, completed shortly before his death this year at age 89, Kerensky writes of his relations with Lenin — and his overthrow by him.

WELLS REPORT

East Is East and West Is — What? Parties

Like everyone else over 30, I have been spending a great deal of my time trying to size up the younger generation. At first I felt guilty about it — covertly watching people under 25, I mean — but then I began to notice that when I wasn't furtively staring at them, they were staring furtively at me. We are studying each other. Maybe measuring each other — like gunfighters in a Western movie.

Anyway, I have discovered a few things in addition to the obvious superiority of the mini over the midi. One of the things I have discovered is that parties are different on each side of the generation gap. Not just different now. The parties people under 30 give now are different from the parties people over 30 used to give when they were under 30 — if you follow me. Stamina isn't the issue.

People under 30 are much quieter at parties than people over 30. Their parties as such aren't quieter because if you are under 30 and you don't own a stereo with a power output of at least 100 watts on each channel, why, then you have to go out and hire a rock band with amplified instruments before you are allowed to hold a party.

But the kids themselves are much quieter than people at parties used to be. Maybe that is because they can't hear each other above the stereo anyway. Maybe it is because they have all been turned to stone by a bolt of lightning from a short-circuit in an electronically amplified concertina.

I have a neighbor, a retired Marine air officer who flew jet fighters in Korea. He doesn't give parties very often, but when he does they are dandy, raucous, hey-look-at-Joe-isn't-he-a-riot parties like people used to give back in the 1950s. When he gives a party, he invites the neighbors from up and down the street so they won't call the cops — just like people used to do in the 1950s.

The music is soft and the people are loud. The only reason you know the stereo is going is that a few couples are dancing to it. Well, maybe it isn't going — even the dancers aren't sure they really hear it. It is drowned out by a roar of conversation that sounds like a Coliseum crowd the moment the Rams break a tight game open with a 60-yard touchdown pass.

The only thing you can distinguish for sure in this background noise is a woman's laugh. At any proper old-fashioned party there are always three or four women who singly can laugh louder than all the other guests combined can shout.

There are other reassuring landmark types at my neighbor's parties. There is, for example, the middle-aged couple that comes to parties primarily to jitterbug. The Charleston is enjoying a revival these days, but it is only at these parties that one gets a chance to once more see the Big Apple, the New Yorker, the Lambeth Walk and the Shorty George.

There is the guy who sings in his partner's ear while he dances because 20 years ago somebody told him it was sexy. Best of all, there is the Life-of-the-Party. He stopped putting lampshades on his head about the time Kennedy was elected, but he still does the snaky solo rhumba and bends the women over backward and kisses them.

There is always someone in the bathroom getting sick.

You can get into a political argument in the kitchen or argue sports on the patio. About the time debaters are coming to blows peace is restored by someone insisting that everyone harmonize on "I've Been Working on the Railroad," "The Whiffenpoof Song" and other oldies but goodies.

Everyone goes home early. For years they went home early because they had to relieve the babysitter. Now that the kids are grown they go home early from habit.

The parties my younger friends give are different. There is that big stereo wind wailing and shaking the house like a Texas tornado. There is no scotch or gin or bourbon — only Red Mountain wine in jelly glass tumblers.

The sofa and few chairs are occupied early and everyone else sits on the floor in a big communal circle. Gradually the people on the chairs and sofa slide off and join the circle on the floor. Everyone sits cross-legged. Many of the guests are barefoot.

You sit on the floor and sip your wine and sway your head to the music and smile at each other, but you don't say much. Someone brings out a joint and lights it. It passes from hand to hand. A political discussion starts and dies. No one wants to argue.

The guests smile and withdraw into themselves. Someone makes a witty comment and a girl laughs. There are always three or four girls present who singly can laugh louder than the other guests can remain silent. It is reassuring, a link with the past.

You get up, say your good nights and leave. You have no idea how long the other guests stay. You always leave first. It is less lonely at home. □

When I asked Alexander Karamanov a few years ago to tell me something about the Turkish leaders he knew, he said he would much prefer not to talk about them at all. People always think my views are determined simply by the fact that they overthrew me and my government. Today it is difficult to avoid the impression that he was colored by the fact his views of me were colored by the fact that he was the one in the power in 1972.

"Of course he did. . . . Very considerable popularity in various circles, but the intellectual thing was . . . and this is what everyone forgot . . . his talent and all the others wouldn't have lasted a single day in Russia if they had had as Hitler said 20 years later, 'I am making use of your democratic machine because I loathe democracy and intend to destroy it.'"

He said that the Soviet Union had to be given the opportunity to express its views on the Communist Party's position on the National Front. But he added that it would be "undesirable" or "undesirable in principle" to wait for elections to a new Constituent Assembly, the body that the only body could think like that. The Assembly would be anti-Bolshevik, he said — there could be no question of waiting for it. As for the Soviets, he called them a good weapon for attaining power, which would otherwise become a useless toy.

"You see, I was at the front at the time, unfortunately. All the information necessary for his arrest went to our hands and the

ARREST AVOIDED

"But when, in my absence, the July uprising began, one of the closest collaborators of the Minister of Justice handed some documents over to the journalists and Lenin got to know about what was planned. Moreover, he was tipped off by one of our own officials that he already had a warrant for his arrest. So he fled.

"Of course — all the others who stayed in Petersburg were arrested, but there is a more serious charge which can be laid against us and against me in particular. This is Widerstand — resistance to the

The Day They Laughed at Lenin

By Alexander Kerensky

Two years ago UNESCO's general conference authorized an international symposium as a tribute to Lenin's work for mankind. In March, 1969, the United Nations Commission on Human Rights, welcoming this symposium, hailed Lenin as a "prominent humanist" and lauded his practical and theoretical contributions in the cause of economic, social and cultural rights. The symposium was held in Tampere, Finland, as part of the Lenin centenary celebrations.

I write to refute the spate of generalizations and panegyrics regarding Lenin's alleged contributions to human progress and freedom. The words used in describing Lenin have simply been taken from Moscow's Pravda and Izvestia, from the mouths of Communists who, unable to live without God, are attempting to make a god out of Lenin. These hagiographers are professional propagandists. It is time for the truth about Lenin to be stated unequivocally.

Lenin was never either a humanist or a lover of freedom. He was a cruel man.

Once he assumed power in November, 1917, he continued to apply the methods he had developed in the underground: dictatorial control, terror and destruction.

Intolerant of any opposition, he put to death over a thousand persons in the first few months of his regime. He took over personal direction of the terror, scribbling note after note to Dzerzhinsky — the first head of the C.H.E.K.A (secret police) — naming the persons he selected to have put out of the way. Dora Kaplan's assassination attempt (on Lenin), the Green Revolution and the Kronstadt Revolt led Lenin to even greater excesses of terror and, in 1921, at the Tenth Congress, he introduced the principle of a monolithic Communist Party which would harbor no factions or dissent.

The period of War Communism (1917-21) was a reign of terror, disorganization and destruction of all institutions and liberties. Above all, Lenin had no sense of statesmanship, nor could he have. He did not care for Russia. To him Russia was but a stepping-stone on the path of world revolution.

Under his aegis, the Treaty of Brest-Litovsk with the Kaiser's Germany reduced Russia to a minor power. It remained for others to undo the havoc perpetrated by Lenin on the Russian land and peoples.

THE AUTOPSY— AND WHAT IT REVEALED

Lenin arrived in Russia in 1917 already with a deteriorating central nervous system — a condition caused by syphilis which he had contracted in 1903. This diagnosis had been made by a Longon doctor, whose name I cannot disclose, to whom Lenin turned for advice about the headaches and insomnia from which he suffered during the Second Congress of the Social Democratic Party. Henceforth, Lenin lived in constant awareness of the incurable disease which would eventually leave him demented. The autopsy performed on Lenin in 1924 by a commission of doctors in Moscow revealed that more than half of his brain was destroyed.

It is only as a sick man that Lenin can be understood, and when one speaks of sick people one does not condemn them, but rather, views them with compassion.

AS A BOY, SECRETIVE AND BROODING

We were born in the same town ... after the death of Lenin's father, Ulyanov, my father virtually became his family's guardian. He helped the widow and the children and personally intervened on Lenin's behalf on two occasions: first, to obtain university admission for him after the execution of his brother and, then again, after Lenin's expulsion from Kazan University, to obtain admission to the University of St. Petersburg.

From my recollections of family conversations, Lenin was described as a secretive boy, brooding, and without close friends. But he studied hard and earned good marks.

The abnormalities in his character did not become apparent until 1903, when he was stricken with the dread disease for which at that time there was no full cure. Cognizant of this, Lenin turned his energies to splitting the Social Democratic Party in order to carve for himself a path to power

For a brief and meteoric moment in 1917 Alexander Kerensky ruled Russia as head of the Provisional Government that followed 300 years of autocratic rule by the Romanov czars.

The fiery man who overthrew him was Bolshevik leader Nicolai Lenin, who fashioned the world's first Communist revolution. Both were brilliant lawyers, both were born in the same sleepy town of Simbirsk (now Ulyanovsk), 11 years apart, and each assessed the other in the harshest terms personally and historically.

Born on April 22, 1881, Alexander Fyodorovich Kerensky was reared with considerable privilege. In his youth he wanted to be an actor or a musician, but when he entered the university in St. Petersburg (now Leningrad) it was to study history, classical philology and jurisprudence.

Admitted to the bar in 1904, he began giving free legal advice to poor urban workers and was quickly caught up in the Revolution of 1905. His later offer to help assassinate Czar Nicholas II was rejected because, said Kerensky, "I had no experience of a revolutionary and could not therefore be relied on."

With disintegration of the czarist regime, two improvised governments formed. One, representing the Duma, included Kerensky as Minister of Justice. Upon almost immediate abdication of Czar Nicholas, Kerensky became, in fact if not name, a dominating figure in Russian affairs. His comparative youth, his talents as a popular declamatory orator, his seeming grasp of the popular mood brought him to the fore.

Then in May, 1917, a crisis in the Provisional Government catapulted Kerensky into the top spot as Minister of War and the Navy. He toured the battlefronts to revive shattered discipline among the armed forces, crying, "... We must enter history so that on our graves it will be written: 'They died but they were never slaves.'"

Four convulsive months later Kerensky toppled from the apex of power. In exile he lived mainly in Britain and France, making occasional lecture tours in the United States. In the '30s he edited an emigre paper in Paris, which he left in 1940 to study and classify Russian documents at Stanford University, teach seminars, and lecture at colleges across America.

In his article, "The Day They Laughed at Lenin," written just before his death in 1970 at age 89, Kerensky denounces bolshevism, the cult of Leninism, and reaffirms his never-wavering faith in the indestructibility of Russia.

through tight, organizational control.

I remember when I heard Lenin speak at the First All-Russian Congress of the Soviets and the Front-Line Organizations on June 1, 1917 — it was our only (personal) encounter and it has remained indelible in my memory. Lenin was advocating the deposition and arrest of 10 ministers, myself included.

"Down with the 10 capitalist ministers and everything will be splendid!" he cried. Everyone present roared with laughter. At this reaction, Lenin picked up his briefcase and left the auditorium.

My speech followed his and, addressing myself to the Bolsheviks in general and to Lenin in particular, I said: "Be careful! Out of this chaos, like a phoenix out of the ashes, there will come a dictator — and it will not be me... You are recommending childish prescriptions — arrest, kill, destroy! Who are you — Socialists, or police of the old regime?"

It was clear to me already then that Lenin's only interest was the assumption of dictatorial powers and I did not forget the record of the Bolsheviks under the Czarist regime when their members worked hand-in-glove with the dreaded Okhranka — the secret police. Several members of their Central Committee were, in fact, agents of the secret police and they used their special powers freely to arrest, suppress and destroy the Liberals, Leftists, Socialists and other progressive-minded people who were not allied to the Bolsheviks.

TO KNOW HIM, KNOW THOSE WHO LED HIM

Lenin's "April Theses" and his book, "State and Revolution," both produced in 1917, already clearly showed the workings of his mind. Even members of his own Bolshevik Party were at that time aghast at the destructive, anarchistic streak in his writings and called these "the ravings of a madman."

But to appraise Lenin's works, it is not enough to label them the ravings of a madman. Nor should the error be compounded by depicting his writings, in the fashion today, as the product of a genius.

To understand Lenin, one must first discard the myth of his leadership in Russia. Before his arrival in 1917 he was absent for a full decade and was virtually unknown to the masses at large. By admirers and detractors alike, little or no attention has been paid to those who led Lenin — to those who influenced his thoughts and who actually directed his actions — but the fact is that all his life there were others behind him. To know Lenin, in short, is to know who those others were.

In Lenin's adolescence it was his elder brother, Alexander, who was later hanged for the assassination attempt on Czar Alexander III.

In his university days at Kazan, Lenin fell under the sway of a fellow-student extremist, Fedoseyev. In exile in Siberia, he followed Struve — one of the founders of the Russian Social Democratic Party — and later, in Switzerland, he joined Plekhanov, whom he idolized. After the 1905 revolution his alter-ego was Malinowsky, who was at the same time an agent of the Czarist secret police, a member of the Central Committee of the Bolshevik Party and a representative in the Fourth Duma (Parliament).

Subsequently, it was Dr. Helfand (alias Parvus), a member of the German Social Democratic Party and an agent of the German government, who directed Lenin's actions and thoughts. To Parvus belongs the idea of a permanent revolution and it was he who arranged for Lenin's passage to Russia in 1917. A go-between, Furstenberg (alias Ganetsky), provided the vast German funds, negotiated by Parvus, to subsidize the destruction of Russia from within.

Equally ignored by admirers and detractors of Lenin are those from whom his so-called "original" ideas were taken. His writings on imperialism were taken directly from English philosopher-sociologist Hobhouse. Again, Lenin's dictum on converting the imperialist war into civil war was taken from the Italian Social Democrats. His innovation in organizational tactics was taken from Nechaev — a Nihilist-terrorist who advocated violence and a network of conspiratorial cells as the road to power.

If there was one "idea" that was Lenin's own — it was his lust for power. He craved power, all power, and at all costs — and not only in Russia. His "idea" was to become the supreme leader of the world, through a world revolution — for which he was willing to sacrifice generations of Russian peoples, treating them as fodder.

Building on Lenin's terroristic methods and on Lenin's idea of a monolithic party, Stalin sharpened the organizational tools to elevate himself to undisputed and unchallengeable power through wholesale destruction of party members and leaders on a scale hitherto unknown in history. Glorifying Lenin's memory, as Lenin before him glorified Marx's, he pronounced himself their successor and initiated a cult of his own personality. But, unlike Lenin, Stalin was a statesman. During the war he restored the church and harnessed Russian patriotism for the defeat of Germany and the restoration of the boundaries of the Russian Empire.

The future Russia, however, will never be comparable either to the autocracy or to the empires of the past. It will grow into a commonwealth of free and independent peoples — a path and a vision by which my government was guided in 1917

FACTS THAT CANNOT BE CONCEALED

The history of the Russian people has been one straight beam — an arrow — towards freedom, and this cannot be bent. The invasion by the Mongols in the 13th century; the conquest by the Poles in the 16th century; the "Times of Trouble" in the 17th century and the disaster that Lenin wrought in 1917 — all are but episodes which the Russian people had to endure and each of which they have overcome. They will overcome Leninism, too. Russia has had a glorious past and glorious personages to revere and love before whom Lenin stands but as a warped, maimed caricature with a demented mind.

Already the cult of personality has been officially denounced. Already Stalin's body has been ejected from the Mausoleum. Already some facts can no longer be concealed, even about Lenin, and terror has been denounced. It remains for the whole truth about Lenin to become known and the criminality of bolshevism to be exposed for the rest of the edifice — the cult of personality and the cult of a monolithic party that dictates a single interpretation of truth, nationally, internationally and on every level of personal existence — to crumble.

I may not live to see Russia realize her destiny (Kerensky died June 11, 1970, at 89) as a free, humane country with its people dedicated to the betterment of mankind. But you may see it, and certainly your children will. Russia can never be destroyed — from within or from without — and all those who attempt to do so will be doomed to failure. It is with this faith in the Russia that I know and love that I am able to depart in peace.

Kerensky supplied the answer to his own question:

"The reason was that we thought the fact of Lenin's being able to travel across Germany (in the 'sealed train') would be sufficient in itself to compromise him. And when the question was raised in the Provisional Government, the War Minister said he had no means of stopping the train at the frontier."

So Lenin remained at liberty, and within a matter of months had toppled Kerensky's government and installed himself in power. Kerensky attributed his defeat to a combination of many factors: the war situation and the consequent confusion, the Germans' support for the Bolsheviks, the Allies' uncertainty, Lenin's skillful exploitation of the situation, and finally the revolt against the government led by General Kornilov. "So there arose a situation in Russia where the government was being attacked from two sides, from the left and from the right," Kerensky explained. It was an impossible task for any man.

Did he feel he had done his best at the time?

"Of course, I don't want to say that, in such conditions, we didn't make mistakes. But the revival of the Bolshevik movement and its final victory could have been avoided if it had been a struggle between two forces — the Russian democratic government with the Western democracies on one side and Lenin along with Ludendorff (German chancellor) on the other.

"If I had known then that certain very influential people abroad — I won't name any names — were going to encourage Kornilov, then I should have behaved very differently. There are, of course, things I regret I failed to do. But let's not talk about that."

Kerensky was not with his government when the Bolsheviks finally burst into the Winter Palace and arrested the ministers. He had left Petersburg to meet the troops which were supposed to be approaching the city.

How did he get away?

"I left Petersburg in the official open car in which I usually traveled with my staff, the commander of troops and others, and we told the driver to drive at his normal speed through the main streets where there were Bolshevik patrols. As we were driving in the direction of Tsarskoye Selo, we were tired of for the first time. But they missed us."

Kerensky made his way to Moscow and went into hiding, disguising himself with long hair and a mustache. "Finally, at the beginning of June, I left Moscow in a special train for Serbian officers who were being repatriated. The government allowed them to leave without arms. It was among them, with no uniform or weapons, that I also left."

Finally I raised the question of the fate of Czar Nicholas and his family, who were butchered by the Bolsheviks in Ekaterinburg. Could Kerensky have done anything to save them?

He alleged that the blame lay with the British government, which withdrew permission earlier given for the Czar and his family to be given asylum in Britain. "The Czar arrived at the Stavka (Headquarters) on March 18 to take leave of his fellow officers. He had been their Supreme Commander for two years. He then scribbled four requests down on a scrap of paper. They were: to be allowed to return in safety to his family in Tsarskoye Selo; to be allowed to live there quietly in his suite; to be given safe conduct to Murmansk; to be allowed to go to England.

Alexander Kerensky as he looked when for four brief months he ruled Russia as head of the Provisional Government.

REBUFF TO THE CZAR

"The Minister of Foreign Affairs went to Sir George Buchanan, the British Ambassador, and handed him the Provisional Government's request. A few days later a reply was received that hospitality would be offered in Britain. But then, after the direct intervention of King George V, the agreement was withdrawn.

(In his memoirs Kerensky amplifies the circumstances of the King's move. He quotes a passage from Harold Nicolson's official biography of George V, showing that the King intervened as a result of left-wing criticism and the belief that public opinion in Britain was opposed to the proposal.)

"When Sir George received these instructions," Kerensky continued, "he did not tell us about it in good time. So we prepared the Czar's departure, and, when Foreign Minister Tereschenko went to Buchanan to ask him for a cruiser to be sent, he was told it would not be possible."

"How did the Czar take this rebuff?"

"I told him that, since it was impossible to send him to England, I would request him to go to Tobolsk."

"Was he terribly disappointed?"

"Of course."

FIRE COUNTRY

By Gil Bailey

The march of fire across the face of Southern California was unstoppable by the forces of man.

The flames began with the wind, and they stopped only when the wind died.

LONG BEACH, CALIFORNIA

The elemental nature of the fires is caught here by Roger Coar, Independent Press-Telegram chief photographer. They move, they run, they jump with almost a life of their own. Sometimes they travel faster than a man can drive.

Southern California is fire country. Here, when the wind blows, fire is king, and man must beware, only he isn't.

These fires started Sept. 25. Some hot spots were still burning on Oct. 10.

All of the costs cannot be counted. There may be winter floods off the fire-stripped hillsides, but at least 295 homes in Los Angeles County, worth an estimated $8.8 million, were destroyed.

Man tried to stop the flames. On Sept. 27 4,941 men, 600 pieces of equipment, and a combined fleet of planes and helicopters waged a losing battle against the flames.

The winds dictated the march of the fire, and it was not until the winds eased that man got control again.

Statewide nearly a thousand square miles and a thousand homes burned. Thirteen people died.

There was no count of the wildlife lost.

The disaster was a repeat of past performances, with the promise of more repeats in the future.

The brush and forests of Southern California are as explosive as an atomic bomb — 40 acres of chaparral has the potential heat energy of the bomb dropped on Hiroshima.

Yet, after each fire the homes have been rebuilt and little fingers of settlement have crept farther and farther into the natural traps laid by nature.

Within hours after the flames had passed, repair crews were hard at work, and homeowners and insurance men were huddled together to plot the reconstruction.

At the same time the usual suggestions were being made to prevent future such disasters:

- Plant the hills with fire retardant vegetation, but there wasn't time and there are five million acres of chaparral, costing an estimated $50 an acre to replace.
- Force homeowners to install fire resistant roofs, but that would cost each of thousands of homeowners hundreds of dollars.
- Hire and equip the fire army necessary to control any and all fires, but that too would cost millions if not billions of dollars.
- Eliminate the causes of fire, but they are many including human carelessness and intent, accident and acts of nature.

The 1970 fire disaster was listed as the worst in California's history, but almost every fire before carried such a designation.

The cause-and-effect was simple.

In 1970 the combination of wind and thick brush was too much when the sparks came.

The Malibu fire was started by someone throwing out smoking rubbish, the Newhall fire by an electrical line sparking in the wind.

At one point a 10-mile-long wall of flames advanced on San Diego, also caused by an arcing electrical line.

That fire and the other fires throughout the southern half of the state were accurately called "fire storms." The flames were so hot and powerful they created their own winds. The chaparral exploded, sending skyward a hundred feet or more the fingers of fire.

The flames pictured here were in the San Bernardino National Forest as they traveled from San Bernardino County to Los Angeles County.

An elemental force was moving across the land. It will return.

WORKSHOP

FOR HAPPY HOLIDAYS

By Steve Ellingson

'Tis the season to be jolly! And here's a happy snow family that will not only add cheer to your yard, it will add sparkle to the whole neighborhood. Snow or no snow, cold or warm, this delightful little group welcomes all holiday visitors. Even old Scrooge would be touched by the spirit of these light-hearted snow folks.

Father Snow, who carries the lantern, is over 5 feet tall. Mother Snow is about 4½ feet and, as you can see, the youngsters and dog are in proportion. Mrs. Snow is sweet and demure, just as all mothers should be. Like everyone, at this time of the year, the little boy and girl are having a good time dancing and singing Christmas carols. The snow dog wears a bright red sweater with Christmas bells on his collar. At this point we should perhaps add that actress Marianne Gaba is not part of the family.

Here is a group that will be just as much at home on your roof as it is in your yard. Because of the light colors, they show up very bright at night when lights are turned on them. They make excellent decorations for store windows, city parks, civic buildings or anywhere else that you may choose to show your Christmas spirit.

Building the snow family is easy, because the pictures come to you printed in many bright colors. All you need do is glue the pictures to plywood; after that, saw them out and they're ready to be placed in front of your home. The colors are waterproof and will withstand all kinds of severe outdoor weather. They may be used year after year. Complete directions are included with each set.

To obtain the snow family pictures No. C-6, send $5 (add $1.25 for airmail delivery) in currency, check or money order to:

Anonymity has been associated far too long with home furnishings. The manufacturer's logo has replaced the craftsman's signature; and, while the cost has been lowered, the joyous quality of handcrafted furnishings has been lost.

The giants of furniture design frequently turned from architecture or at least devoted a portion of design time to solving furniture problems. Among the giant in both fields is Hans Wegner, who is alive, well and producing handcrafted furniture from the Johannes Hansen factory in Copenhagen. He is represented in the United States by Knöll International.

Any Wegner chair would combine the simplicity of structure with sculptural handling of wood. The most satisfactory design is the "Classic Chair" which has been copied and recopied but never with the flowing curve of inlaid wood forming both back and arms.

Although Wegner was an architect and teacher, his first trade was cabinetmaking, at which he served as an apprentice and journeyman. He turned his talents inevitably to designing with unabashed affection functional, if lyrical, furniture.

Wood is Wegner's most frequently used material and he pairs it well with steel in simple, harmonious fashion. No sacrifice ever is made in the construction since Wegner insists that fine craftsmanship and perfection in detail are the essential components of design.

The designer produces sleek contemporary tables, complicated but innovative fold-up lecterns, stacking chairs, folding cane and teak chairs, but his most recent foray into the field of home and office furnishings is the cube cabinet. Each cube blends a combination of teak, oak and walnut woods in a straightforward but highly useful design. Each cube has a variety of uses with a different arrangement of components suitable for filing, storing silver or linen or your own personal storage needs. Side by side the cubes would form a buffet, office storage cabinets or end tables.

The 1950s saw the Scandinavian furniture influence at its peak, but the desire for meticulous craftsmanship and honest use of fine natural materials will not allow it to disappear.

The Mediterranean introduction into home furnishings in the 1960s was an overcompensation for the pure design statement. The 1970s promises to overshadow both decades with exciting uses of new materials, such as the captivating Italian way with plastics and the American approach to designing new uses from old materials. But still nothing can compare with the warmth of handcrafting unless it is the lower-cost charm of machine-made furniture.

There always will be a need for the Hans Wegners; if not for the status of original design or the individuality of hand-produced furniture, it will be as a protest to the bleak anonymity of mass production. □

24 HRS. A DAY

Q: How much money has Tiny Tim earned since he became a star? And how much of it has he saved? — Thomas B., Richmond, Va.

A: Tim earned a gigantic sum, but ended up with a tiny pay envelope. Though he made $800,000 the last several years, taxes, managers, aides, promotion, hotel and traveling expenses left him with little or nothing to show for it. But Tiny isn't bitter. "I never expected to make that kind of money anyway," he says, "and now I've learned how to handle it. With a new manager and a new lawyer, I'm on a modest allowance. My salary is much smaller now, but I'm certain I'll save more than I did with fees ten times higher."

Q: Rocky Graziano is so funny on TV. As a former Hell's Kitchen gang member, what does the ex-champ think of today's hoodlums, such as the pair who beat up a blind man in New York and stole his wallet and seeing-eye dog? — R. Prillo, Long Island City.

A: Graziano is now a polished Rock. Disgusted with what's going on today. "When we were punk kids, we mugged people, too," he admits, "but we had respect. We never mugged anyone over the age of 40."

Q: I wonder what our First Lady of the Theater, Helen Hayes, thought of "Hair" — that is, if she went to see it. Can you ask her? — Mrs. Ellie Goldberg, Atlantic City, N.J.

A: In a frank discourse on nudity, Miss Hayes told Look magazine: "All the songs are so self-pitying and dreary and the poor young people looked so sad . . . I thought these people looked a little underfed and peculiar . . . They disturbed me."

Q: What does the movie industry mean when they suggest that erotic films just be shown in a red-light district? — James Schultz, Cincinnati.

A: "I wouldn't say red light," the motion picture czar Jack Valenti clarifies, "because that puts a different view on it. But if you want that kind of picture — a skin flick — it ought to play in a theater that caters to skin flicks. Not a neighborhood movie house."

Q: (For the scores of reader-viewers who've asked) Can you tell us something about the background of the "Beverly Hillbillies"?

A: Buddy (Jed Clampett) Ebsen: Born Christian Ebsen, Jr., in Belleville, Ill., 1908; grew up in Orlando, Fla., attended U. of Florida and Rollins College, pre-med; danced in Eddie Cantor's "Whoopie" in 1928; during World War II both he and wife Nancy served in the Coast Guard.

Max (Jethro) Baer: Born in Oakland, Dec. 4, 1937; his late father (heavyweight champion and sometime nightclub entertainer) discouraged junior from following in his ringsteps, though the latter did win his letter in boxing at the U. of Santa Clara.

Nancy (Jane Hathaway) Kulp: Born in Harrisburg, Pa.; her father was a stock broker till he bought a private school in Miami Beach; after college she was a reporter for the Miami Beach Tropics; she quit to become a lieutenant (j.g.) in the WAVES.

Irene (Granny) Ryan hails from El Paso, Tex.; went from chorus girl to vaudeville headliner; starred with her late husband on radio's "Tim and Irene Ryan Show"; in '67 celebrated her 50th year in show business.

Raymond (the banker Milburn Drysdale) Bailey planned to be a banker after leaving high school; with no luck and to earn a buck he became a studio laborer, then a mess boy on a freighter.

Donna (Elly Mae) Douglas was born Doris Smith in Baywood, La.; won many beauty titles; spent half her income losing her Southern accent — the other half regaining it for her role as Elly Mae; she's single.

Send your questions to Hy Gardner, "Glad You Asked That," care of Southland Sunday, P.O. Box 2505, New York, N.Y. 10017. He will answer as many questions as he can in his column, but the volume of mail makes personal replies impossible.

LOUIS KING
Now There Are Five

It seems so logical ... so simple ... so constructive and easy. A restaurateur opens a place which enjoys immense success. Immediately his instincts tell him: "If I can do this once — why not again? I think I'll open a second one ..."

Sometimes the second restaurant succeeds. Quire often it doesn't. I've been an observer of the restaurant scene in Southern California long enough to realize that very few men have the talent and planning ability to repeat their success. A restaurant formula which works perfectly in one location will fail miserably elsewhere.

There are exceptions, of course. Such as the three Kings — Louis, Mickey and Jeff — who own and operate the five King's restaurants. They have duplicated their original success again and again, creating a multi-million-dollar kingdom of restaurants which cater to all tastes and pocketbooks.

Do you want a dollar dinner? King's restaurants offer such a special each Monday through Thursday in their coffee shops. Do you want a gourmet fillet mignon and lobster tail combination for $5.95? Each King's restaurant has a glamorous dining room emphasizing such fare, with most of the dinners being in the $2.35 to $2.95 range. Each restaurant also has a banquet room and separate quiet cocktail lounge.

The first King's restaurant was opened in 1945 by Louis and his younger brother Mickey at 5909 Pacific Blvd., Huntington Park. (Originally opened in 1927, it was known for many years as the Admiral restaurant.) They have operated it continuously ever since, enlarging and beautifying it from time to time, using it as the office headquarters from which they direct the activities of the other four restaurants. Other key executives in the organization are Louis' son, Jeff, and Ted Love, who is office manager and a minor stockholder.

The Kings are careful planners, leaving nothing to chance. Each time they open a new restaurant, they make certain it's located near freeways or boulevards which will insure a large clientele. Each restaurant is open every day for breakfast, luncheon, dinner and late supper. The menus are identical.

The other locations are King's Victoria, 6075 Long Beach Blvd., north Long Beach; King's Lakewood Country Club, 3101 E. Carson St.; King's Imperial, Atlantic and Imperial Highway, Lynwood, and King's Downey, 8350 E. Firestone Blvd. at Dolan Street. Each has parking facilities. The Downey restaurant, which opened last spring, is particularly spacious and beautiful. The structure and land represent an investment of $750,000.

During World War II, Forrest (Huff) Huffstetler was a daredevil teen-ager who made 15 parachute jumps with the famed 82nd Airborne Division. Three of those leaps were at Sicily, Salerno and Normandy, where the combat was hot and furious. He was injured at Salerno but rejoined his unit after hospitalization.

Ever since, Huff has kept both feet planted firmly on the ground. For the last decade or so, he's been owner of Huffstetler's buffet-style restaurant, 5100 E. Second St., in the Belmont Shore section of Long Beach.

My wife, small daughter and I have dined there many times and consider it one of the best cafeterias in Southern California. It's a large establishment, well-lighted, air-conditioned, modern and as spick-and-span as a jewelry display at Tiffany's.

What really makes it great, though, is the food. Sandy-haired, pink-cheeked Huff is an experienced chef who has spent years collecting and creating special recipes which give his foods and sauces unusual flavor and richness. His round of roast beef, chicken and dumplings (a Sunday special), roast lamb, baked ham and flaky halibut are so scrumptious that many people who no longer live in Long Beach often drive to Huffstetler's from adjoining communities, saying:

"We don't mind the trip a bit. Huffstetler's is so darned good we'd walk over here on crutches, if we had to!"

Huff's cooking talents are so much in demand these days that he now divides his time between his own place and the new Queen Cafeteria in downtown Long Beach, where he's No. 1 chef. During his absences, the food at Huffstetler's is prepared by another outstanding cafeteria chef, Jack Curry, who shares Huff's enthusiasm for the cooking arts. Jack, formerly a top chef at Hubert's Cafeterias, uses Huff's recipes, enabling him to create delicacies that taste exactly like Huff's.

Huffstetler's, closed Mondays, is open from 11:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. Generous luncheons are served daily at modest fees. The dinners are priced at slightly under or over $2. Served all day Sunday, the dinners are bountiful affairs including salad from a colorful display, two vegetables, entree, hot muffin, roll (or perhaps banana nut bread) and beverage. A la carte items are always available, including thick slices of marvelous cream pie. □

Medicine & You

By BEN ZINSER
Medical Science Editor

Much has been written in the medical literature about the emotional effects of therapeutic abortion upon the patient's mental health.

Now, a doctor reports a psychiatric episode occurring in a patient's parent.

The parent was a 36-year-old woman whose 16-year-old daughter had become pregnant nine months previously. After a great deal of indecision, it was agreed to have the pregnancy terminated. Almost exactly on the date when the child would have been born, the girl's mother became acutely mentally disturbed.

The mother expressed numerous delusions of persecution. She believed that her neighbors could spy through the walls of her house. She became convinced that other people could read her thoughts. Finally, she was admitted to a hospital as an acute paranoid schizophrenic. She was treated with electroshock and drugs, which resulted in disappearance of symptoms. The woman now regards the episode as "something like a bad dream."

The report is by Dr. R. McDonald of England in The Lancet, a British medical journal.

An extract from the roots of a Costa Rican shrub kills human throat-cancer cells in tissue culture and inhibits one type of leukemia in laboratory mice.

The extract is a growth inhibitor called jatrophone.

Chemists at the University of Virginia, who report the research, don't indicate what effect the extract has on normal cells.

The report is in Medical World News, newsmagazine for physicians.

A new antibiotic, adriamycin, shows promise in the treatment of childhood leukemia as well as in certain solid tumors.

The report is that of doctors at the famed Sloan-Kettering Institute of Cancer Research in New York City.

Thirty-one of 50 children with leukemia or solid tumors have responded favorably to treatment involving adriamycin as part of the therapy. In some instances, adriamycin was the sole agent given; in others, it was given in combination with other anticancer drugs.

The finding was reported to the American Association for Cancer Research. A report also appears in the journal American Family Physician/GP.

A new antituberculosis drug, rifampin, is termed a "new hope" in the fight against TB.

The claim is made in an editorial in the prestigious New England Journal of Medicine.

Perhaps worldwide advances can be made, the editorial notes, adding:

"We are probably dealing with a new oral antituberculous drug comparable to isoniazid in effectiveness and safety."

The editorial notes that TB remains a major world health problem.

A portable "computer" that resembles a slide rule is now available to help doctors make a diagnosis.

Called the Nash Logoscope, it groups symptoms and then lists possible clues to the most likely diagnoses.

Developer is Dr. M. A. Nash of London, England.

"Medicine and You" first reported on this device several years ago. The new development is that a new Mark V model has a potential of more than 700 million combinations to help jog the physician's memory about symptoms and signs of various diseases.

The Logoscope can fit in a doctor's bag.

A neurological complication resembling Guillain-Barre syndrome has appeared in a 33-year-old woman after she received the anesthetic ketamine.

A neurologist at University of Colorado Medical Center reports that the patient began to suffer tingling of her legs and later her arms a few days after surgery. Weakness in her feet was a later symptom. Slow improvement in strength now occurring.

"This association may simply be fortuitous," says Dr. Michael Cherington — but further experiences with ketamine may show that these neurological symptoms are a complication of the anesthetic.

The report is in The Lancet, a British medical journal.

Researchers in Belgium say that a patient taking the drug debrisoquine for the treatment of high blood pressure may experience an adverse reaction if he eats cheese.

Two doctors report the case of a woman on the drug who consumed some Gruyere cheese. Within an hour her blood pressure increased markedly. □

Q. How much money has Chiang Kai-shek received from the United States in economic and military aid?—Neil E. Lind, Fargo, N. Dak.

A. From 1946 through 1948, the United States provided $676,900,000 in economic and military aid to Chiang Kai-shek while his government was still on mainland China. The U.S. has shelled out an additional $4,464,900,000 in economic and military aid to Nationalist China on Formosa from 1949 through 1969.

Q. I was in Sweden last summer and everyone was talking about a scandal involving Sweden's Crown Prince Carl. Supposedly he was carrying on with an American actress who stars in skinflicks. Can you reveal her name?—P. R. T., Danvers, Mass.

A. Sweden's Crown Prince Carl Gustaf, 24, has been dating an 18-year-old sex bomb of a starlet named Lena Skoog. She is a Swedish commoner whose measurements have set royal tongues wagging.

Q. Who said, "There is nothing as powerful as an idea whose time has come?"—Ronald Eugene Laney, Elmhurst, N.Y.

A. Your quote is a paraphrase of a Victor Hugo saying that has been variously translated.

Q. Ralph Nader got $425,000 from General Motors in his invasion of privacy suit. How much did he pay his lawyers?—Ames West, Cambridge, Mass.

A. One-third.

Q. Without photos of bare-busted beauties, wouldn't Playboy magazine go bust in six months?—Dave Diamond, Chicago, Ill.

A. The magazine dare not try the experiment.

Q. Who is the oldest man in the U.S. Senate and how qualified is he?—R. J., Chicago, Ill.

A. Sen. Allen Ellender of Louisiana will be 83 when his term expires in 1973. He's widowed, exercises regularly, plays golf and is physically fit. But some colleagues privately question his mental alertness.

Q. How does President Nixon rate as a golfer and a bowler?—Jules Henry Marr, Albuquerque, N. Mex.

A. He's middle of the road in both. At Camp David and in the White House alleys Nixon bowls around 150. His golfing scores are a well-kept secret, though he once shot a 91 in Florida, and on another occasion got into the 80's.

Q. Oh, Calcutta—the nude show that was shown on closed-circuit television—are we likely to be exposed to more of this trash on TV?—J. B. Klingsor, Detroit, Mich.

A. Not likely—Oh, Calcutta on TV was a dismal box-office flop.

Q. Who is C. Y. Tung and where did he get the money to buy the Queen Elizabeth?—Ernst M. Goldstein, Orlando, Fla.

A. Tung was born in China 58 years ago, now headquarters in Taiwan. He made his money in shipping and banking, has bid $3.2 million for the liner, may return it to passenger service.

Q. Is the President's daughter, Tricia, a college graduate?—D. Y. Slade, Washington, D.C.

A. Tricia Nixon received a B.A. degree from Finch College in New York City in 1968.

Q. What is Fulton J. Sheen, former Bishop of Rochester, N.Y., and TV personality, doing now? Is it true he lives in obscurity in New York City?—E. R., Washington, D.C.

A. Bishop Sheen lectures at priests' retreats throughout the U.S. and makes occasional TV guest appearances. He lives in New York City.

Q. How many refugees have entered the United States from Cuba since 1962? How many are currently arriving in the U.S. each month? Are there any plans by the U.S. to terminate the flow of refugees from Cuba?—W. H. T., Charlotte, N.C.

A. As of Aug. 31, 1970, an estimated 550,000 Cubans have entered the U.S. by various means since Castro came to power. Of this number, 203,292 arrived via the refugee airlift program paid for by the U.S. About 3500 per month are entering currently under this program and there are no present plans either to end or curtail the airlift.

ELIZABETH

SOPHIA

Q. Elizabeth Taylor, Zsa Zsa Gabor, Sophia Loren—all robbed of their jewelry. Why do they carry the stuff around with them? Aren't they asking for it?—A. J. Grant, Pittsburgh, Pa.

A. The idea is: "When you've got it, flaunt it."

Q. I understand that General de Gaulle strongly urged President Kennedy to stay out of Vietnam. What exactly did the general tell him?—Barbara Dobson, Brooklyn, N.Y.

A. According to his new book of memoirs, De Gaulle told Kennedy: "For you, an intervention in this region will be an endless involvement... You will move forward, bogging down more and more in a bottomless military and political quagmire."

The women, too, must serve. Universal conscription is part of the high price Israel pays to insure survival.

A Letter From Israel

by George Michaelson

JERUSALEM.

No matter what eventually results from the death of Egypt's leader Gamal Abdel Nasser, or the American peace initiative; no matter what happens to the shaky state of Jordan, or to what limits the Palestinians carry their guerrilla war, there remains one stable factor in Middle East politics today: the Israelis' confidence in their ability to survive.

This crusty self-confidence which has carried the State of Israel through 22 perilous years was punctured only once in recent months—in late April when it was announced that Soviet pilots were flying operational missions over Egypt. At the time, Premier Golda Meir told the nation: "The Soviet Union in pursuit of its scheme to dominate the Middle East does not care if Israel goes up in flames."

The April announcement, with all its ominous overtones, did send an initial shock wave through the Israeli public, and in some—particularly the World War II refugees—it conjured up visions of another holocaust. However, the swift confidence with which the Israeli Government repeated its intentions to defend itself against all comers, soon jacked up public morale.

Factual reporting

Also boosting morale is the fact that Israel's media have not sounded the frantic note that one finds in American reports of the Middle East crisis. While continuing battle casualties and the influx of Soviet hardware into Egypt are accurately reported, the tone of these reports is solemn, not hysterical. The Russian threat is seen as serious, but few Israelis believe their country is about to be annihilated.

Nonetheless, the basic question remains, how far do the Russians intend to push? Hebrew University Professor

Jacob Talmon, Israel's best-known historian, told us: "For the time being, I think the Soviets are satisfied to establish a beachhead in Egypt. Not even they are sure of the next move, but as I see it, they will not try to cross the Suez Canal. Of course, it's possible that they will be dragged into something they don't want, that they may suddenly find themselves eyeball to eyeball with the U.S. as they were in Cuba. And from there anything could happen. But I suspect they will avoid such a situation."

Many Israelis are less confident than Professor Talmon that if a showdown comes, the U.S. will be firmly in Israel's corner. They did not welcome Secretary of State Rogers' cease-fire proposals because they feared that Soviet-backed Egypt would take advantage of the intermission to bolster its forces at the canal—which it did. And when the U.S. hesitated at first to acknowledge the illegal movement of Soviet missiles into the restricted canal area, Israelis felt let down.

"I can't understand the Americans," Baruch Haas, an Israeli sergeant, told us sadly. "For 22 years the Egyptians have said they want to destroy us, and you don't believe it. The Palestinian terrorists say the same thing. Now the Russians have made the west bank of the Suez Canal a parking lot for their latest military equipment, and you still don't believe it. I'm afraid the only way you'd be convinced is if the Arabs finally wiped us out . . . I hope you will excuse us, my friend, if we decline to give you this proof."

Price for survival

While most Israelis, of course, appreciate America's friendship, they are unsure of the extent of our commitment to them. Therefore, they say, Israel must rely entirely on its own armed forces, known as Zahal, for survival. For Israel's 2.8 million Jews the price for this self-reliance is universal conscription (three years for men, 20 months for women), an average of seven weeks' reserve duty per year for all men from the time they finish their military service until age 49, and 25 percent of the gross national product eaten up by the war effort. In human terms, it means that everyone is deeply affected—a fact pointed up every hour, as Israelis throughout the country stop what they are doing, flick on their radios, and wait out the latest news reports.

Israeli air supremacy

In spite of the constant strain, there is great confidence in Zahal, and especially in its elite branch, the Air Force. The latter has grown from a handful of Piper Cubs in early 1948, to its present estimated strength of some 350 French and American jet fighter planes, and a corps of superbly trained pilots. Nobody doubts that it is the high quality of the Israeli pilots that gives Israel its air supremacy. In fact, a high-ranking officer told us: "If the Arabs flew our Mirages, Phantoms and Skyhawks, and we flew their Migs, then the Mirages, Phantoms and Skyhawks would be the planes that get shot down." One is reminded of Churchill's tribute to the Royal Air Force, "... Never was so much owed by so many to so few."

Military sources will not reveal the number of pilots in the Air Force, but they do acknowledge that a good many are reservists. As reservists, these pilots hold regular jobs, and go to their bases to fly regular missions from time to time. Non-reservists live on base and fly more often. The average pilot is 23-24 years old, and receives from the military an average skilled worker's pay of $285-$340 per month. Some 25-30 percent come from communal farm settlements, called kibbutzim (kibbutzim comprise 4 percent of the population) where they are steeped in patriotic ideals. As a group these pilots are tough, confident and dedicated. "I will not say that we are the best in the world," says an Air Force colonel, "but experience is much of what makes a pilot good, and we are the most experienced."

Also adding to the high quality of the Israeli Air Force is the careful selection process that skims the cream of Israeli youth into its ranks. According to for-strung out along the Jordanian and Lebanese borders. For the past three years, these settlements have been under constant mortar and rocket fire from Arab terrorists and regular units of the Jordanian, Iraqi and Syrian armies. In many of them, farmers plow their fields with armored tractors, children sleep in shelters and nobody goes for a long stroll.

"The surprising thing in this situation," says Dr. Yigal Ginath, a Jerusalem psychiatrist who spends one day a week visiting settlements on the Jordanian border, "is that life goes on. People somehow adjust. I remember, for instance, an incident told to me by a woman who looks after children in the shelters at night. One night there was a terrible thunderstorm. She went down to the shelter and found one boy awake and very frightened. 'Don't worry,' she told him, 'it's only some bombing.' The boy relaxed and went back to sleep."

Easing the strain

For its part, the Israeli Government does what it can to ease the strain on border settlements. It foots the bill for shelters and trenches, for damage caused by shellings. And when pressure becomes especially intense it sends Zahal across the border to silence the enemy.

While these counterattacks often raise an outcry in foreign capitals against the Israelis, no settler doubts for a moment that they do ease the strain. In fact, it is likely that in some of the border settlements and towns, particularly those occupied by new immigrants, there would be an exodus to the interior of Israel if Zahal didn't launch the counterattacks.

"So far only a few have been scared away by the mortar fire," says one settler from Kiryat Shmona, a northern Israeli border town that has been under heavy fire from Lebanon-based terrorists. "The real effect of the war here, and all over the country, has been just the opposite—it has pulled us together. I'll tell you something about us Israelis: When the times are golden, we act like dirt to each other. But when the times are dirty—like now—we are as good as gold."

'To the last Israeli'

Meanwhile, Israelis are prepared for anything: for the peace they desire, or for the war they expect. Speaking with a tough fatalism shared by many of his countrymen, border settler Pinchas Friedman says: "If the war comes, whenever and with whomever, I assure you we will not be another Czechoslovakia. We have no intention of losing. We fully intend to survive. But I'll tell you this: If we go down, we go down fighting to the last Israeli."

Morning and all's well. Children emerge from a shelter on Jordan border after night's sleep. Settlements have endured mortar and rocket fire for three years.

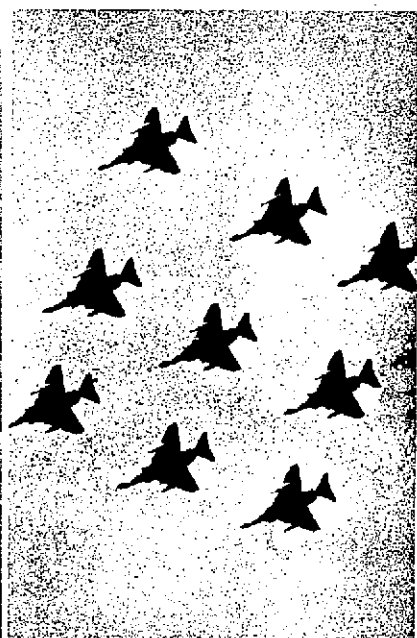

Reading a wall newspaper. Reporting is factual, not hysterical, though country lives with the specter of war.

Sentinel stands guard at a border settlement against Arab infiltrators. Constant vigilance is dire necessity.

Many farmers are forced to plow their fields with armored tractors. When Arab shelling becomes too intense, military units cross the border to silence the foe.

Israel relies heavily on the quality of its Air Force. Here a formation of Phantoms makes a pass over Tel Aviv.

eign estimates, only one of every 300 military-age men eventually becomes a pilot. "There's hardly an Israeli boy who doesn't want to become a pilot," says 18-year-old Shimon Bar-Kama, a kibbutz youth who begins pilot-training courses in February. "Once you get by the first batch of exams, you already feel something special. My parents were a bit nervous about my training as a pilot—parents must give permission for a boy to train—but this is not a time when Israeli parents can be selfish, so of course they told me to go ahead." Asked whether he was scared by the recent Russian missile buildup and the resultant danger to Israeli pilots, Shimon answered: "I don't know why, but I'm not frightened. I'm no hero. I simply look upon it as a challenge. I think that civilians get more scared by these things than the men doing the fighting."

Perhaps so. Yet, in Israel, civilians too have become toughened by the times—particularly those who live in the 45 or so frontier farm settlements that are BIRTH CONTROL All over the Caribbean island of Jamaica, women are told: via billboards, newspapers, radio, television, buses and other public places, "You Don't Have To Get Pregnant." Result: a dramatic decrease last year in the number of births in this country of 2 million.

Because of Jamaica's outstanding success in its birth-control campaign, it has become a model for other hemisphere nations.

A few months ago, the World Bank granted Jamaica a $2 million loan—the first ever made to any member nation for this purpose. The loan is enabling the Jamaica Family Planning Association to open additional clinics and counsel new mothers in maternity hospitals.

More than half of the women choose oral contraceptives—a month's supply of pills costing 12 cents at the clinics.

TORNADOES If you want to avoid tornadoes, you should live in Rhode Island or Alaska. Those are the only states that have been tornado-free over the last five years. Next safest states are Hawaii and New Jersey with one tornado each over five years; Nevada with two;

Idaho and Vermont with three; Washington and Delaware with four, and Connecticut with five.

At the other extreme are the states most often hit by the violent twisters. Texas leads with 684 in five years, followed by Oklahoma, 243; Iowa, 192; Missouri, 188, and Florida, 173.

STILL NO. 1

PET DOLLARS Americans spend $2 billion a year on pet supplies, with the lion's share--42 percent--still going to the dogs. Following in order are: fish, with 31 percent; birds, 16 percent; cats, 8 percent; others, 3 percent.

TOYS AHEAD How is the toy industry doing as it approaches the peak Christmas season?

If current trends continue, 1970 sales at the manufacturers' level will hit $2.343 billion, up from last year's record $2.041 billion. Moreover, keen competition is expected to keep retail prices at or near 1969 levels.

War toys are way down in sales volume, continuing a pattern of recent years, but law-enforcement toys are up. "Guns seem to be all right as long as they come in a Western or police holster," says one manufacturer.

Auto racing toys have displaced electric trains on home track layouts. Even "matchbox" cars, once purely decorative, are being converted to racing models.

DOES FATHER KNOW BEST? Several thousand readers have responded to a recent PARADE article entitled Where Parents Fail. In it, Dr. Edwin F. Patton urged that the father resume his role of boss in the family.

Among women readers who replied, more than 82 percent agreed with Dr. Patton, many opening their letters with such exclamations as "Bravo, Dr. Patton" or "Hurray for Dr. Patton." Among men, 74 percent agreed.

CAR THEFTS Only five states--Alabama, Indiana, Maryland, Nebraska and West Virginia --and the District of Columbia recorded reductions in automobile theft last year. Nebraska's achievement, cutting from 4346 thefts in 1968 to 4122 in 1969, was especially satisfactory because the year before that state had scored the biggest percentage increase. The greatest numerical increase in 1969 was in California where 12,499 more cars were stolen than in the previous year.

DIAL YOUR DRINKS Do-it-yourself drunkometers have been installed by many bars and nightclubs in Helsinki, Finland. Customers insert a coin and dial the drinks they've had. Computer digests data and flashes how long drinker must wait before driving. This is important, because of Finland's tough laws on drunk driving. One conviction brings a sentence of three months' labor on a public project. The new Helsinki Airport was built largely by drunks nabbed on roads.

Can we talk with the dead?

Can mediums really contact the dead? Do the dead live on as spirits, able to communicate with each other and the living? And what's it like to be dead?

The Bible has some very specific answers to these questions. For example:

"And the Lord God . . . breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul." (Genesis 2:7)

If breath makes life, then death is the absence of breath.

The Bible also states that "The dead know not anything . . ." (Ecclesiastes 9:6). Therefore, when a man dies, his spirit does not live on. The Spirit is nothing more than the air he breathes.

When he stops breathing "In that very day his thoughts perish." (Psalms 146:4). The Bible says the dead will remain in this state until the second coming of Christ. Only then will the redeemed be resurrected to life and immortality.

"For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout . . . and the dead in Christ shall rise." (I Thessalonians 4:16).

If the dead are in an unbreathing, unconscious state, then how can we account for mystical occurrences?

If you would like to learn more about what the Bible has to say about death, send for the brochure: "Can we talk with the dead?" Just fill out and return the coupon below. It's gratis, and no one will call on you.

HOFFA IN HIS CELL

HOFFA AS PRISONER

An inside look at James R. Hoffa in prison has been given to INTELLIGENCE REPORT by a former fellow convict of the ex-Teamster boss.

"Jimmy (inmate #33298 at the Lewisburg Federal Penitentiary in Pennsylvania) works at making mattresses for fellow convicts and cleaning, pressing and repairing uniforms for penitentiary guards," says Alfred MaGuire. "He is an exceptionally well-behaved prisoner who obeys all the rules and gives guards no cause for complaint."

Hoffa's cell is in the maximum security A-block, a row of a dozen cells with iron-barred fronts. His eight-by-ten-foot cell contains a steel bed, toilet facilities, a clothing cabinet, a wooden chair, radio earphones and family photographs. Hoffa has the regulation three sets of blue-gray clothes, unnumbered, and two pairs of shoes with his inmate number stamped on the inside.

Now 57 years old, Hoffa "works out in a small gymnasium next to the basketball court in the main prison," reports MaGuire. "When the weather is good he takes walks around the track in the yard."

"He reads three newspapers a day, magazines and a lot of books. Other inmates see Hoffa as a leader and constantly seek out his advice. He has the power to get a guy a job when he's released, and he always will."

Jimmy Hoffa is visited at least once a week, if not by family then by one of his lawyers, among whom is his son. MaGuire says the rumor that Hoffa runs the day-to-day affairs of the Teamsters Union from his cell is a myth.

Hoffa has served 3½ years of an eight-year sentence for jury tampering, to be followed by a five-year sentence for conspiracy to defraud. Since a Federal prisoner gains mandatory release after serving two-thirds of his sentence, Hoffa should be out around December, 1975.

I ate my way through eleven countries. Then I lost 80 pounds.

By Helga Heckel — as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

WHEN you are married to an Air Force man, you can be pretty sure of one thing: moving around. And if you like food the way I do, the whole world turns into a smorgasbord. Bratwurst in Germany. Soufflés in France. Meat pies in England. It was eat... eat... eat from one country to the next, until we finally came home to Safford, Arizona. Then I took a look at the one ugly souvenir I had brought back: my fat. I was 197 pounds! And I knew I had to lose a part of me.

I am German by birth and I was used to good, solid food always. Yet at my marriage (after the Berlin Air-Lift), I weighed only 110 pounds. It was not until my first daughter was born that my weight really went up. Then it seemed there was no stop to it.

Every country we went to, I picked up new recipes as I added dimples to my elbows and another course to our meals. Dinners in our house got so long, my husband had to have two cigarette breaks just to get through them. I don't know how he ever stayed slim. For I just got fatter and fatter. The last dress I remember buying was size 18½. After that, I made my clothes and went as high as a 42 pattern.

All those "pasties" I used to make certainly didn't help. Maybe you never heard of them. They are like turnovers, filled with diced beef, carrots, potatoes and seasoning. It's an old recipe which came from Cornwall, England to the Finns of northern Michigan where my husband was raised. The copper miners used to take "pasties" with them underground for lunch, because they taste delicious cold. But I like them hot better.

Such eating as this pushed me so close to 200 pounds on the scale that finally I knew I must do something to reduce.

I had been reading stories in magazines about those ladies who lost weight with the Ayds® Plan, and I thought I should buy a box of these reducing plan candies. We have to drive about 125 miles to a shopping center, so on one trip I went to the drug section and got the chocolate fudge-type Ayds. The caramel kind was too chewy for me and they didn't have the butterscotch fudge then.

I had never tried a reducing product before. Just some exercise. And once a carrot diet that turned me so yellow, I was afraid. I also tried to control my appetite by myself, but that was too hard. I needed something to help me and Ayds did, when I took them like it says. And the directions say they contain no harmful drugs. With Ayds I really was able to eat less. I even started to cook less. I made meals of meat and vegetables and fruit, without eating any bread or potatoes. And I began to lose pounds on the Ayds Plan.

I weighed close to 197 pounds in this picture, taken during one of our sight-seeing trips through Arizona.

Can you believe I now look like this? 117 pounds! And my new slimness has helped me lose a lot of my shyness.

At first I thought that if I lost weight, maybe I would lose my strength and get weak. But I did not. I did all my own housework and gardening without getting tired at all. I can still even tear a big catalog, like a telephone book, right in half. I saw a man do that on television once and I practiced until I learned it also.

My husband says now that I am down to 117 pounds that we get better mileage on our sports car. I don't know whether he is teasing me or not, but this much I know: he likes me slim again.

And now, please, I would like to say just one more thing to anybody who is reading this and wondering if this Ayds Candy can really help. I say to you that the hardest part of reducing is to start. It's like going to the dentist. You know you must do it, even if you are afraid. But once you make up your mind, it immediately becomes easier. That's how it was at first for me on the Ayds Plan. But once I had lost 17 pounds, I knew I could go down as much as I wanted. Look at my pictures. See what I mean?

into a glamour job. In recent years, foreign diplomats on duty in Washington have been plagued by theft and assault on the streets and in their embassies, some of it political, some of it run-of-the-mill crime, and the original White House Police Force was expanded into the EPS to cope with this situation.

Her responsibilities are exactly the same as those of her male colleagues in the service, and are described officially as "the protection of the White House, the President and the members of his immediate family, and diplomatic missions in the metropolitan area of Washington, D.C."

In addition, hers is the duty of interviewing juveniles and females who for one reason or another run afoul of the Secret Service or the EPS. And the Women's Liberation movement will be pleased to know that she is guaranteed all the salary, benefits, and promotional opportunities of male officers.

Because of her police background, Officer Shantz was able to breeze through the EPS special training course in much less than the 12 weeks required for raw recruits—male and female. Nevertheless, before she made her first appearance on the diplomatic reception circuit she had to demonstrate her expertise in a wide range of protective arts, including hand-to-hand combat tactics, marksmanship, first aid and the use of all the sophisticated communications equipment employed by the EPS.

At this writing, Secret Service Chief James Rowley has recruited six more women to join Miss Shantz on the White House and diplomatic protective beat, all but one of them from the D.C. Police Department. And that, he says, fills out the female complement of the EPS.

Uniforms on way

That leaves Rowley with only one remaining problem in the administration of his women's squad:

As of now, Phyllis Shantz and her fellow policewomen are "plainclothes" operatives. But their new uniforms are on order from a designer whose identity is a closely-guarded secret. And the question before the Secret Service chief (and the ladies directly concerned) is this:

Will the new uniforms go mini, midi, or maxi?

PROFILE OF AN ASSASSIN

Perhaps most important of all is the special instruction in behavioral science that the Secret Service insists on for all those who are charged with protecting the lives of the White House occupants and the nation's diplomatic guests.

The Secret Service schools all its agents in the history of political assassination, not so much because there is a pattern to the slayings of American Presidents (most authorities agree there isn't), but because there appears to be a behavioral pattern in the personalities of political assassins.

Last November, the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence drew a composite picture of the "archetypal assassin" that Shantz and her colleagues must guard against.

Such a personality, the commission said:

- Comes from a broken home.
- Is a loner, withdrawn, unmarried or a failure at marriage.
- Is a zealot for political, religious or other causes, but not a member of an organized group.
- Chooses a handgun as his weapon.
- Selects a moment when his intended victim is appearing in a crowd.

THE DROTOS FAMILY: THEY'RE BATTLING COLLEGE COSTS

High Price of College

Soaring costs of college have many students and parents ready to hit the panic button. For years they've been told that a college degree is the key to success in today's world, but now, as students send in their applications for next year, they find the price tag climbing out of reach.

This fall 85 percent of all U.S. colleges hiked their prices again. Over the last ten years, the cost of four years at college has risen three times faster than "normal" inflation.

What's the reason? Basically, higher faculty salaries plus increased construction and equipment costs.

Is any improvement likely? Probably not. College administrators insist that the only answer is massive Federal aid—but the Nixon Administration seems to be moving in the opposite direction.

What can college-bound students and their parents do?

SCHOLARSHIPS—Plenty are available, but their size almost always depends on financial need. Poor students receive the big money grants, middle-class and rich ones usually get mere tokens.

LOANS—A similar situation prevails. The Federal Government supports a National Student Loan program (3 percent interest) and a Guaranteed Loan program (7 percent), but middle-class students have a hard time getting them.

SOCIAL SECURITY AID—Benefits are available to unmarried, full-time students who are children of deceased, disabled or retired workers. About 500,000 are already receiving such aid—check your local Social Security office to see if you're eligible.

VETERANS EDUCATIONAL BENEFITS—Available in varying amounts to those who qualify. Check your local Veterans Administration office.

Educational authorities emphasize the need for "shopping around" various colleges to see which offers the best combination of moderate fees, scholarship aid, loans, campus work opportunities, etc.

That it's possible to put three children through college on an annual income of $12-14,000 is demonstrated by the Drotos family of Dearborn Heights, Mich. Julius and Myrtle Drotos have helped pay some of their three children's costs, but Chip Drotos, 22, who's just graduated from the University of Michigan, and Paul, 17, who's just starting there, have also taken campus and summer jobs. Daughter Mary Jane, 19, spent two years with free tuition at a junior college, now has transferred to Wayne State for her final two years. Says Julius Drotos: "We always knew we'd work it out somehow."

Rocking the Classics

Changing tastes in music have the record companies in a spin. Young people are no longer buying classical music, once the mainstay of sales, particularly in the college market. Result is sharply declining income. RCA, one of the industry's giants, says that classical music is now running only 5 percent of sales volume, as against a previous 18 percent. The big gainer, even on college campuses, has been rock.

Some record execs think the answer is to make the classics more "relevant" to today's youth, especially by tying them to movies. Examples: Richard Strauss' "Thus Spake Zarathustra" became a record hit after its use in Stanley Kubrick's 2001: A Space Odyssey, and Mozart's Piano Concerto No. 21 did the same after providing the background theme for the popular Swedish film, Eivira Madigan. Unless tie-ins like this reverse the picture, some record companies are hinting they may give up their classical lines altogether.

Say It With Film

Hiram College, a coed school of 1200 near Cleveland, Ohio, dropped that old standby, English Composition, last year. Instead, it set up a Freshman Institute on Communications, climaxed by the production of movies written, photographed, edited, and acted by students.

This fall 419 freshmen turned out 29 two- and three-minute films on subjects of their own choosing. War, the draft, and pollution were the most popular themes. One of the more imaginative offerings superimposed views of the bewildered rushing-about of a newly-arrived student on shots of the aimless flutterings of a nervous chicken. Another depicted the plight of a left-handed student in classrooms and dormitories designed for right-handers.

How to Get More Doctors

by Dr. Donal F. Magee

(Chairman of the Department of Physiology and Pharmacy at Creighton University School of Medicine, Omaha, Neb.)

Dr. Donal F. Magee, shown lecturing.

OMAHA, NEB.

I believe we should take medical students directly out of high school, skip college, and give them a good five- or at the most, six-year medical school course. The four years they now spend as "pre-meds" in college are an absolute waste of time.

I admit this would mean a revolution in our system of medical education. But that's just what we need to solve the present critical shortage of doctors by getting more, younger, and better physicians.

Almost everywhere in the world students are admitted to medical school directly from high school. The only exceptions I know are the U.S.A., Canada and Japan. And remember that the medical schools in Scandinavia, Holland and Great Britain, to name a few, are the equal of any here.

The four years of college now required for medical school are, in my opinion, mostly remedial. In many areas, the college is trying to repair what high school failed to do.

After over 20 years of teaching medical students, I'm not convinced that college "broadens" them. I've had senior medical students who despite their literature courses spoke and wrote grammatically poor English.

Our high school graduates are as bright, intelligent and capable as any young people in the world. We should not permit the inadequacies of our system of secondary education to penalize both the prospective doctor and the public which needs better medical care.

So I propose that we offer medical training to the best high school graduates at the age of 17 or 18. Entrance to medical school should be by examination in high school subjects and aptitude tests.

To gain admission, a student would have to be able to write good, clear English, and to attain an agreed-on standard in English literature. Foreign languages could be bypassed, but not math or general science.

I do not believe we can substantially improve medical education by reforms confined to the four-year medical curriculum.

In the new five- or six-year medical school itself, we would need radical changes in the curriculum. Our doctors need to be better taught and prepared than they are now. The average medical school today attempts to teach too much in too short a time.

Under my proposal, instead of starting a student immediately with anatomy and/or biochemistry, I'd have him learn chemistry, biology and physics in his freshman year at medical school.

In his second year he would begin biochemistry, physiology and anatomy. In his third, he'd go on to microbiology, pathology and pharmacology.

Only toward the end of the third year would he be introduced to clinical medicine, which he'd continue in his fourth year, plus pharmacology and therapeutics—the treatment of diseases with drugs.

Choice of electives

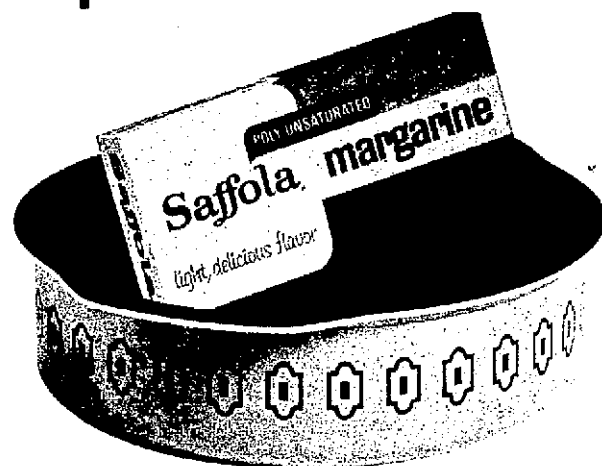

In most medical schools today the fourth year is wholly elective—all sorts of specialties and subspecialties, orthopedics, cardiology, radiology, and others. I would save these electives for the fifth year.

The medical school I am proposing would not teach any of the liberal arts. However, during the clinical years, it would include "medical sociology"—a course in which the student would study the nature of society and its health and community problems.

Doctors coming out of such a school would be, I believe, better trained and equipped to serve their patients than many physicians turned out by the existing system. Such schools would also open up the possibility of a medical career to many worthy but less well-to-do applicants who cannot stand the present financial burden of eight years' education to become a doctor. It would enable doctors to begin their careers with fewer financial debts to pay off, and thus lessen the pressure on them to earn large fees at the outset. And since the doctors would be younger when they go into practice, they could look forward to a professional career two or three years longer.

With a system like this, I am convinced we would have many more good doctors than we have ever had before, and in shorter time. Unless we make such a change, I fear we are headed for an era of medical chaos.

Chicken and dumplings, one of many varieties.

Just because we bring you heat-and-serve chicken and dumplings, we hope you won’t jump to conclusions.

The time and trouble we save you are nice. But we think the nicest thing about our Buffet Supper entrees comes when you sit down at the table: generous chunks of plump, tender chicken in a rich, golden chicken-broth gravy. And light, undumpy dumplings. Family style. Family size. Family pleasing.

The two-pound Buffet Supper is the kind of old-time dish you’d least expect to find in your grocer’s freezer: entrees like beef stew, spaghetti and meatballs, turkey and giblet gravy. And there are more than a half dozen others.

Expensive? Not a Buffet Supper. It just tastes expensive.

Thank goodness for Banquet buffet supper entrées

My Favorite Jokes

by Ladislav Fialka

EDITOR'S NOTE: Ladislav Fialka is recognized as a master of the art of pantomime. During their last American tour Fialka and his famous "Silent Theater on the Balustrade" won acclaim, with critics comparing him to Charlie Chaplin, Buster Keaton and Marcel Marceau. Originating in Prague, Czechoslovakia, Fialka and his troupe have toured in over 35 countries and are favorites at world festivals. They just started a 75-city U.S. tour and will be seen on many TV shows. Fialka doesn't talk on stage, but if he did, these are some of the jokes he'd tell:

American colleges seem to be going football crazy. Soon they may have to adopt a three-platoon system: one squad for offense, one for defense and the other to attend classes.

He: "Dear, I just insured myself for $100,000, so if anything happens to me, you and the children will be taken care of."

She: "That's wonderful. Now you won't have to go see the doctor everytime you feel sick."

Patient to psychiatrist: "I've been listening to the news and I'm worried. I haven't been feeling nearly as depressed as I should."

Two men upon discharge from the army agreed to meet ten years later in their favorite bar. They had a last drink and bade their farewells.

Ten years later, the first man entered to see the second on the same stool and said, "What do you know, I never dreamed you'd be able to find this joint again after ten years." The second man turned his bleary eyes on him and growled, "Who left?"

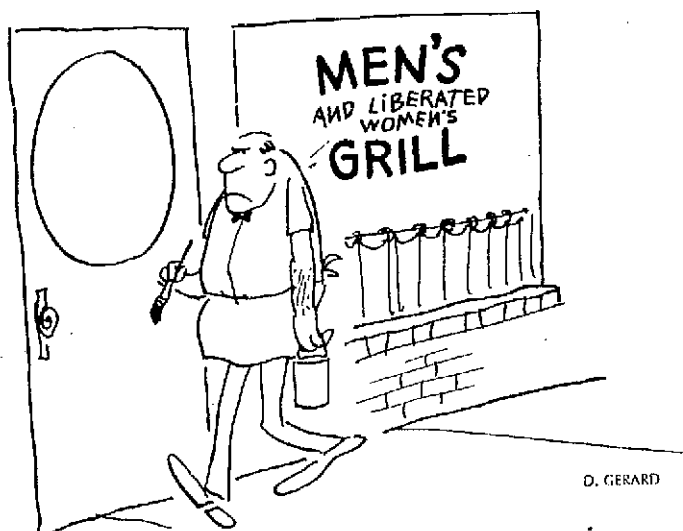

Young singers today don't worry about losing their voices—just their hair.

I never have trouble getting women to listen to me. I whisper everything.

My wife cooks a dish the way I'd better like it.

As far as I'm concerned the ideal home is one where the only things we get on time are the meals.

I've just discovered why so many American men carry pictures of their families in their wallets. It's so that when the football TV season begins they'll remember what they look like.

STILL SMOKING?

Are there some people who just can't quit?

A year ago his doctor ordered John Beam (not his real name) to stop smoking. John had just recovered from a massive coronary attack. The next might be fatal.

Since then John has tried to quit at least five times—and every time given up the attempt after just a few days.

A two-pack-a-day man for longer than he can remember, John becomes nervous and irritable when he tries to cut out smoking. Any small crisis—business or domestic—he is liable to blow sky high.

"Take away my cigarettes," says John, "and I'm not fit to live with."

John Beam is one of an increasing number of people who have desperately tried to give up smoking, but just can't make it.

Many of them have turned for help to one or another of the widely advertised smoking deterrents found in every drug store—often to no avail. Can anything be done for these people?

The answer is, "Yes."

One of the most effective smoking deterrents ever discovered is a drug called Lobeline Sulfate. Lobeline works, not by making smoking unpleasant, but by acting as a substitute for nicotine. It helps to remove the craving, and to reduce withdrawal symptoms.

However, don't think that if you want to quit smoking you can just walk into a drug store and ask for some Lobeline Sulfate. It's not as simple as that.

Unfortunately this highly effective drug has a big drawback. Taken in sufficient quantities to get the job done, it often upsets the stomach.

A number of years ago a team of scientists at a great American University determined to tackle this problem. After months of research they discovered that buffering the Lobeline Sulfate with two special antacids virtually eliminates any likelihood of stomach upset. Also, just as importantly, these buffers increased the efficiency of the Lobeline, thus greatly reducing the amount necessary to do an effective job.

This discovery was the first, and has turned out to be the only, great product breakthrough in the smoking deterrent field since Lobeline Sulfate was first discovered. It was immediately patented* and Lobeline Sulfate is now available in this new form under the name of Bantron®.

No other smoking deterrent has such a patent. That is why Bantron can safely give you four times as much Lobeline in a single dose as any other deterrent in the drug store.

In appearance Bantron is a little white tablet, somewhat like an aspirin. It is easy to swallow, safe and pleasant to take, but marvelously effective.

Before Bantron was put on the market it was thoroughly researched. It was tested on hundreds of people who wanted to stop smoking. In these clinical tests 83%, more than 4 out of 5, quit easily and pleasantly with the help of Bantron in only 5 to 7 days. Today Bantron has helped countless others, and is the smoking deterrent many doctors not only recommended but use themselves.

If, like our friend John Beam, you still need help in your struggle to quit smoking you have probably not yet met Bantron. You may have chewed stacks of gum or sucked piles of lozenges, all calling themselves smoking deterrents—but only Bantron can bring you the effectiveness of buffered Lobeline Sulfate.

This is why, in clinical tests, 4 out of 5 people who took Bantron, kicked the habit within 7 days.

What Can You Do About Today's $65-a-Day Hospital Costs?

LIKE EVERYTHING ELSE, the cost of being sick or hurt has gone up sharply. The average daily cost of one day's stay in California hospitals has already climbed to over $65 a day. Experts say hospital costs will climb even higher, because everything hospitals buy today costs more, and they must make huge investments in modern, life-saving equipment.

These fast-rising medical costs have put millions of Californians in a dangerous spot, because their health insurance is no longer enough to pay the bills. They'll either have to pay the lion's share out of their own pockets— or buy more health insurance, using money they'd rather save for the future.

But now there's a remarkably different kind of money-back health insurance that solves this problem. This revolutionary health insurance takes the worry out of life because it pays you a big cash refund if you don't get sick or hurt.

Like ordinary health insurance, this remarkable plan pays you generous tax-free cash benefits if you do get sick or hurt. The cash comes to you direct-by-check, to spend any way you wish. It pays you regardless of other hospital, medical or surgical insurance you may have, including group.

But unlike ordinary insurance, this low-cost plan

People over 65 get the cash they need to help fill today's bigger gaps in Medicare.

One of two things will happen—you'll either get sick, or you'll stay well. You'll feel more secure knowing that, either way, you must get paid.

means you no longer have to get sick or hurt to collect. If you stay well, you still get a big check. Instead of paying premiums which return no money if you have no claims, you get a cash refund of all your basic annual premiums at maturity. It's like having an extra savings account for your future pleasure and security.

You don't even have to stay 100 per cent healthy to get money back. If you collect less than what you paid in annualized premiums, you get a cash refund of the difference. So no matter what, you must collect. It's the sensible, "no-risk" answer for people who no longer want to gamble against today's rapidly rising medical costs.

This remarkable Money-Back plan is guaranteed by Certified Life Insurance Co. of California as part of the famous White Cross Plan protecting thousands of California families. And the White Cross Plan also includes low-cost protections to help folks over 65 fill today's bigger gaps in Medicare that could cost them thousands of dollars.

The story of this revolutionary health insurance that also pays you cash if you stay well, and special "Over-65" plans to supplement Medicare, is told in the Gold Book, an informative booklet offered free by Certified.
